There were a few parking lot problems this year. Icy weather lent itself well to skidding autos. Students were cautioned to be more careful in getting in and out of the parking lot. Snowy weather conditions made ideal boot weather. Several times this year school was dismissed early or canceled because of slick roads. Most students didn't object to a day off.

I am not just a number!

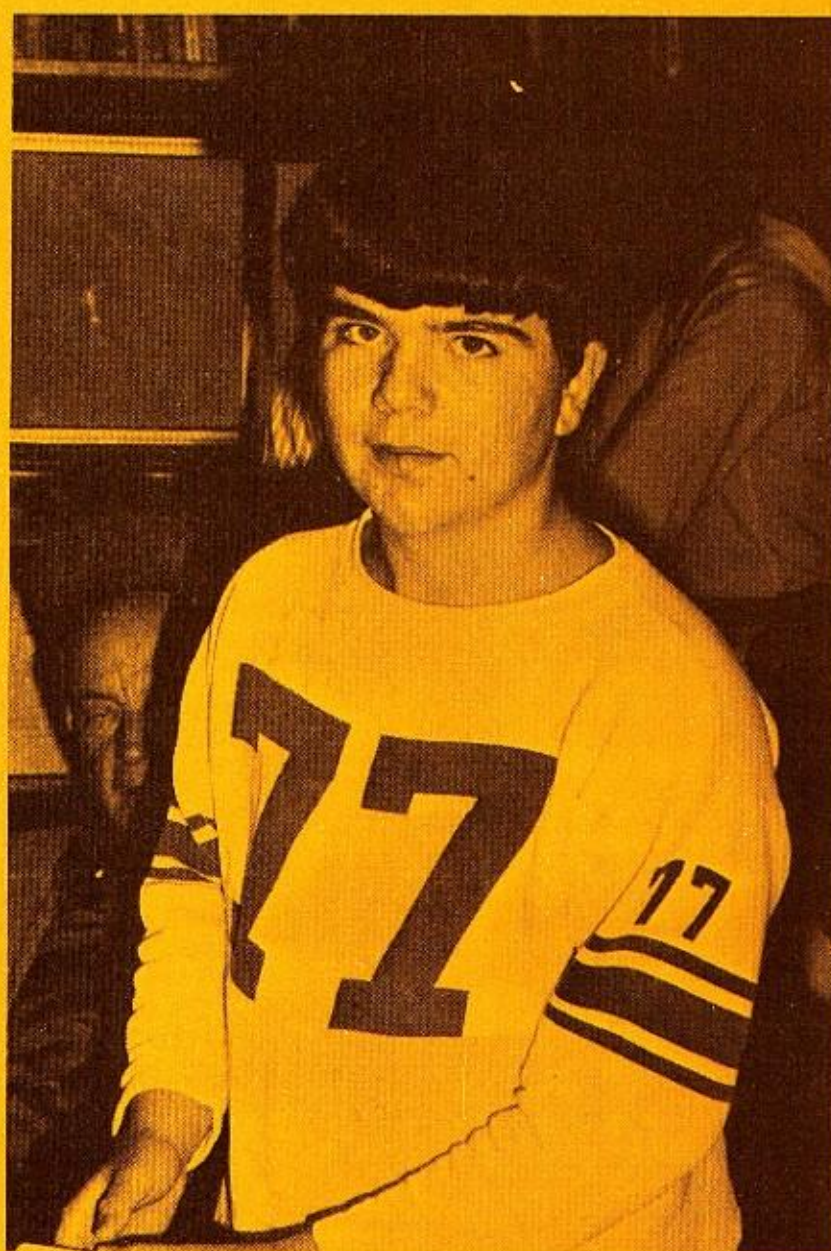

No number on a card am I,
No color to be hated yet,
No soldier in the front am I.
My mind is young, untried.

I seek for an identity
In the corridors of knowledge.
My mind-eye is opened to see
In the souls of those like me.

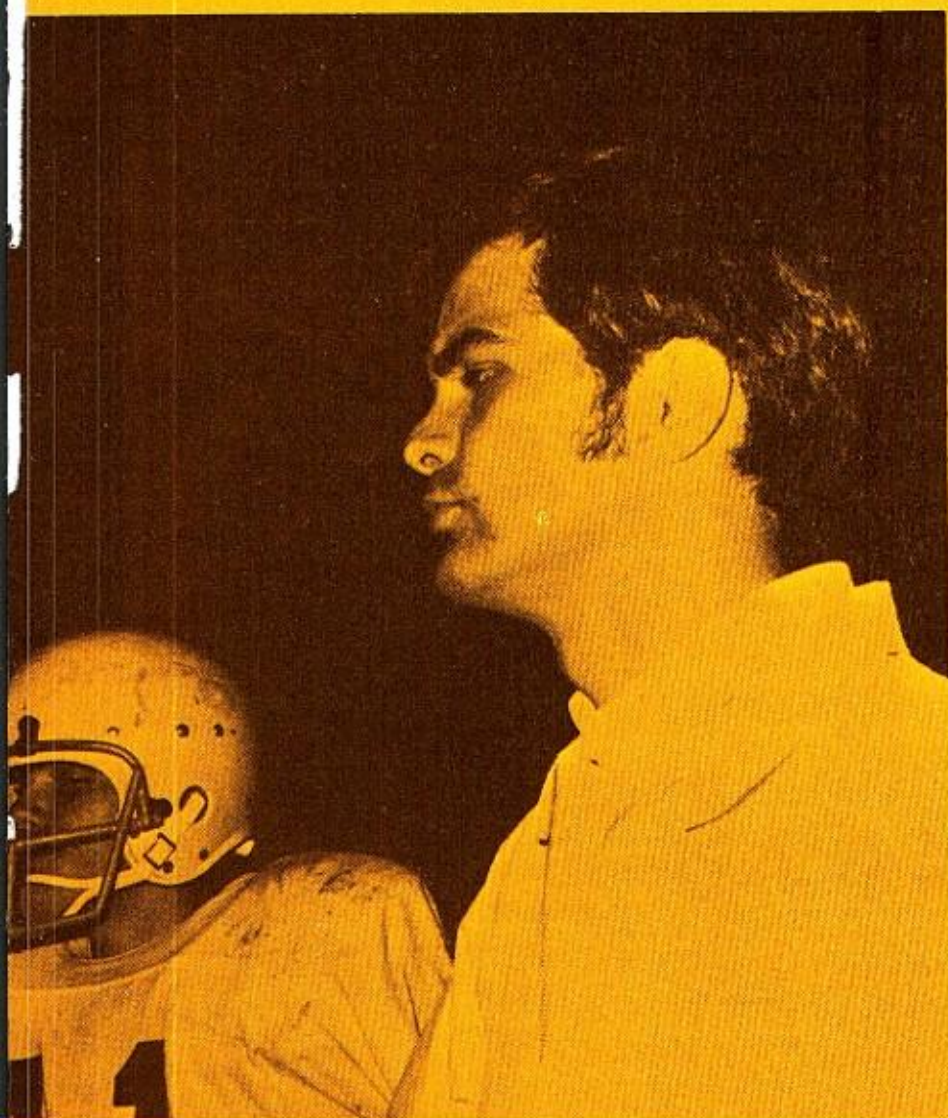

I experiment, I question,
Failing often, floundering--
Afraid to stop, I run
Until destruction of my mind is done.

Can I stop before too late?
Can the damage be repaired?
Only if my fellow man will wait
For me to catch up

Before
Too
Late.

Donnie Moorehouse got out of class long enough to browse for new reading material from the county bookmobile. Many English classes required book reviews from students.

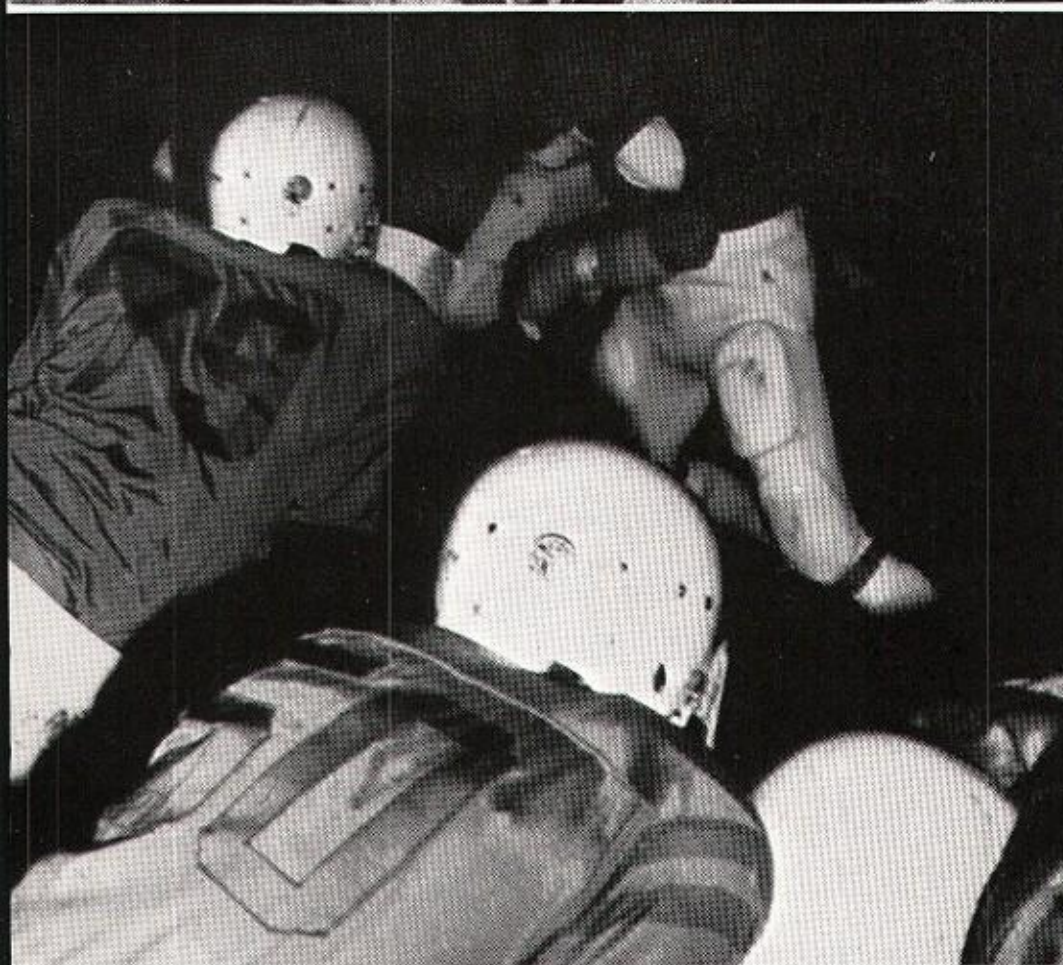

Carl Sweet and James Davis spent part of their school time tidying up after others.

Sherri Stoker, 1971 Homecoming queen, and Jeri Summers, another candidate, caught a ride for the parade. Classes vied in the attempt to pile the most wood for the homecoming bonfire.

Where does the time go?

Rex Jackson took time out from serious studies to crack a smile for our student photographer in the cafeteria.

Mrs. Bee and her helpers attempted to reassure nervous students as they gave them a TB test. This was a very valuable service rendered to students and faculty alike. The Putnam County Tuberculosis Association was the benefactor.

The Putnam County bookmobile came to North Putnam several times a month. Students checked out books which couldn't be found at North Putnam's library. Students were often called from class to return overdue books.

The cokeman was a familiar sight as he delivered cans of that refreshing drink. Several times during the year the coke room was closed due to litterbugs.

Teacher Mr. Gibson even spent time attending a rehearsal of Miracle Worker.

Convocations at North Putnam ranged from a NASA demonstration to music from the band at Christmas.

Our school nurse, Mrs. Bee, helped remove something from the eye of eighth grader Cathy Carter.

1971 was a year of progress.

The year 1971 brought many changes to North Putnam. It was not the first year at a new school. It was the second year--a year of change, of progress.

The student council spent half of the school year preparing a modified dress code to be presented to the school board for its approval or disapproval. The modified dress code stressed pant suit apparel for girls and certain changes for boys' hair styles.

"Blue Jean and Tennis Shoe" day allowed the girls to wear slacks or blue jeans for a school day.

The school year saw accident-prone pupils on crutches, in casts, and in all sorts of braces. Sometimes the building looked more like a hospital ward than a school.

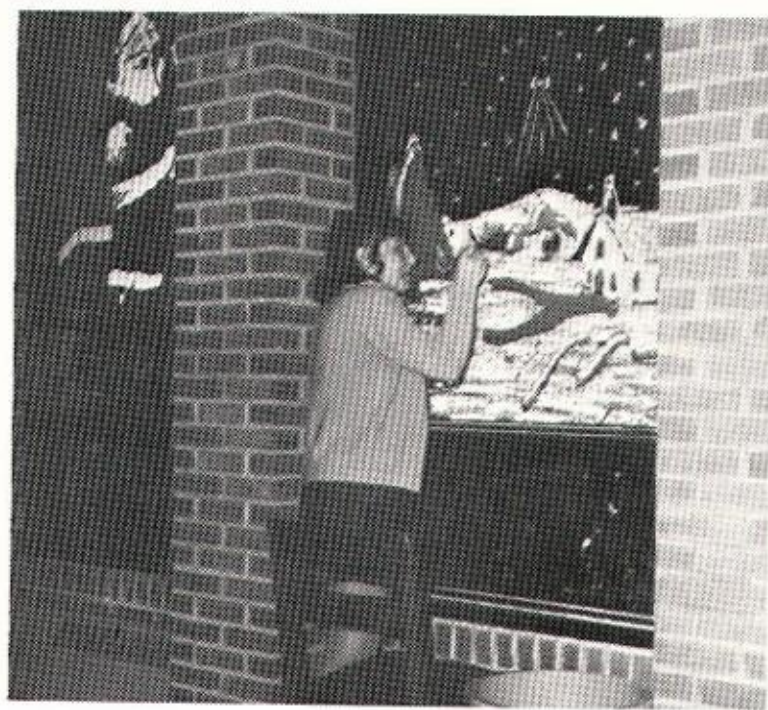

North Putnam witnessed its first homecoming this year. Sherri Stoker became the first homecoming queen.

Two new clubs were organized this year--the Future Teachers' Association and the Industrial Arts Club.

A boys' pep block was organized to help support our team. Colorful tops added to the spirit of the girl's pep block.

A shuttle bus was considered for returning students home after extracurricular activities in the evening.

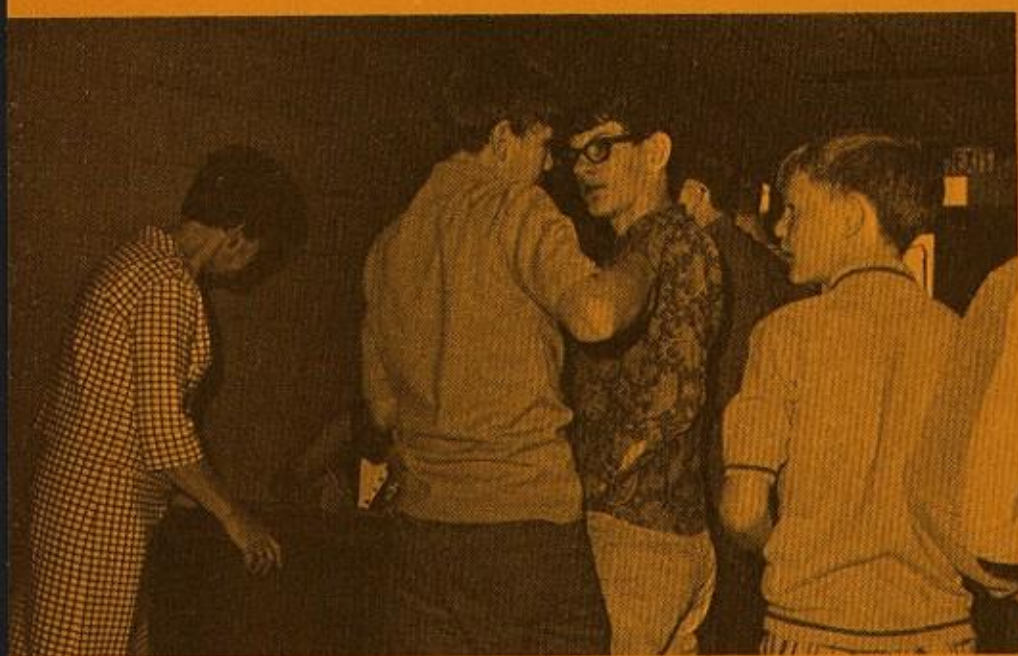

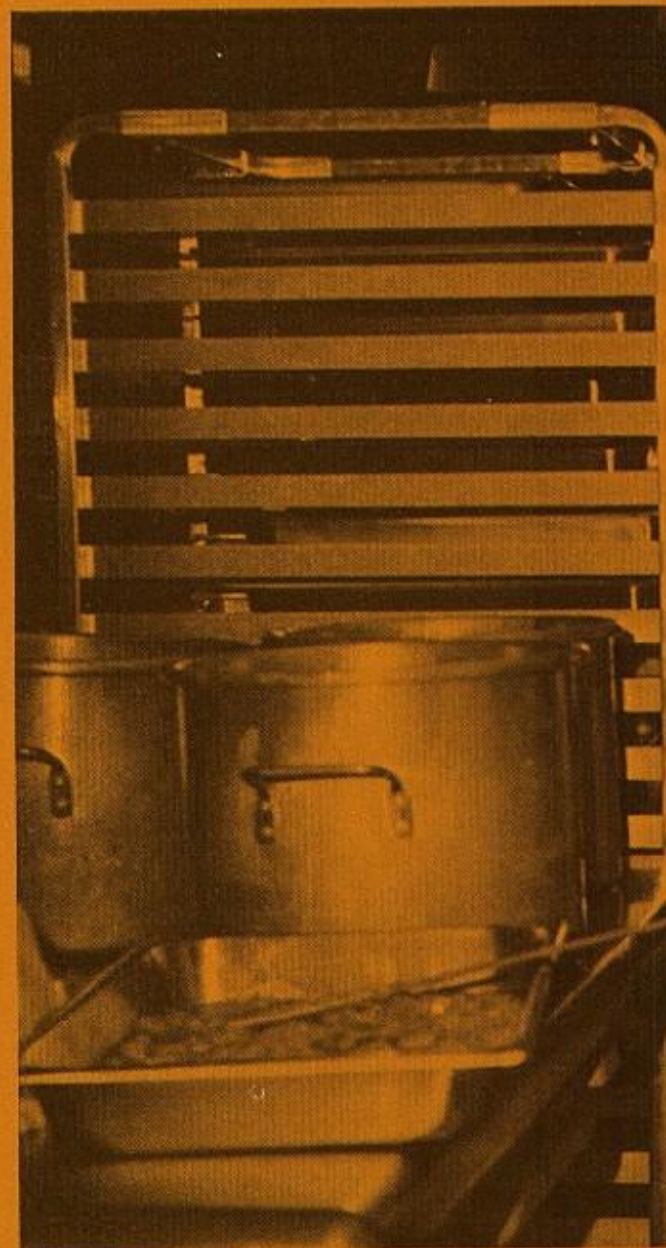

1970-71 saw the loss of community rivalry in school, more communication between the student body and the faculty and administration, and a "settled-in" feeling at North Putnam.

Art students decorated windows.

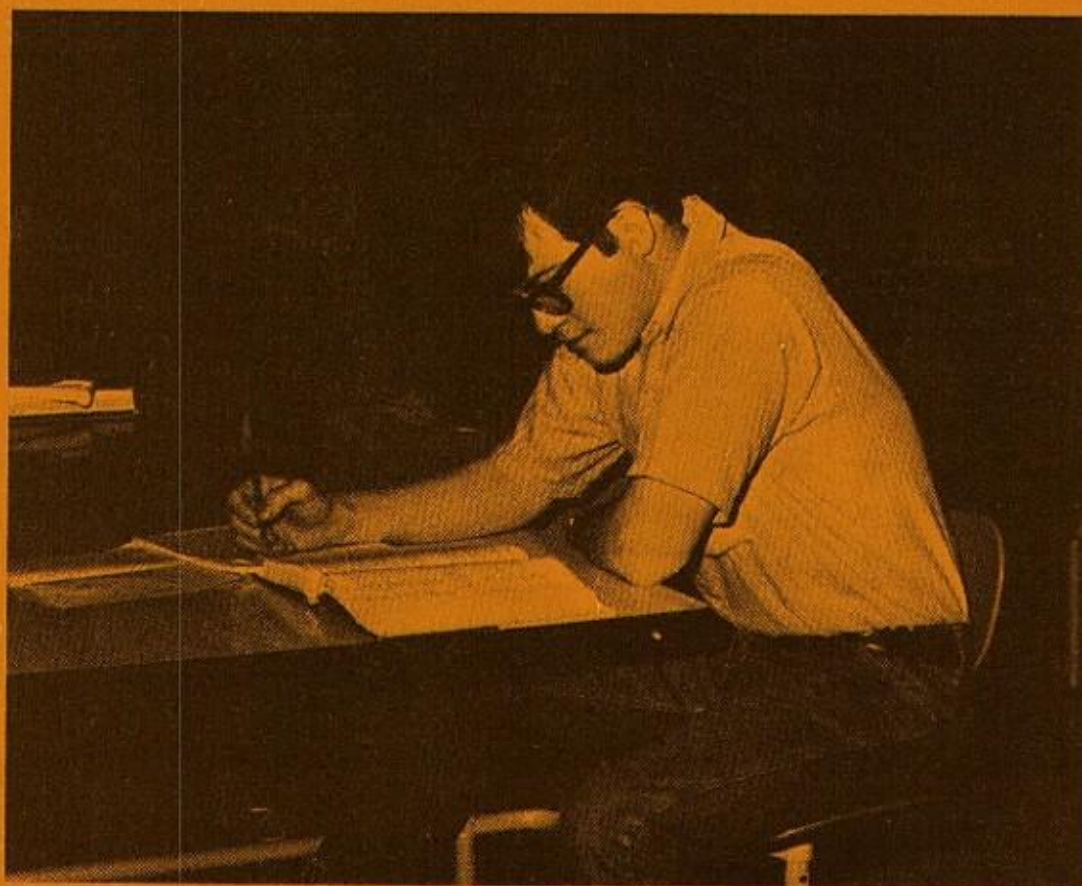

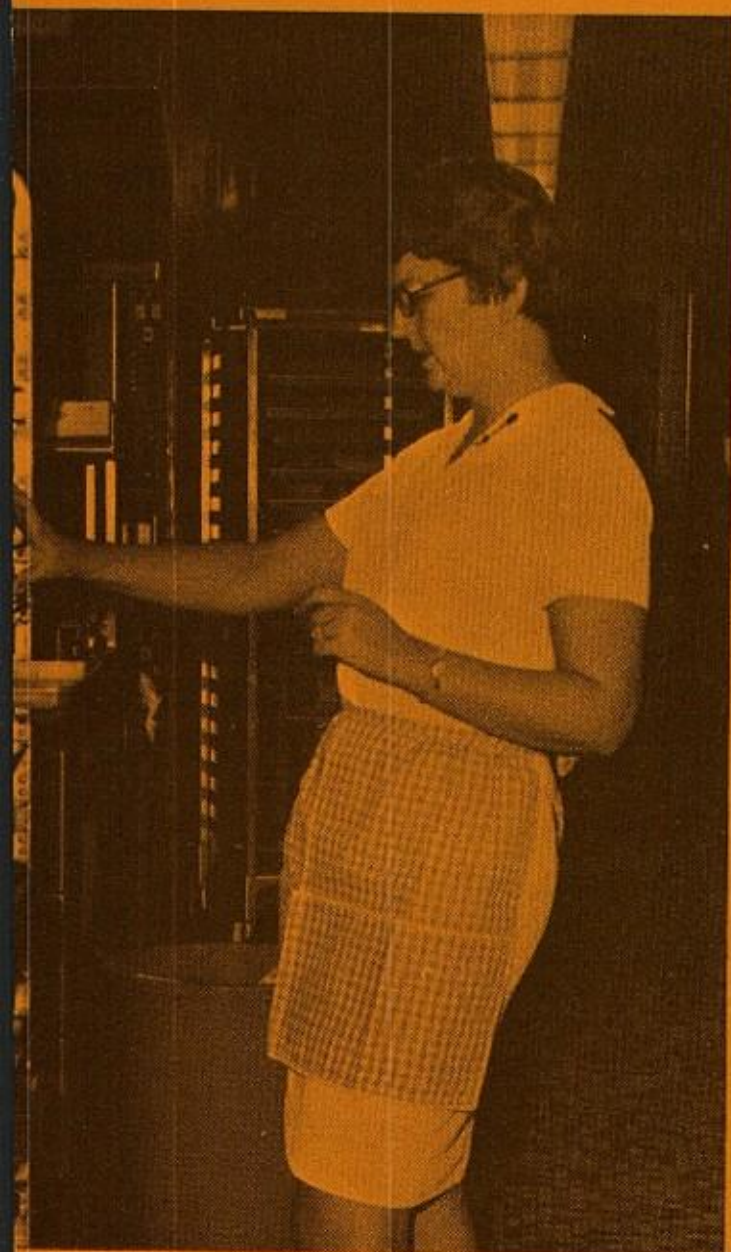

The bookmobile librarian checked out many interesting books to NP students this year.

Teacher Don Stewart's sons praise one of the stars of the drama Miracle Worker. Buster, the star, was owned by art teacher Miss Daseler.

Kevin Spencer and Bob Gibbons were seventh graders who were caught goofing off during TB test line-up.

Activities got the students involved.

Many extracurricular activities created interest for students outside of their academic requirements.

School spirit was spurred on by colorful posters and drawings done by the cheerleaders and members of the pep club.

Lights burned both early and late at North Putnam. With so many basketball teams some teams had to practice before school started in the mornings. Students rehearsing for the fall and spring plays returned to school in the evenings to practice songs, dances, or lines.

Recreational swimming was open to classes and clubs during the evening. Splash time provided work as well as relaxation for the members of North Putnam's first swim team.

North Putnam really got into the "swim" of things this year as clubs visited art and science museums, the state legislature, and took other interesting field trips.

The portrait of Mary and the baby Jesus portrayed the true meaning of the celebration of Christmas time.

Steve Goff and Joyce Hill danced the evening away.

Cinderella danced at the Christmas Ball.

Every couple at the Christmas Ball was Cinderella and Prince Charming in a make-believe world of glitter and tinsel decorations.

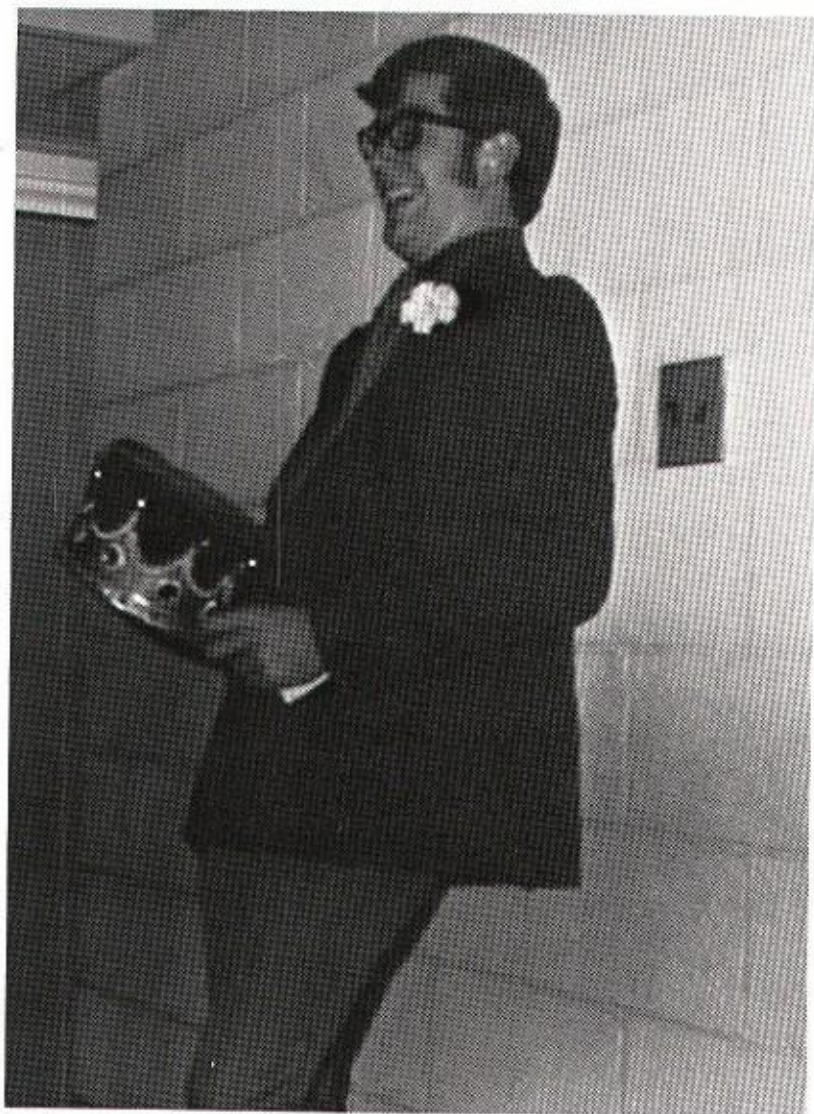

Indeed, royalty was present at the 1970 Christmas Ball as Chris Stoker wore the crown of queen and Greg Richard was king.

Christmas Ball has seemed to have become a traditional event at which girls look their most glamorous in formal gowns and special hair styles.

The jitterbug, the twist, and the hully-gully may have gone "out," but the tradition of stepping on your partner's toes was still "in" at the Christmas dance.

Since the couples were in formal attire, the dancing seemed to be at a slower pace. Couples who had never danced to anything but hard rock found themselves fascinated with the antiquated custom of dancing close to each other.

The 1970 Christmas Ball at North Putnam added a touch of magic to the already exciting Christmas season.

David Webber enjoyed the idea of crowning the 1970 queen of the Christmas Ball, Chris Stoker.

Wisdom lights the road of life.

ACADEMICS

Air Force, Navy, Marine, and Army recruiting officers told seniors about service careers.

We had school leaders.

The chief power of a school system's administration began with the school board and worked its way down through the superintendent to the principals of a school building. These administrators managed money, guided students, and listened to teachers.

The school board approved a new dress code set up by the students at North Putnam and also ran a survey of students' and parents' opinions of a shuttle bus system for extracurricular activities.

Paving the school parking lot was discussed. Many school patrons, students, and teachers felt that a paved parking lot would be a great improvement for North Putnam. Administration attempted to solve the problems of a growing school corporation.

Vice principal Evans mended a student's shoe.

Mr. Miller

Coaches Tallman and Thistlethwaite sat "tight."

Charles Frazee served as NP's superintendent.

Doremire and Stewart got ready for their skit.

Busses waited to be loaded at day's end.

Mr. Evens was boys' guidance counselor.

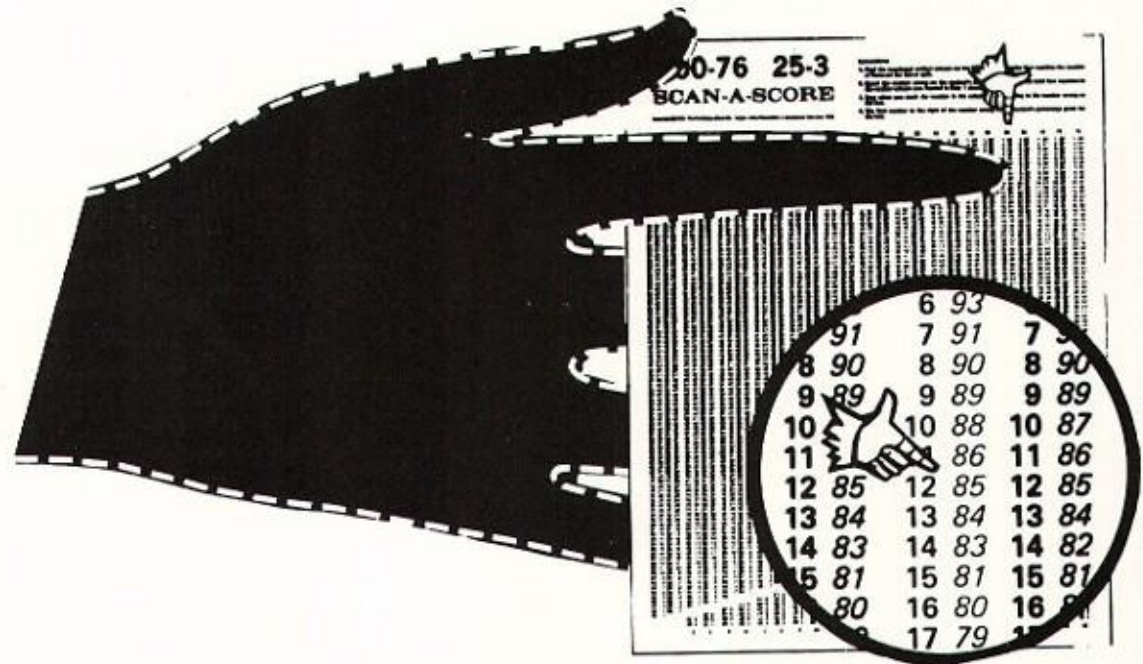

We advised.

Our main concern in the guidance department was to try to ease some problems that plague teachers and students alike. Some of the areas of concern to students seemed to be in college applications and preparations, adjustments needed by students to various curricula, and class scheduling problems.

To improve communication at all levels, a counselor referral system was instituted this year and we felt because of it, better understanding was developed for all involved.

Counseling student problems was our main concern and at times conferences with parents were fruitful. In addition to counseling, many hours were involved with paper work and various details. The guidance department gave a helping hand to all who desired it.

Mrs. Greeson

Mr. Miller and Mrs. Greeson discussed school.

Silkscreening was one process learned in shop class.

Rick Daniels used an electric saw while Tony Riggen tried the oscilloscope. Kenny Houser did cross-cutting.

Mr. Steward

Mr. Hazlett

We were builders.

The bang of a hammer, the rasping of a file, the smell of oil, and the purring of a motor all meant just one thing at North Putnam--the industrial art wing.

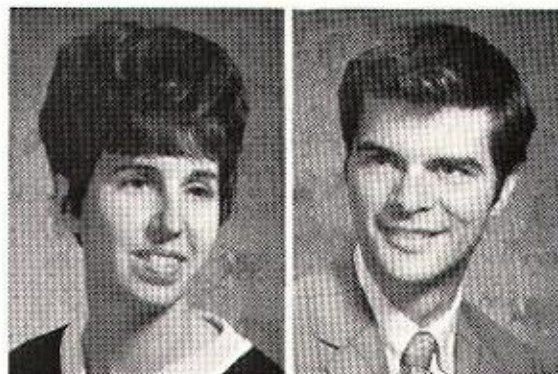

Industrial art classes provided the students an opportunity to learn to develop and print film in the school's darkroom. Some of the pictures were used in this year's annual.

Industrial art courses put the students on the road to becoming professionals in fields such as drafting, woodworking, mechanical engineering, and radio technology. Many of these skills would be utilized in the future.

Mrs. L. Myers
Mrs. D. Myers

Mrs. Stalker
Mr. Thomas

What's English?

The land of books with magic words to take us anywhere in the world--this was English. We strolled through the Catskills with Rip Van Winkle, held back tears at the death of Romeo and Juliet, and counted the wounds that Julius Caesar had.

Although many students disliked English, they sometimes failed to realize how frequently they used this implement. Reading lunch menus, asking for a library pass, writing a note to a boyfriend--this was English.

English classes often took voyages to find sunken treasure--unknown vocabulary words, spelling skills, and correct grammar. The older students digested facts to be assimilated into term papers or themes while the younger school population gave examples of onomatopoeia. THIS was English.

Unfortunately students didn't always line up as willingly for English class as they did at lunch.

Mr. Bonar
 Mrs. Elmore

Viva el Mexico y viva la Roma al Norte Putnam.

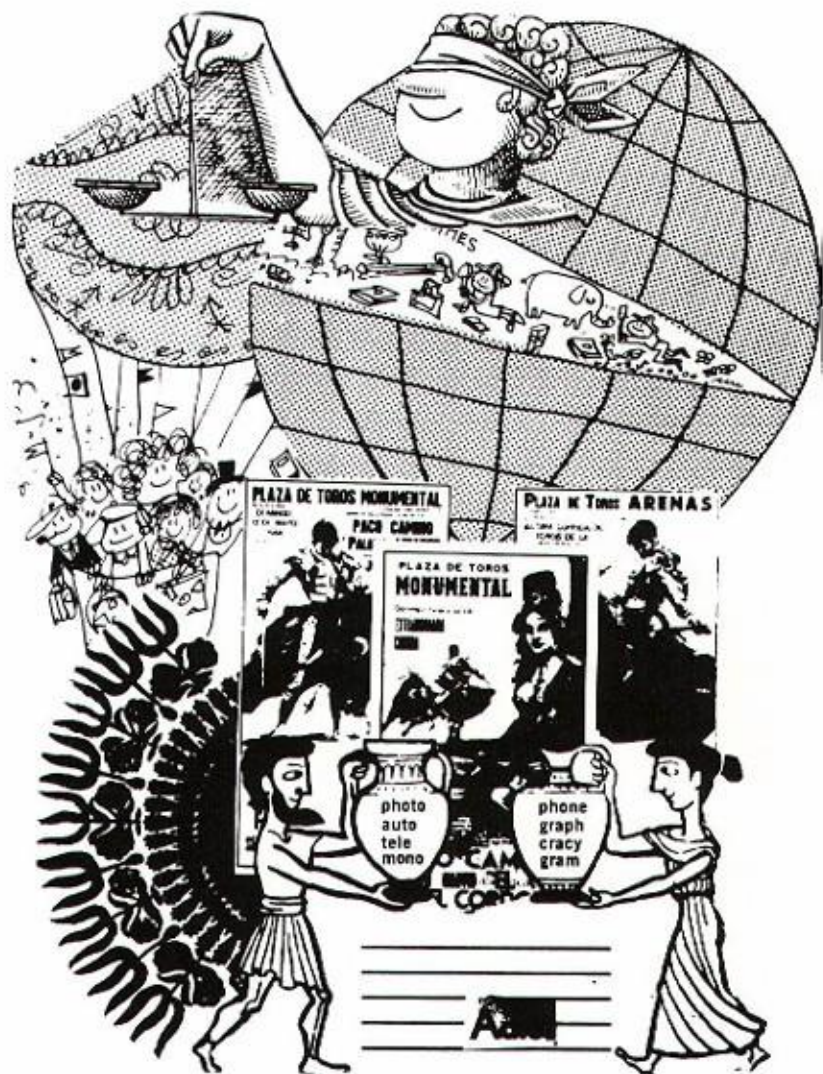

"Is anyone interested in going to Mexico this summer?"

Yes, students of Spanish had the opportunity to take a group tour to various parts of Mexico in June. Mr. Bonar agreed to help sponsor a group who would like to visit the land of the sombrero and siesta. The thoughts of bull-fights, pyramids, tamales, and tacos enticed students to pack their luggage and head for the southern border.

Latin students were concerned with Latin convention and the Junior Classical League banquet.

This year JCL members were able to wear their togas, stolas, and sandals to school the day of the banquet.

Did the students find Latin to be dead? No, Latin was a living language in the medical and scientific professions.

Students found the sidewalk in an icy condition as they cautiously made their way to buses.

Progress is science.

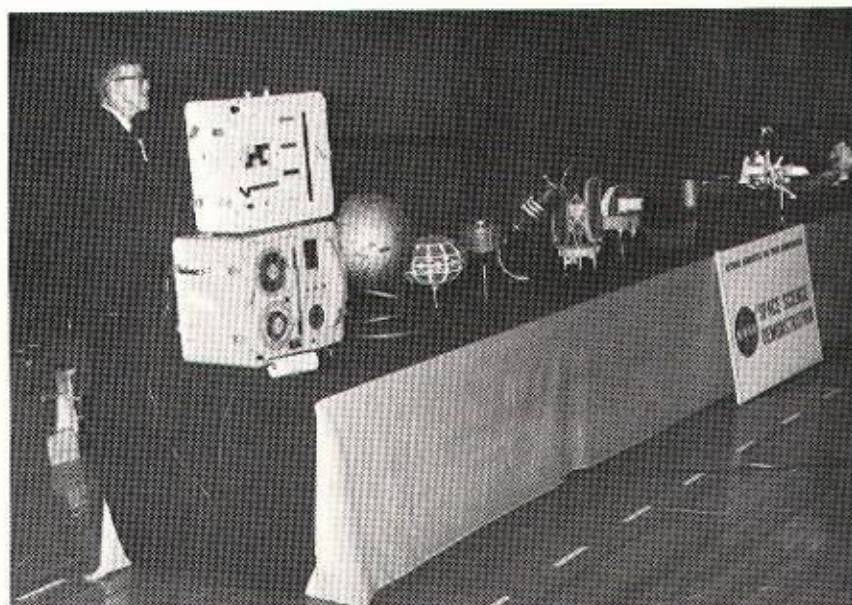

Science teachers this year had the difficult problem of all agreeing to a choice of new science textbooks for next year.

Science buffs received the opportunity to enter into a science summer enrichment program at the college level.

Relating to science was the NASA speaker who showed the type of space suit worn by astronauts and how the spacemen ate while aboard their ship.

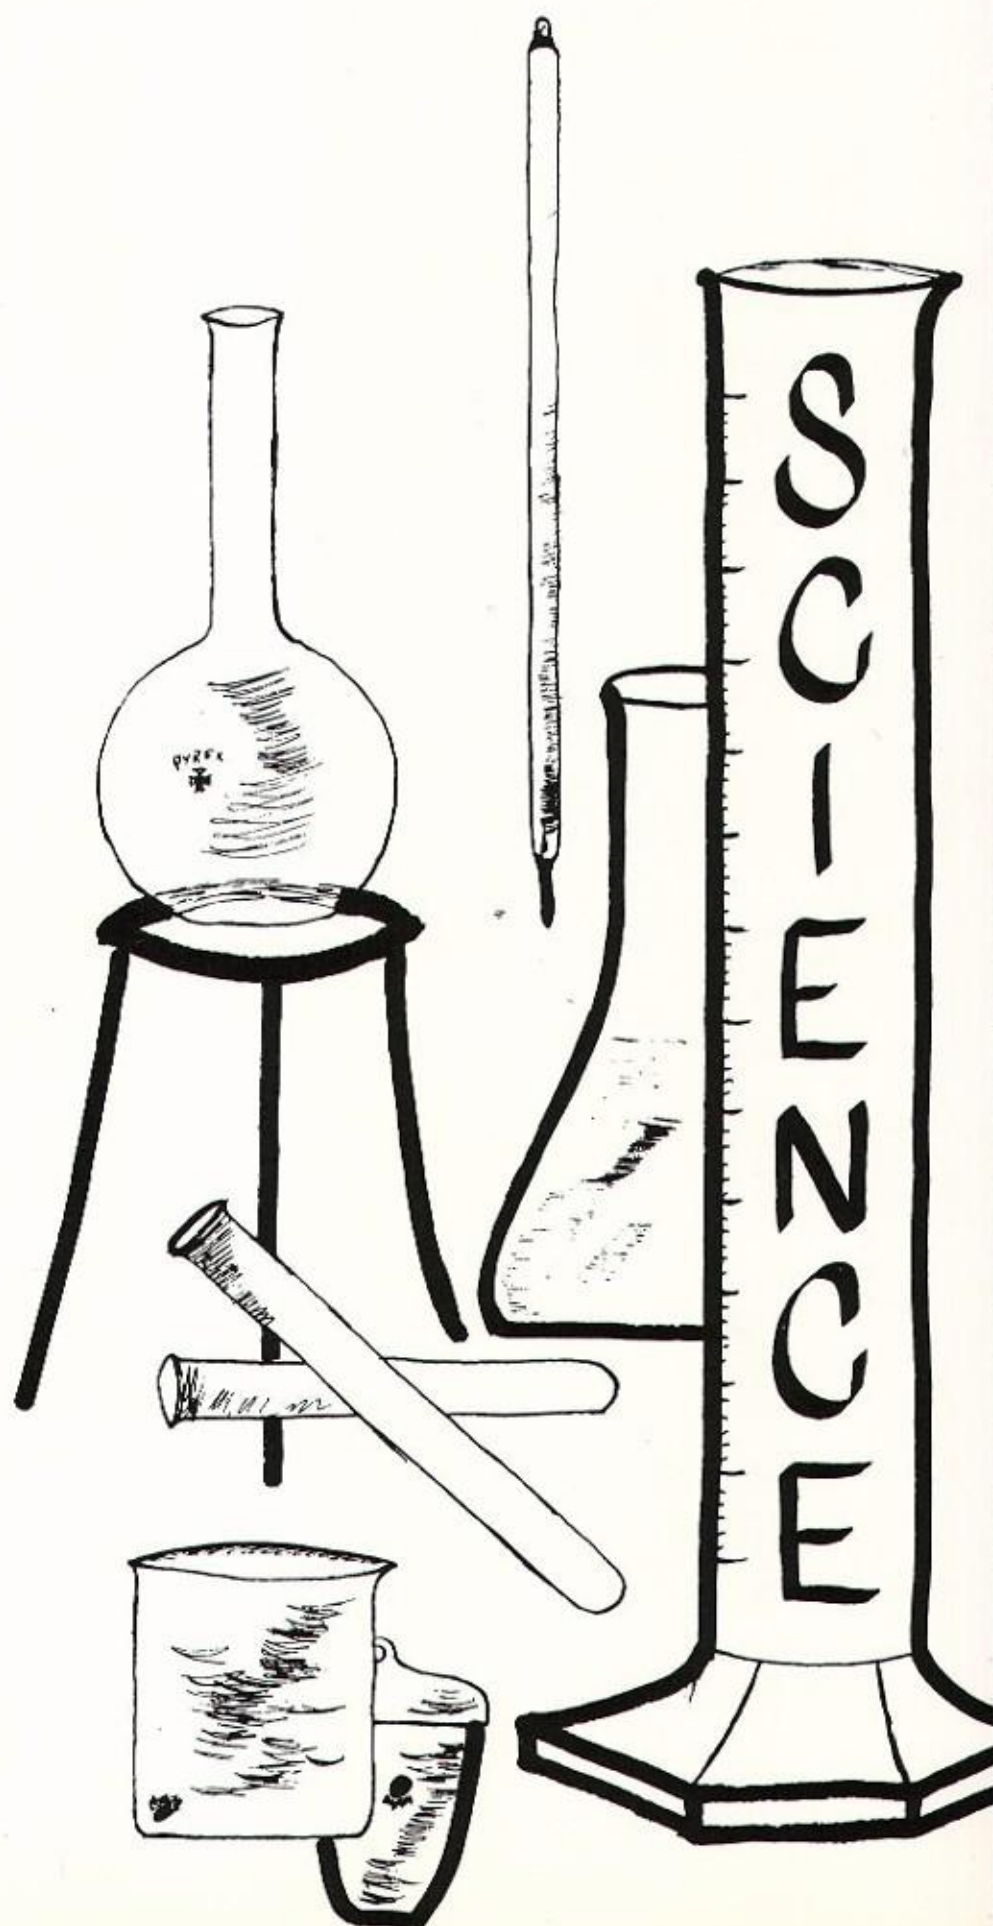

In science cells were studied under a microscope to see what life IS about.

A NASA demonstration was held during a convo at school. Space equipment was discussed.

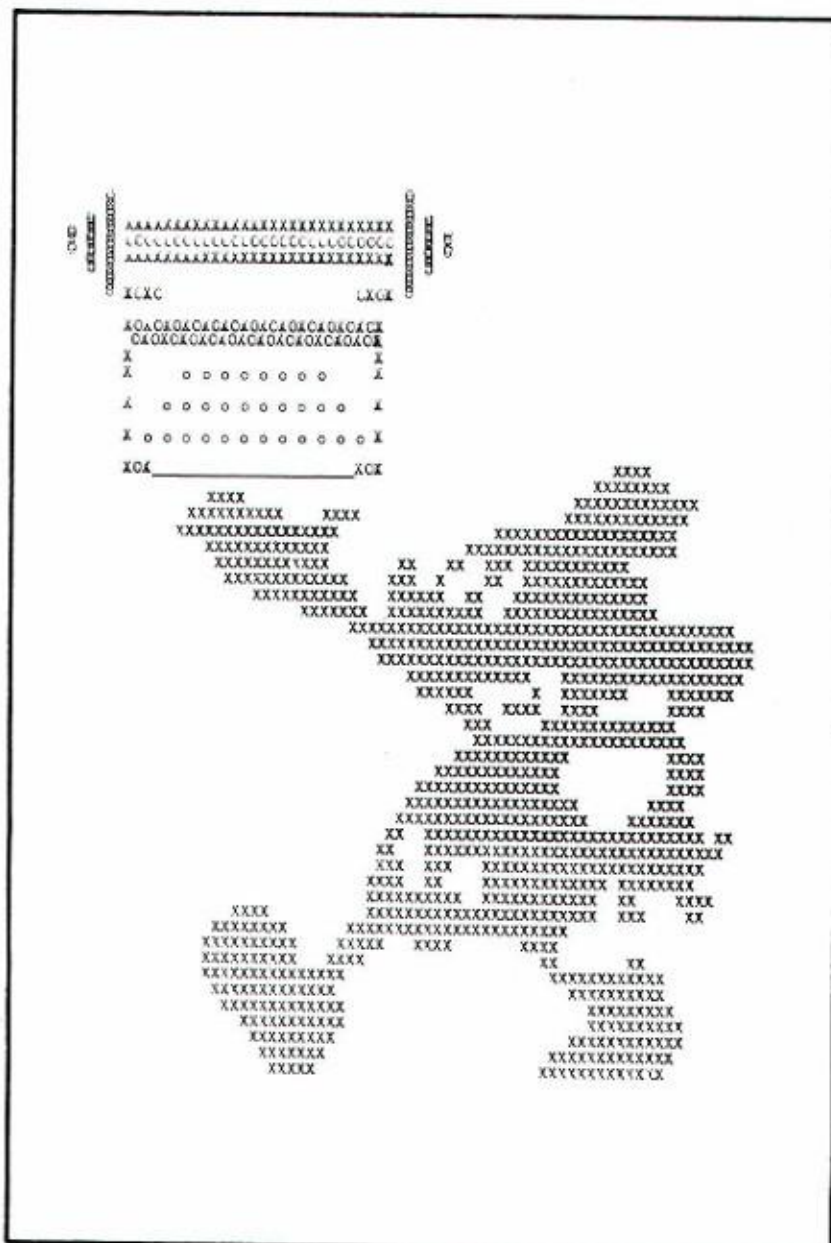

Chris Tolliver sold paper to science students.

(From Top) Mrs. Patrick, Mr. Blocher, Mr. Summers, Mr. Risk, Mr. Hawley.

Timed typing tests sharpened competitiveness in business classes at North Putnam.

Mrs. Hutchins

Mr. Gibson

Mrs. Elless

Business didn't Mickey Mouse around.

Companies expanded and developed in Mr. Gibson's business class as students actually imagined themselves as owners of companies and made executive decisions.

A representative from Porter Business College came to talk with the girls about the Nancy Taylor modeling part of their program.

Typewriter keys clicked, stencils were mimeographed, and filing techniques were learned as part of many business skills needed for secretarial work as well as personal use. Students learned by doing in business.

We took action.

"From the past and from today we must learn for a better tomorrow" seemed to sum up the purpose of the social studies department as each teacher tried to impress upon his students the glories and agonies of human history.

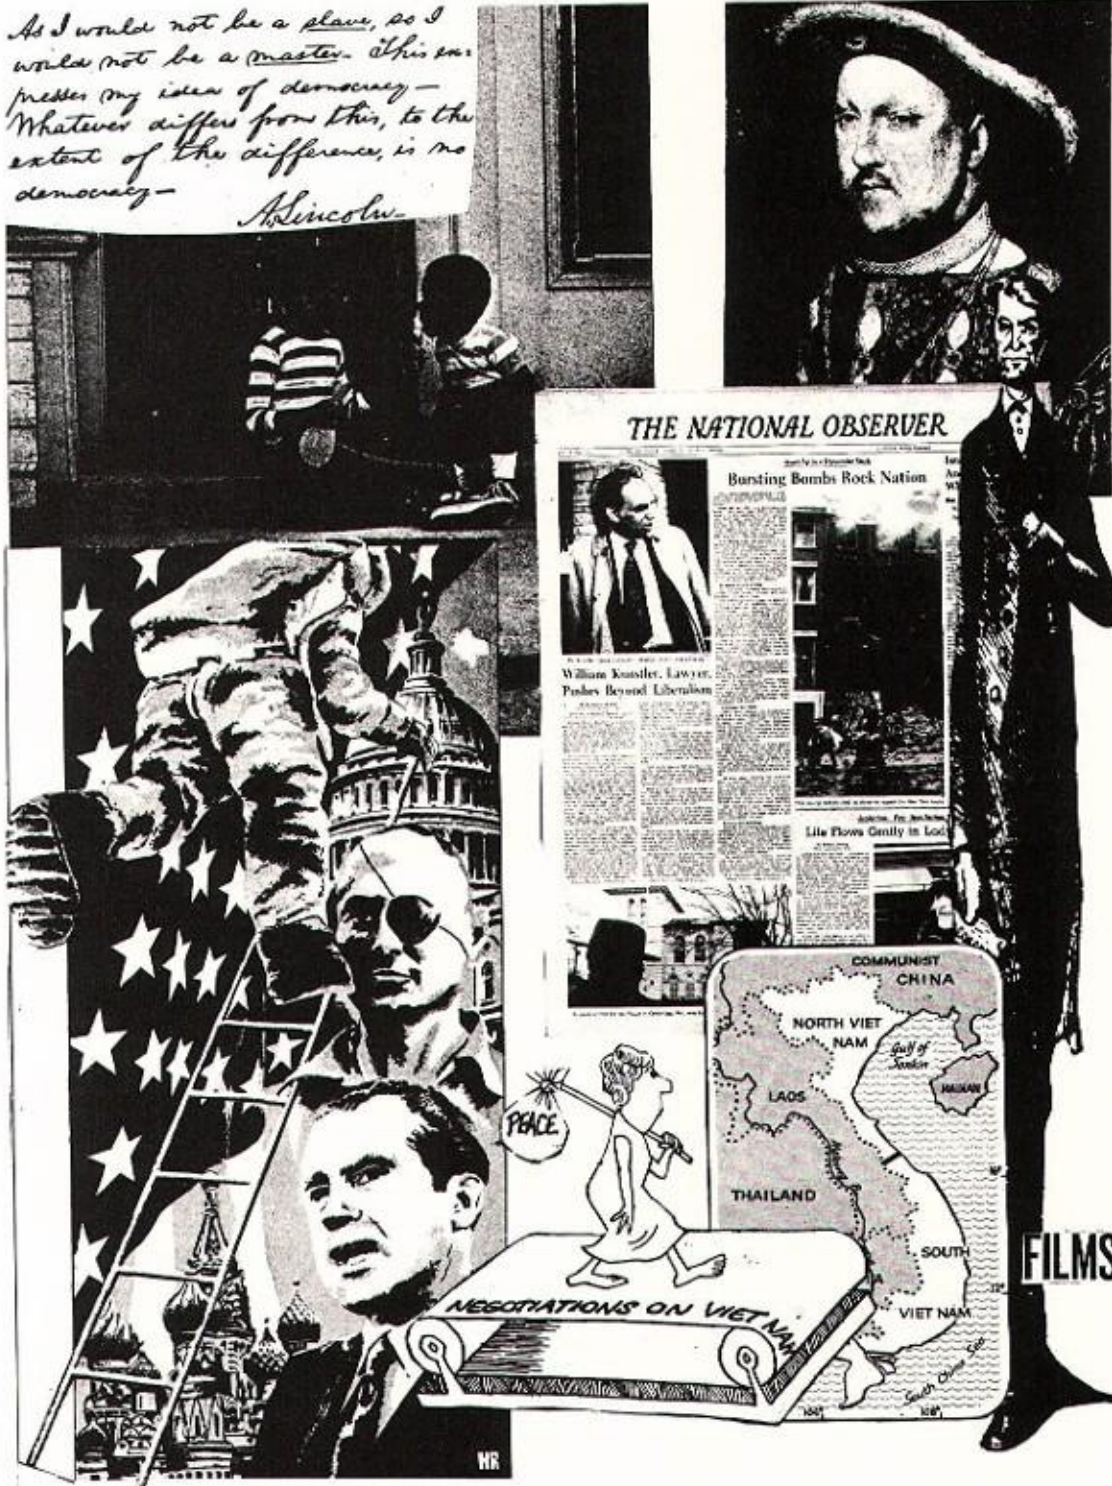

As the junior high learned of pre-American history of Columbus, the Spanish Armada, and Magellan, the senior high was kept busy studying the history of the world. The junior high history classes had the opportunity of visiting the Museum of Science and Industry and Field's Museum on a Chicago field trip.

This year the junior and senior classes were accorded the privilege of viewing Indiana government in the making as they took a field trip to the state capital to observe the General Assembly in action. Much was learned from first-hand observation.

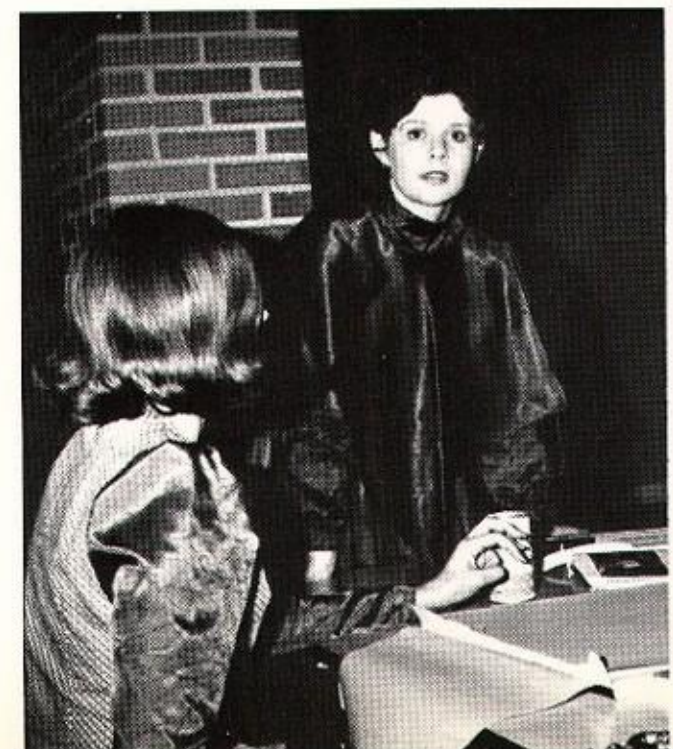

Mr. Thistlethwaite Mrs. Sherfield

As I would not be a slave, so I would not be a master. This expresses my idea of democracy—Whatever differs from this, to the extent of the difference, is no democracy—
Abraham Lincoln

The seventh grade history club was an extension of the social studies department.

G. Walsh worked late.

During home economics Mrs. Stewart gave some sewing pointers to Bev McFarland, Vicki Roe, Nancy Bell, Frieda Poynter, and Wilma Kamplain.

Mrs. McGaughey Mrs. Stewart

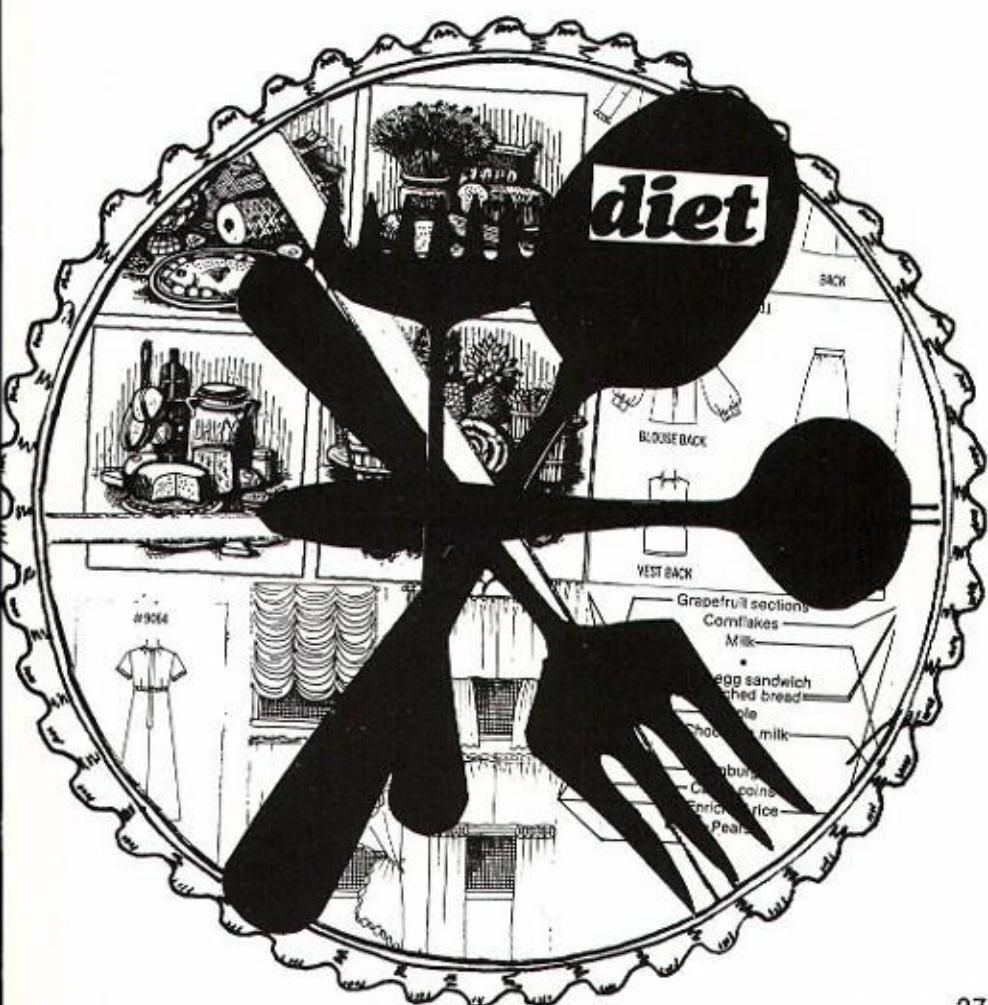

We were homemakers.

Home economics classes enjoyed having three student teachers this year. All three student teachers were from Indiana State University.

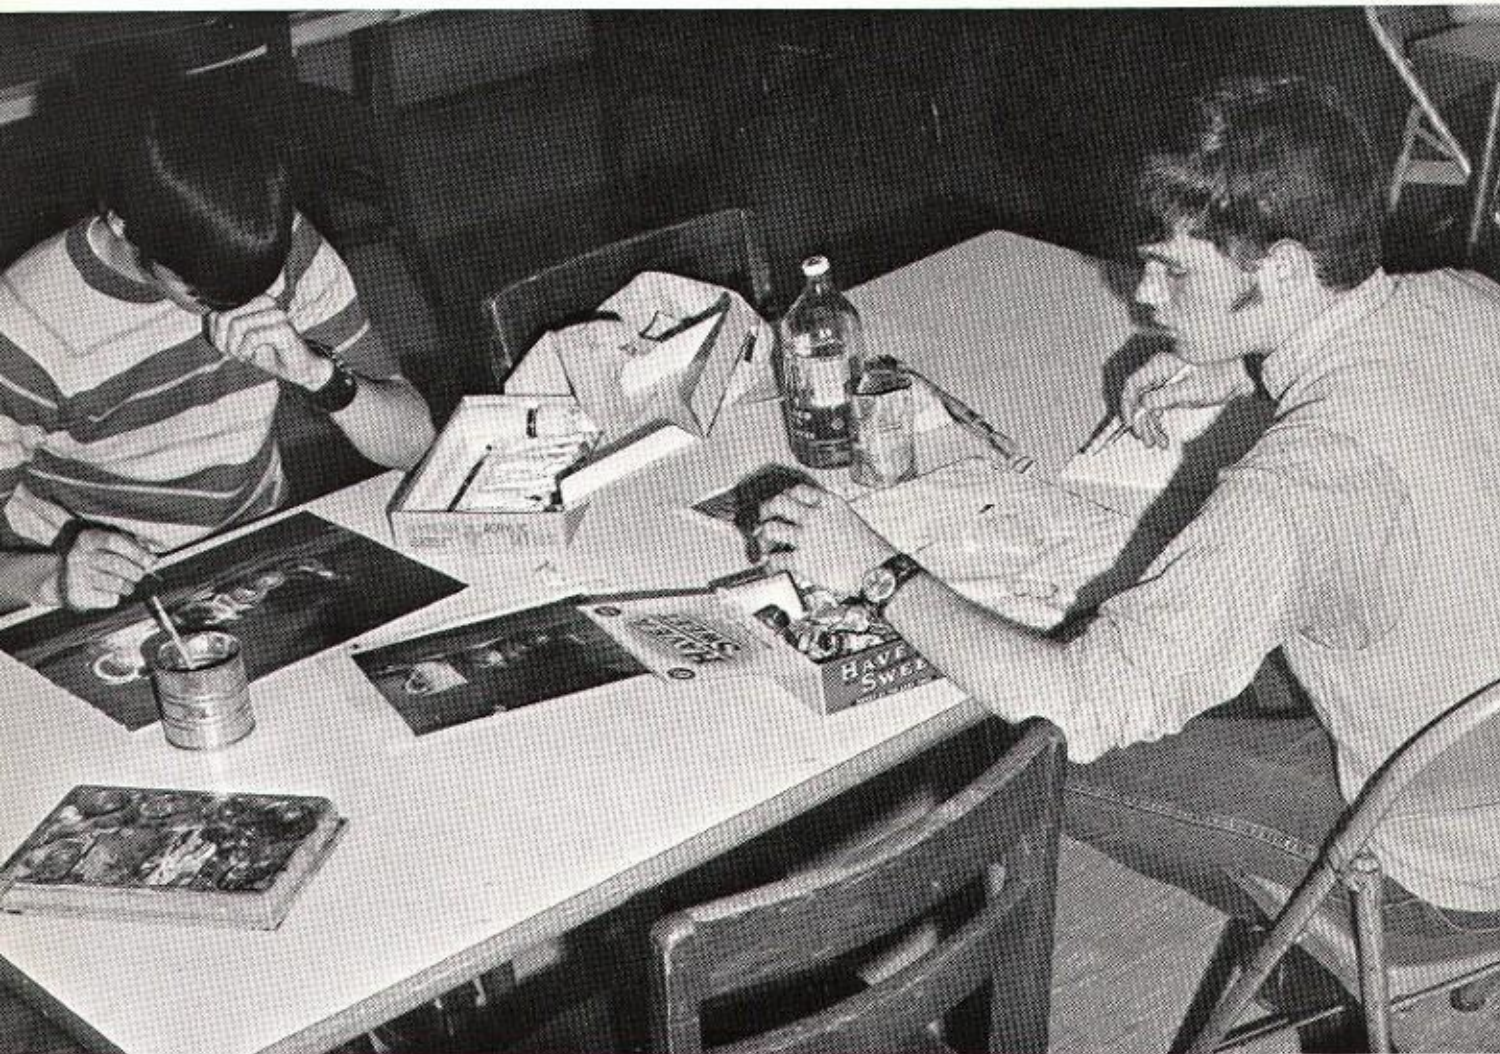

It was undoubtedly a tie as to who learned more --the students or the student teachers.

Many students made maxi skirts in class and later wore them to school. Many of the outfits made by home economics girls were shown later in a spring style show.

Menus were planned, prepared, and eaten by the classes. Often the most simple of foods could be made attractive and tastier in order to make it a meal fit for a king.

Art students R. Sharp and Jim McCarroll painted on canvas.

Artistic students decorated windows in Jack Frost style.

Miss Daseler

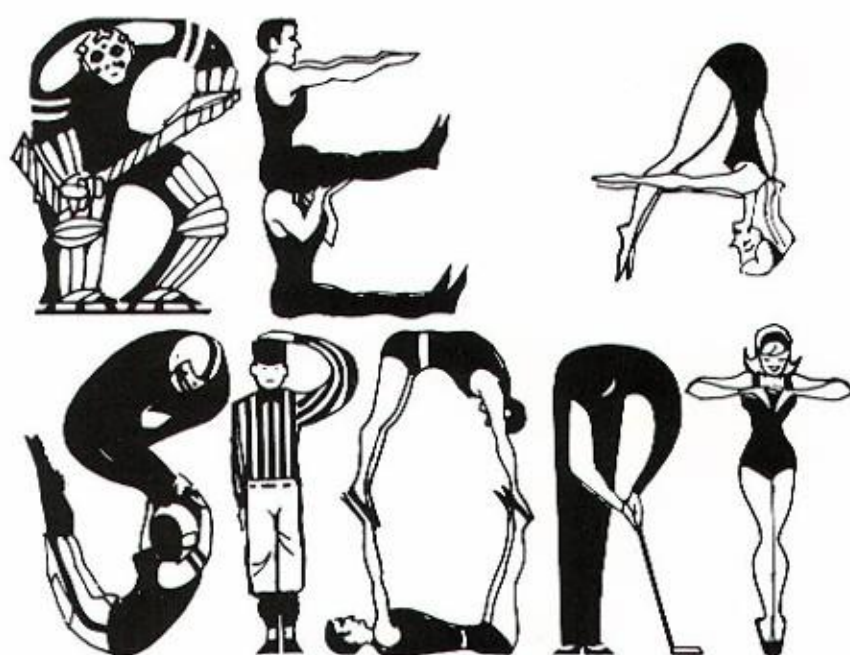

We mastered art.

Miss Daseler's classes painted old masters' paintings on canvas this year, and some students made modernistic sculptures.

A sign-making machine was purchased. This made poster-making much simpler.

Several poster contests were held during the sectional and regional basketball games, and artistic students utilized clever ideas. Sometimes several art projects were going on.

Mrs. Cox

Physical education classes enjoyed playing volleyball this year.

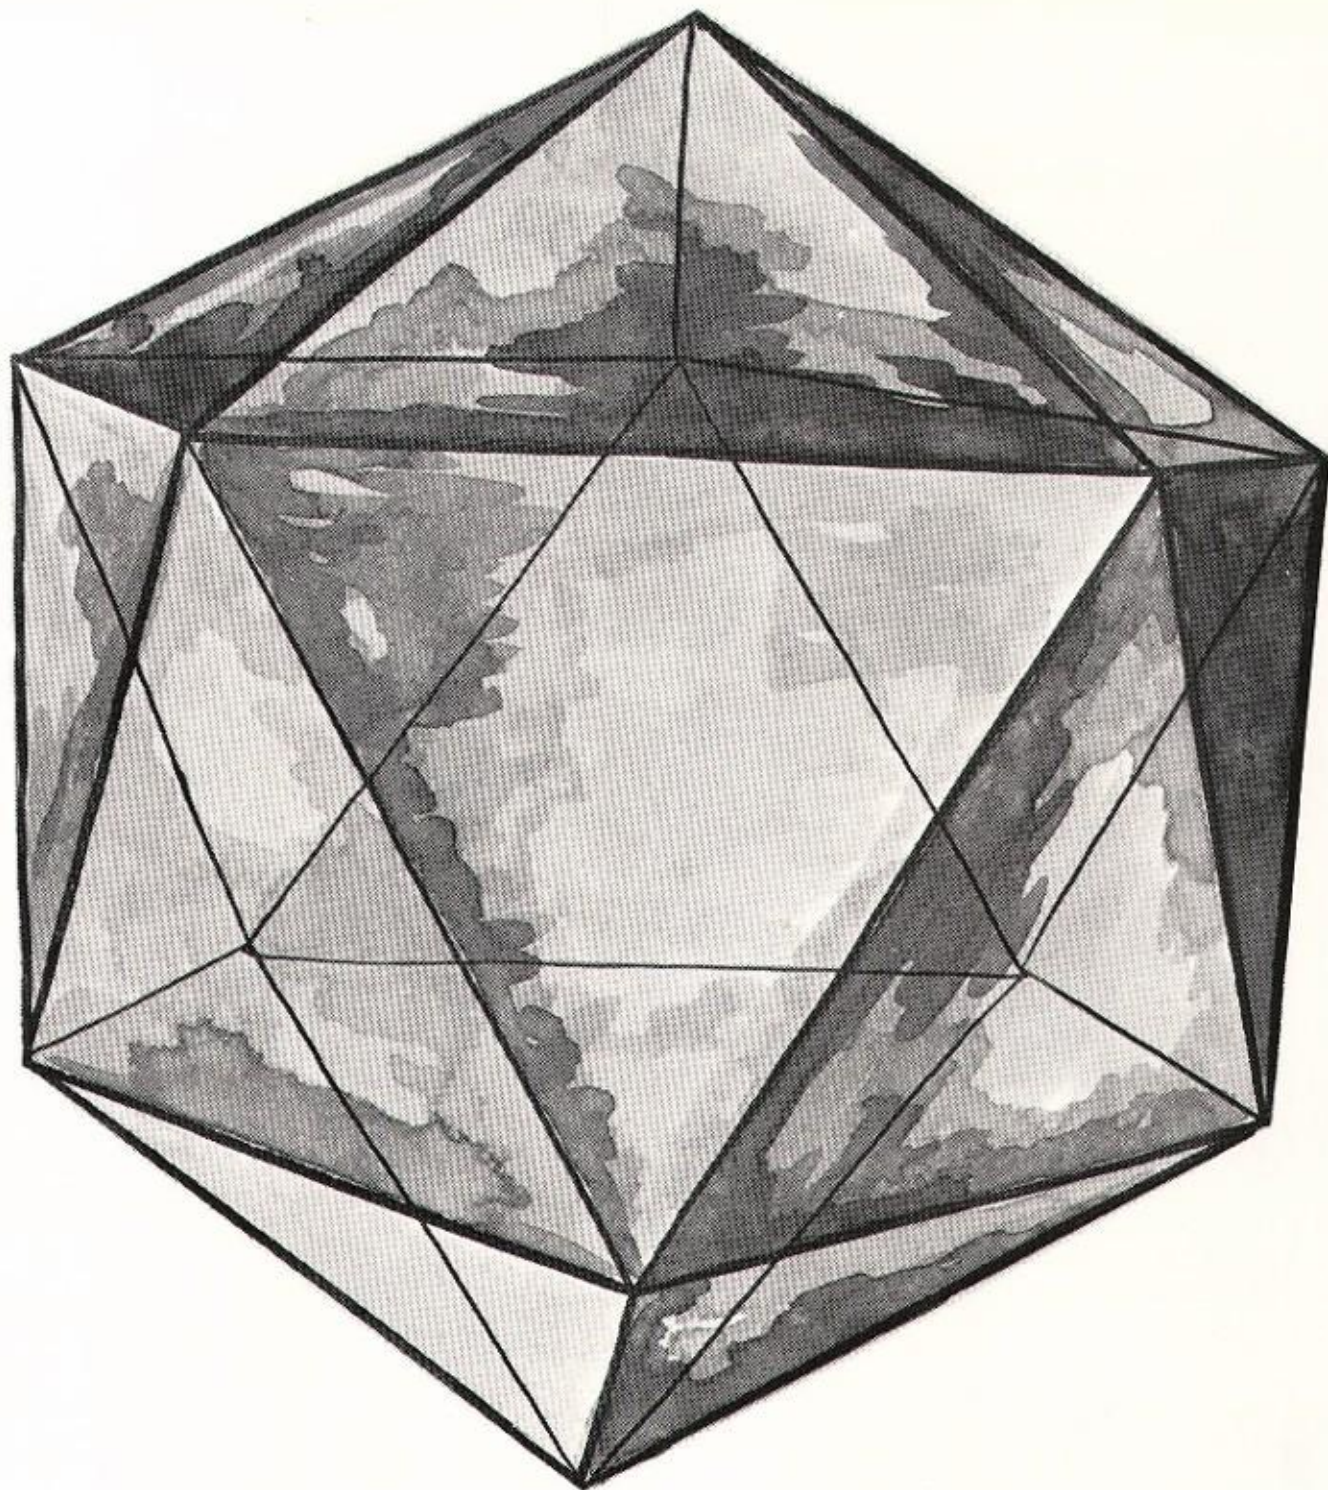

We played hard.

Basketball, volleyball, swimming, relay races, soccer, and dancing were just a few of the things taught in the p.e. classes.

Physical fitness was stressed as students performed isometric and isotonic exercises. Coordination and sheer muscular strength was shown on the balance beam as amateur gymnasts practiced.

Many swimming students went on to participate in junior and senior life-saving classes which were given after school. Many faculty members received their life-saving certificates after Mrs. Cox taught them special swimming skills.

Even though many physical education students were not members of athletic teams, physical education attempted to develop some physical skills of each student.

We had problems.

Yes, we had problems at North Putnam--general math, algebra, geometry, and trigonometry problems. This year students didn't have any answers from last year in their books, because there were new math books.

Several math pupils took the National Mathematics Test, and most scored in the fiftieth percentile.

Even though recent times has emphasized modern math, traditional arithmetic was used constantly by everyone at North Putnam. Teachers used it to average grades, home economics students measured hems, and everyone estimated how much time was left in the school year.

Math didn't have to be utilized by spacemen to be put to a good purpose at N.P.

Donna Gibson acted as office girl as she picked up absentee forms.

Mrs. Hazlett

Mr. Shahan

Mr. Myers

Mr. McClure

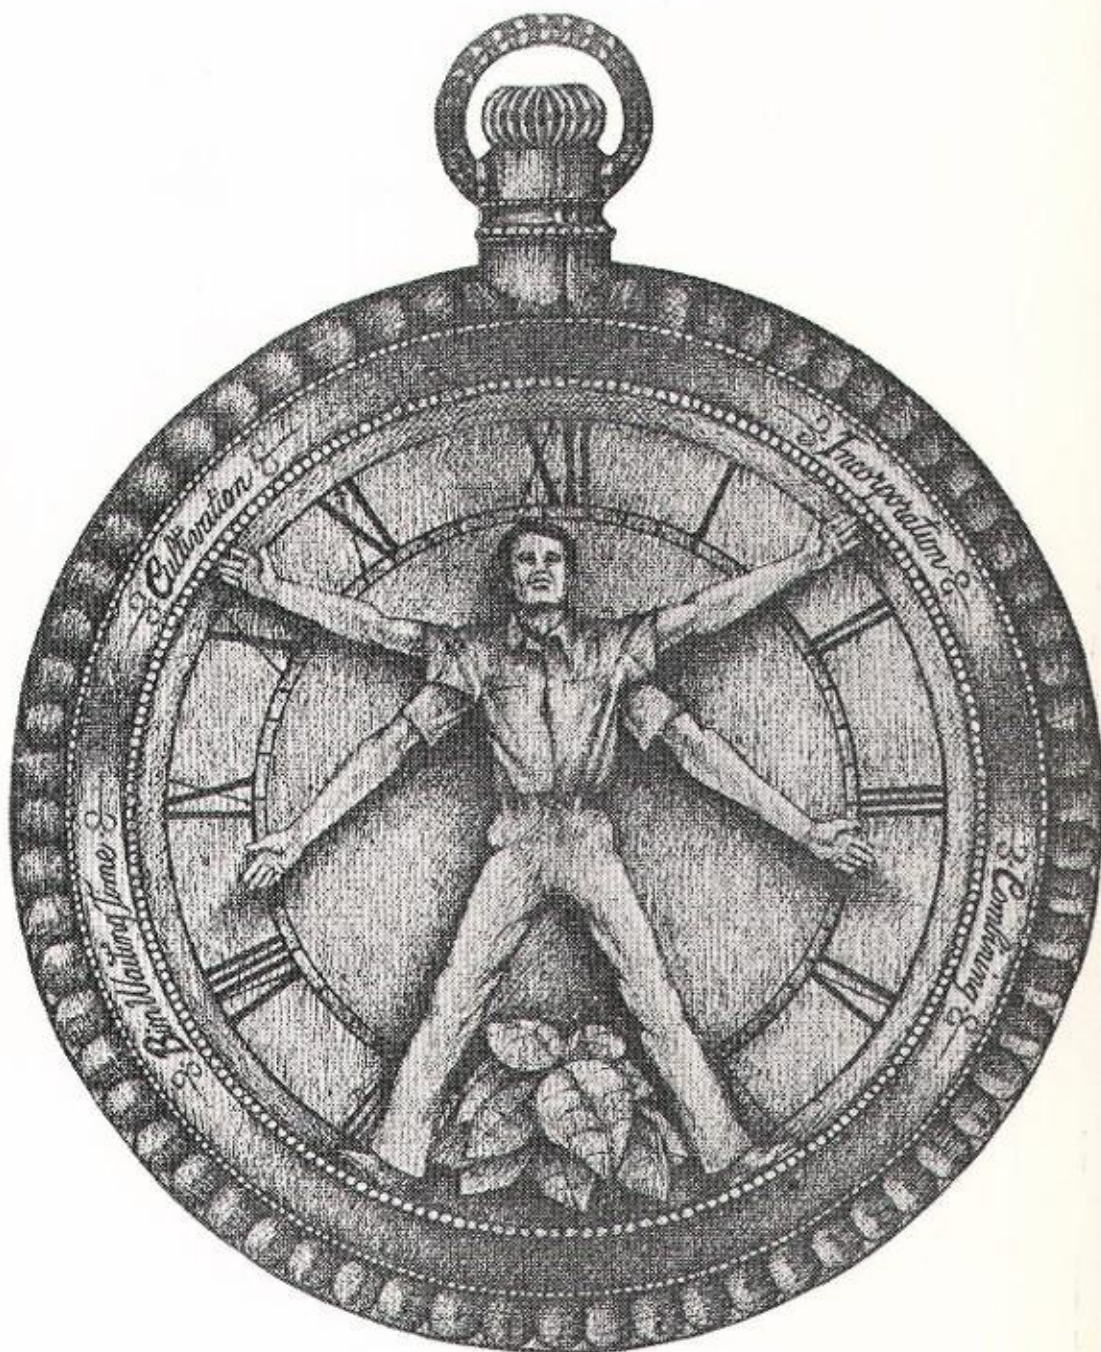

Agricultural instructor Harold Doremire taught a night class for adults interested in welding.

Gary Reeves, Darrell Goode and Dave Lawler played in the FFA German band.

We learned the science of farming.

Agriculture was not just limited to junior and senior high students at North Putnam this year. Adult education classes in agriculture and welding were taught also by Mr. Doremire.

Jerry Vaughn placed fifth out of thirty-six contestants in the National Public Speaking Contest. He also won district and state speaking contests.

Junior high students received the opportunity of learning new farming methods from planting to harvesting a crop.

Mr. Doremire

Music made a hit!

A variety of musical activities provided "something for everyone" who was interested in singing or in playing a musical instrument. The music department included band, chorus, glee club, swing choir, pep band, stage band, and general music classes.

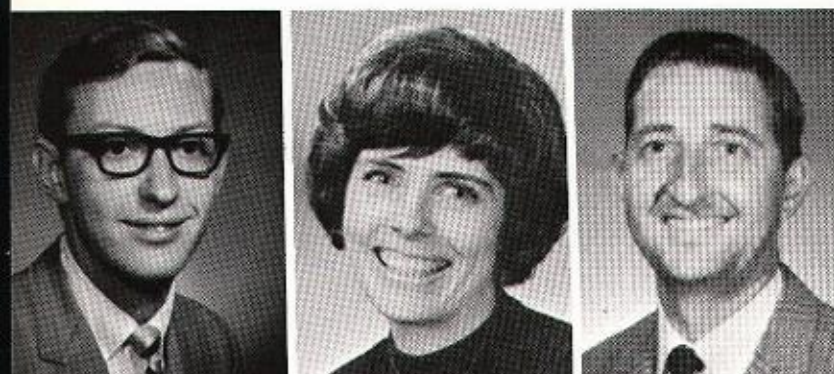

A special orchestra was organized to play the background music for the play OLIVER. Mr. Gjesvold, Mr. Wilson, and Mrs. Zenor sponsored all musical activities.

This year North Putnam's music department marched into many students' lives.

Mr. Gjesvold, assistant band director, instructed the eighth grade band members during class.

Gail South entertained the audience with a folk song at the band-sponsored show held at North Putnam High School.

Mr. Gjesvold, Mrs. Zenor, Mr. Wilson

Paul Sanders, speech contestant winner, narrated the band-sponsored variety show at school.

Mrs. Irwin

Speech promoted communication.

The speech students at North Putnam participated in many local, district, and regional speech meets. Paul Sanders won the American Oratorical Contest, and he placed second in this area's Liberty Bell Speech Contest at Ben Davis High School.

Speech class prepared many students for dramatic roles in the drama MIRACLE WORKER and the musical OLIVER. Many of these same participants also took a part in Putnam County Playhouse.

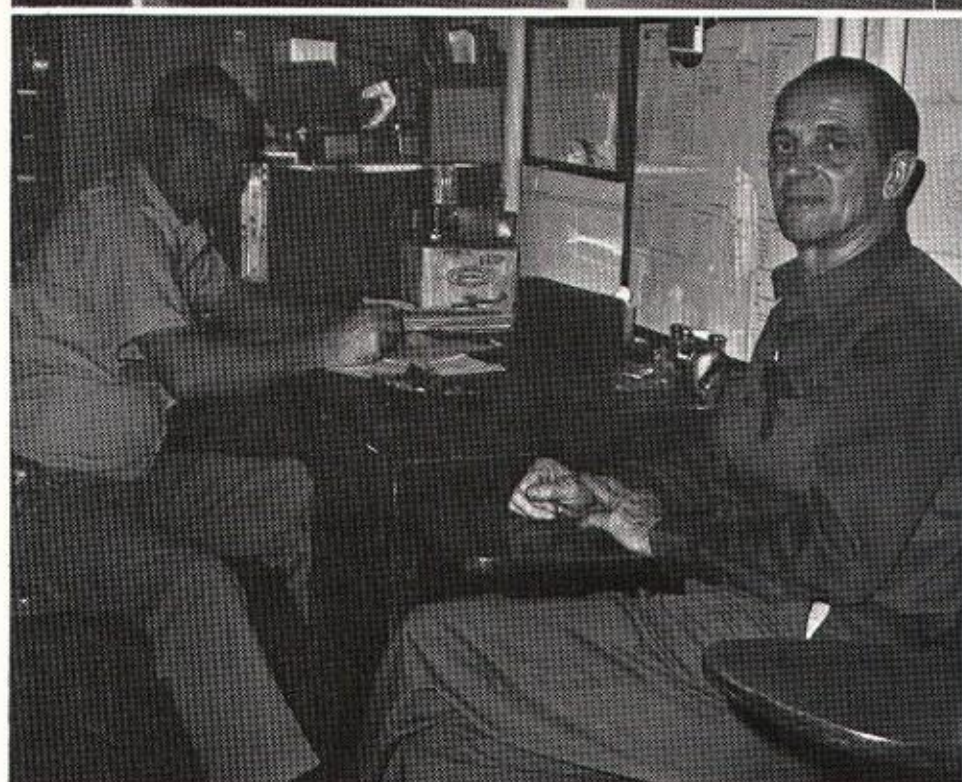

Four North Putnam students advanced to the regional speech contest in North Central. Carol Hostetter ranked high enough to compete in the state speech contest at Arlington High School. Speech meets were also held at Danville, Crawfordsville, and at Terre Haute.

Mrs. Irwin, with assistance from Mr. Summers and Mr. Bonar, performed as speech coach.

Lora Myers as the teacher Annie calmed Gail South as Helen Keller in THE MIRACLE WORKER.

Our able bookkeeper, cashier, and girl Friday was Mrs. Priest. Mrs. Goff served as receptionist, switchboard operator, and secretary. These ladies deserved many thanks for their capability

The staff worked behind the scenes.

The bus drivers, the janitors, the cooks, the school nurse, the speech therapist, and the secretaries were the special people you saw everywhere that kept things moving smoothly at North Putnam.

Bus drivers often had difficulties with their buses, but they always managed to deliver their student riders to school. Not only did the bus drivers shuttle students back and forth from home to school, but they also acted as chauffeurs to ball games, G.A.A. events, and all sorts of field trips.

Because of the volume of lunches prepared at school and the limited time element involved, it was not always possible to fix everything just the way Mother did. The cooks at North Putnam prepared an average of 500-600 meals daily. This was a large amount of food to get ready and to clean up after in just six hours. They did a good job!

Mrs. Bee, the school nurse, issued band-aids, calmed ill students, and kept the Candy Strippers busy throughout the year. The TB test, the Smoking Sam program, and the brush-in were a few programs headed by Mrs. Bee.

Our secretaries, Mrs. Goff and Mrs. Priest, filled out many admittance slips, report cards, and attendance reports. Only these women really understood the school switchboard!

After the corridors no longer rang with laughter and chatter, the janitors began some of the clean-up and repair so North Putnam could begin its day all over again tomorrow.

Mrs. Bee efficiently carried out the duties of school nurse while Mr. Loft, Mr. Raymann, (not shown) Mr. Gibbs, and Mr. Osborne performed janitorial duties. Jim Summers was in charge of maintenance.

Those ever-willing-to-bus-students-anywhere drivers were S. Chilcote, C. Earley, P. McGaughey, Mr. Martin, H. Price, R. Cox, J. Wright, J. Parker, W.

Albin, and P. Collett. Sometimes the buses were late during bad weather, but they usually got there.

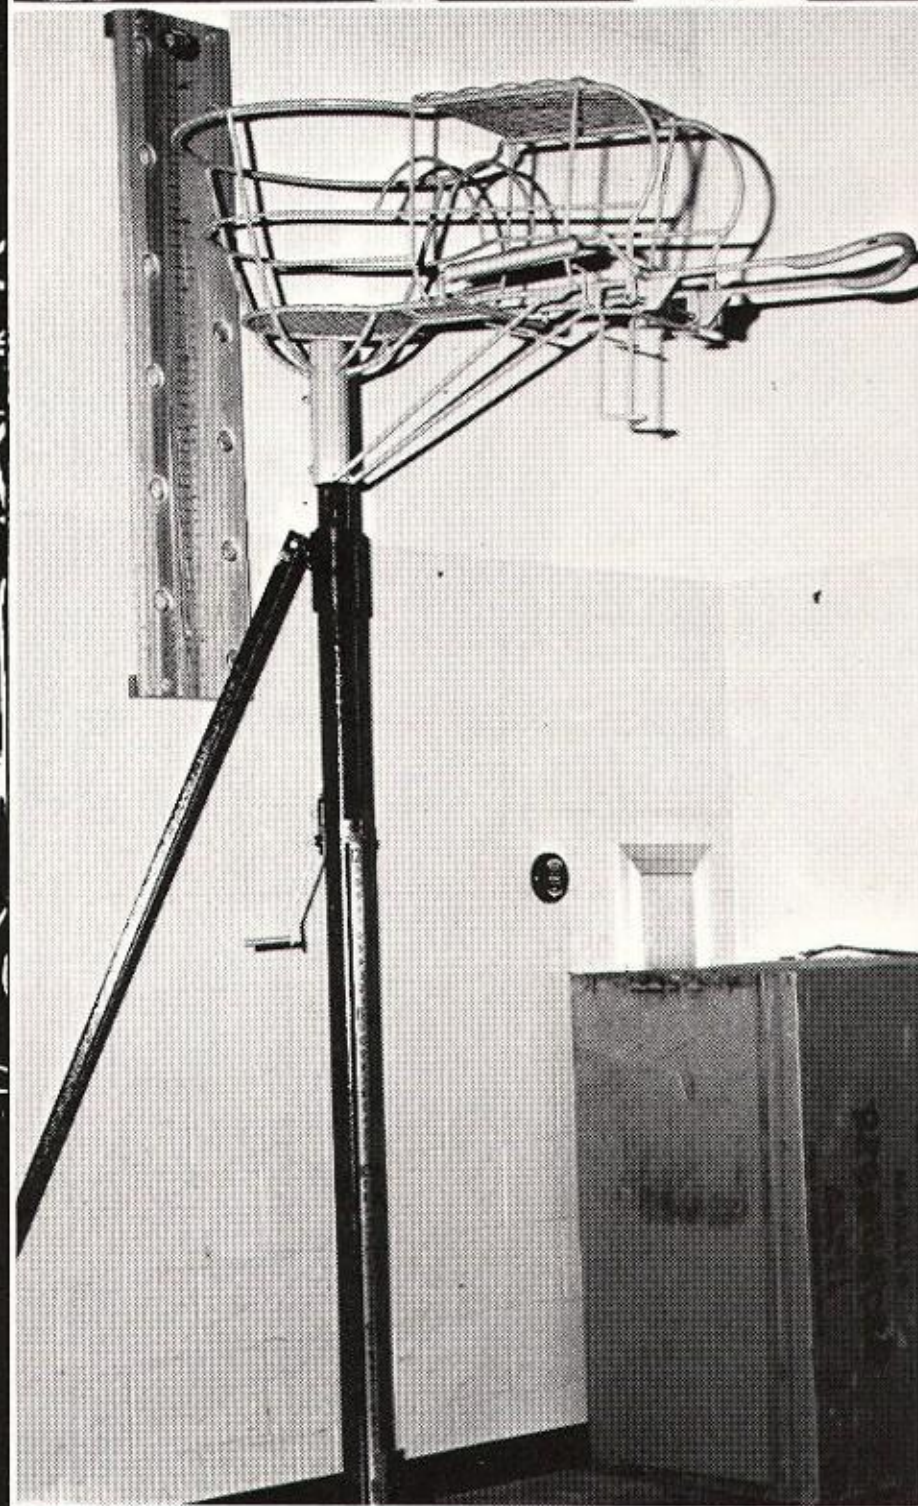

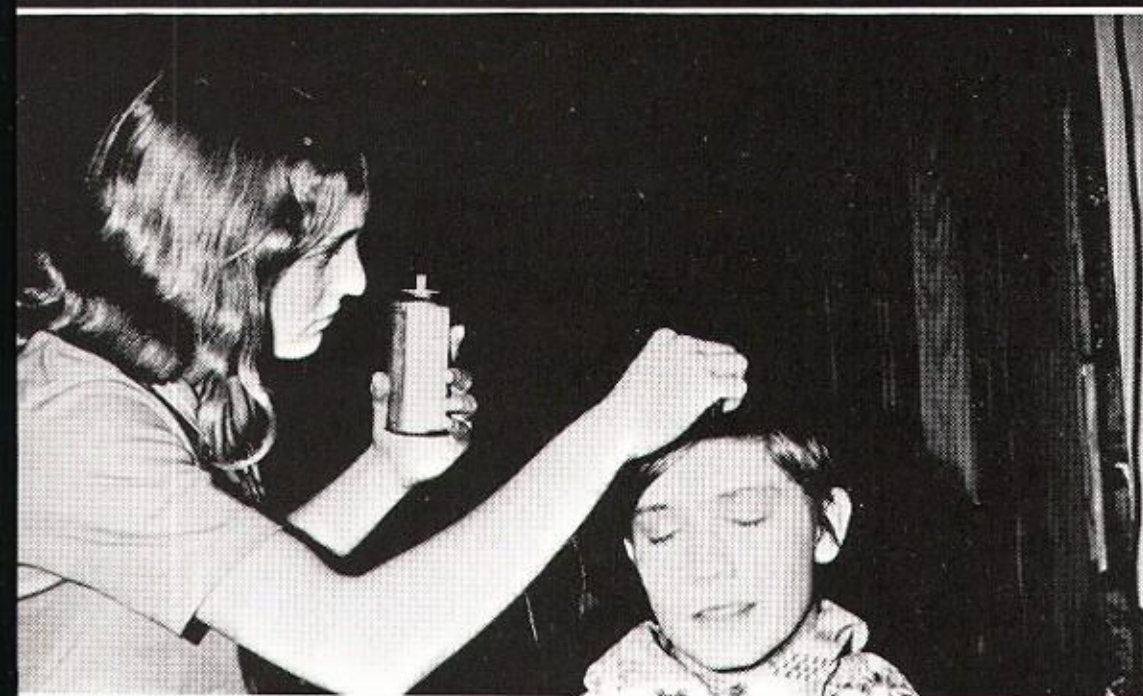

Heading the cooking department were Al-leze Reed, dietician Geneva Cloncs, Ma-donna Elliott, Charlene Clifford, Mabel Hart, Darlene Everts, Bonnie Berry, Geraldine Smiley, and June Guyer. Mother never had so much to do in her kitchen!

Lunch line always included hungry boys!

We are but an extension of others.

ACTIVITIES

Student Council members were Ken Carrington, Anita Walters, Steve Goff, Dave Weber, Phillip Reed, Patti Ferguson, Carol Hostetter, Rusa Rooker, Loretta Miles, Charlie Riggle, Julie Frazier, Penny Allen, Cathy Miles, and Rhonda Chaplain.

Randy Dozier and Linda Burdine began decorating the Christmas tree in the school cafeteria.

We governed.

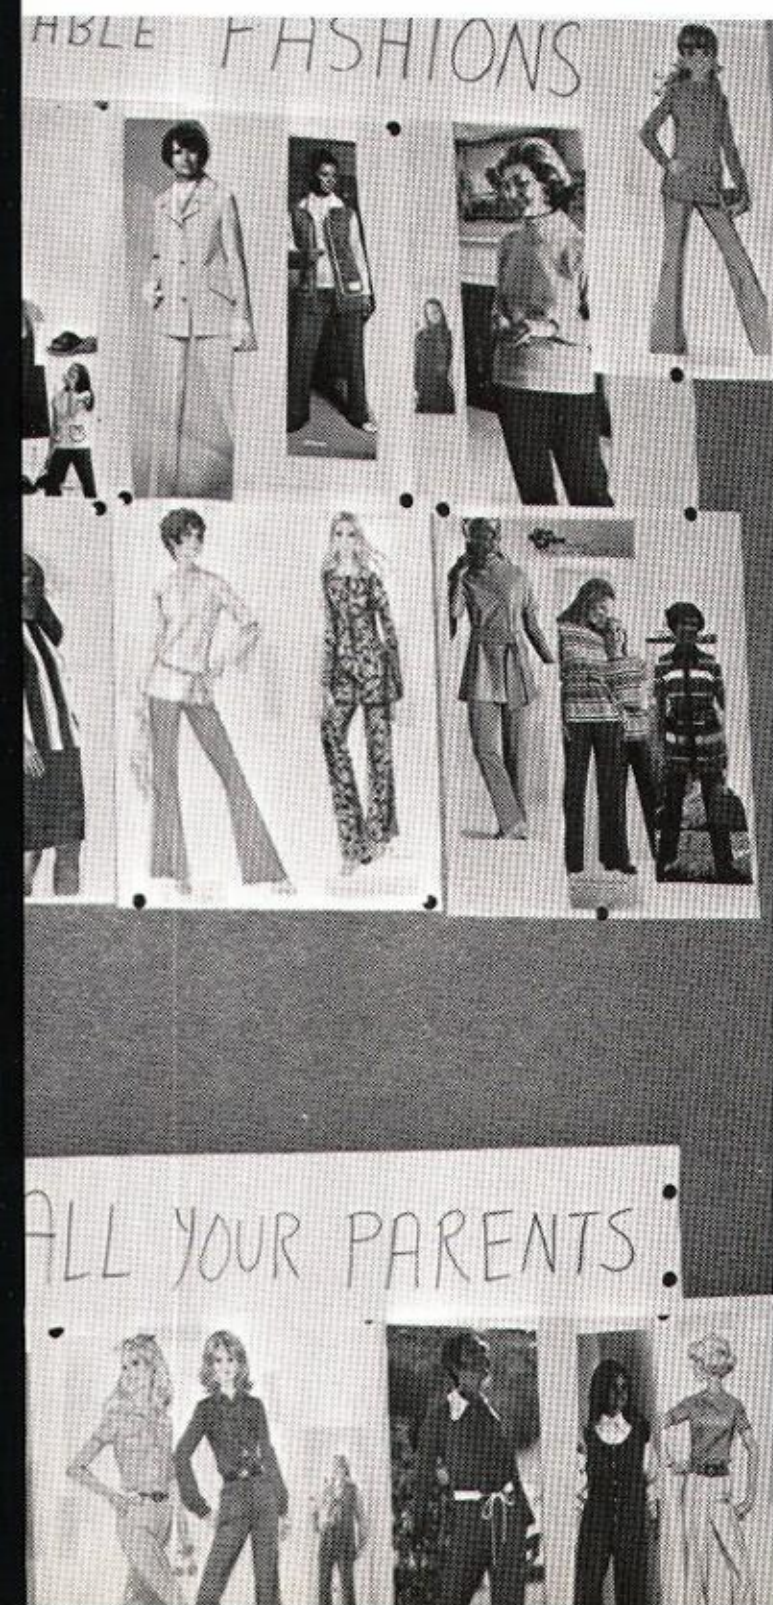

The Student Council paved the way for future organizations to represent the student body effectively. The main goal of the council this year was to modify the dress code. In order to do this the members of the council had to negotiate with the administration and school board.

They achieved success in their action. Girls were allowed to wear pantsuits and boys were allowed a more liberal hair style. Student government can achieve goals by positive action.

Garry Hood, Paula Galloway, Doug Hedge, Herb Walters, William Peters, and Michelle Harper. Brian Smith acted as president, Rod Sharp as vice-president, Ron Moorehouse as secretary-treasurer, and Wilma Kamplain as reporter.

One of the cheerleaders, Cindy Ades, helped put up artistic decorations to "up" the school spirit.

We sought the arts.

The Art Club sponsored by Linda Daseler involved itself with several extracurricular events. The club visited the Indianapolis Museum of Art and the Lily Decorative Pavilion. Members held their own art show in collaboration with commencement exercises. Hopefully this artistic effort heightened the cultural awareness of students, faculty, and community people.

At the Ladoga Art Show awards went to William Peters, Gail Woodall, and Ron Moorehouse. Brian Smith further distinguished himself by being accepted for a college art workshop.

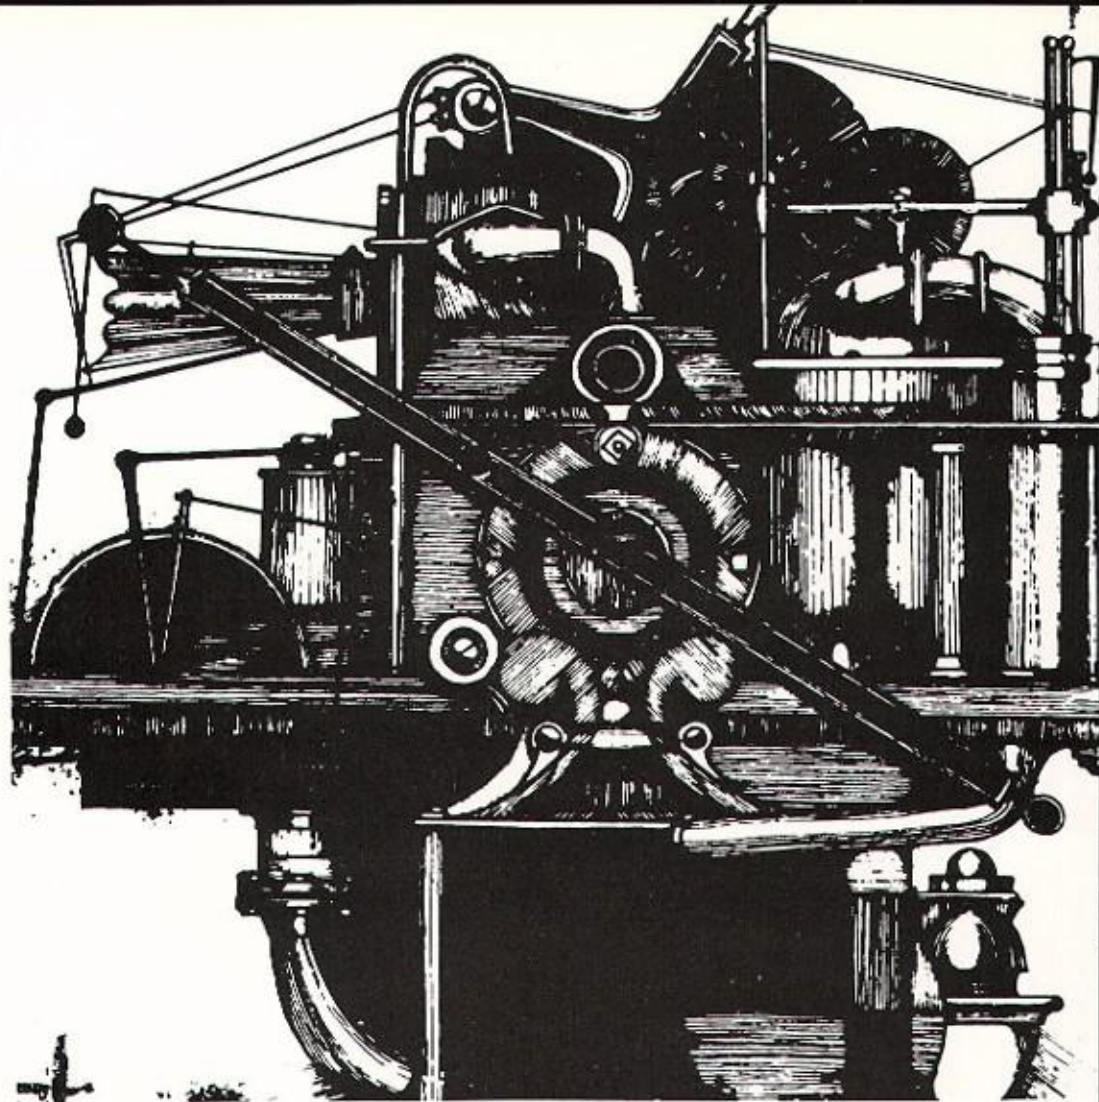

We became crafts- men of the arts.

The Industrial Arts Club, sponsored by Don Stewart, was formed rather late in the year. Therefore, their primary goal was to organize this year. This group was formed with the intention of promoting interest in the industrial arts--printing, welding, woodshop, drafting, electricity, power mechanics, and photography.

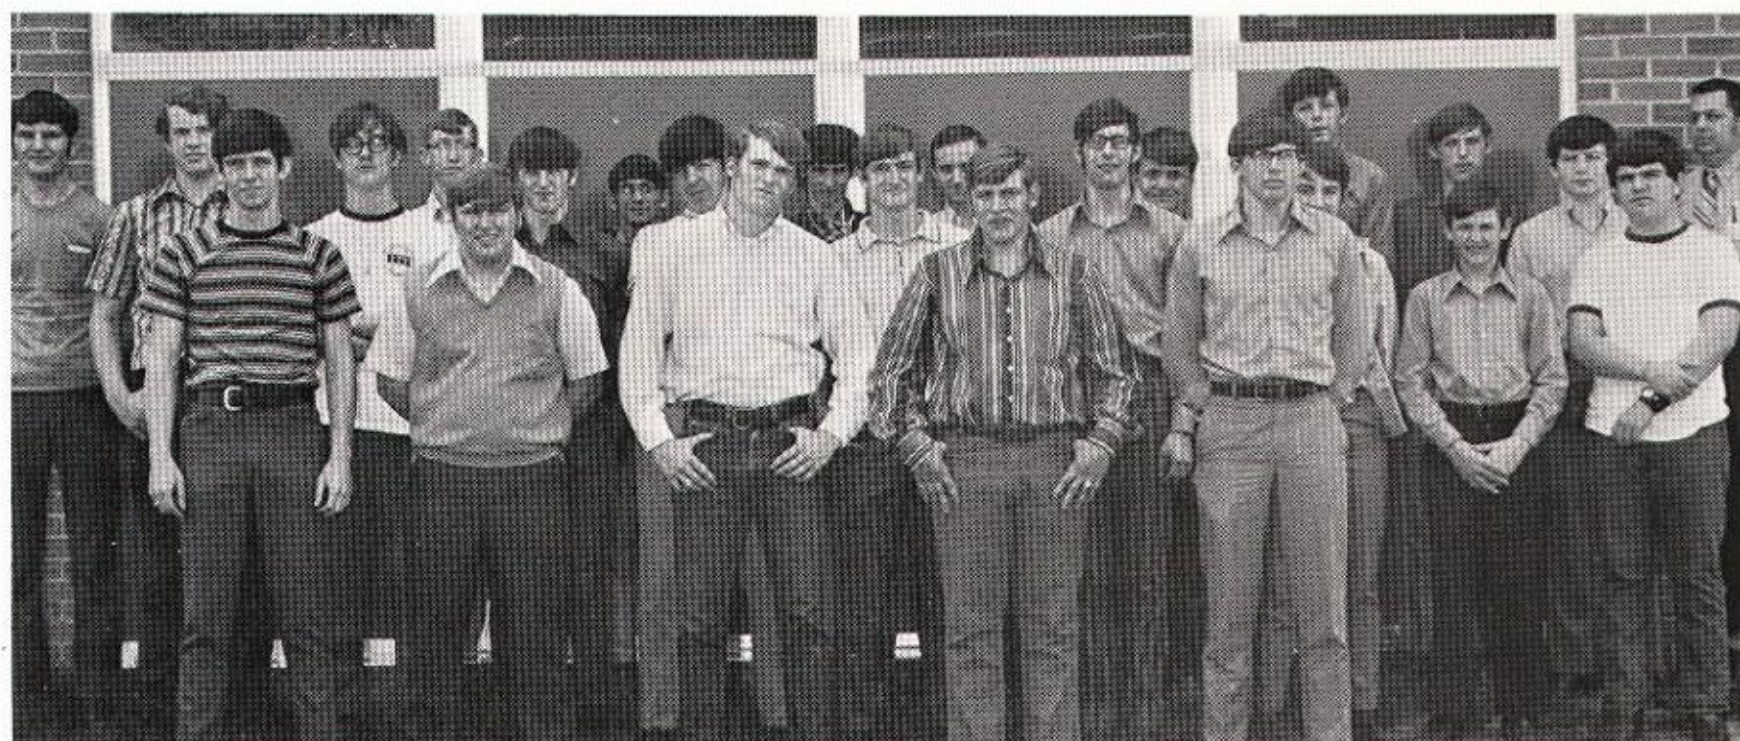

Many students who had taken industrial arts classes joined this club. They displayed posters, pictures, lamps, and other articles made by industrial arts students.

Mr. Stewart hoped that next year the club members would become especially interested in photography--especially printing and developing pictures that could be used in the annual and newspaper.

With so many members in the club at its beginning their goal will surely be achieved.

North Putnam's printing press was not as large as this example of a commercial printing press.

Sponsor Don Stewart formed a new organization, the Industrial Arts Club, rather late in the year; therefore, the club was not concerned with many projects during the school year. Many boys who had taken industrial arts classes joined this group.

Rocket Club members were (ROW 1, l. to r.) Nathan Osborne, Bill Perkins, Darrell Gossell, Fred Parker, Mike Jones, Kevin Jarvis. (ROW 2) Mike Nichols, sponsor Mr. Shahan, Bill Hill, Gary Terhune, Frank Kays, Dan Swearingen, Bill Headley, Jeff Miller. (ROW 3) Jim McGaughey, Greg Miller, Dennis Wilson, Dave Lawler, Mark Roe, and Jim Nichols.

Several rockets and missiles, both large and small, were launched by the Rocket Club.

“Ten, nine, eight, seven, six . . .”

One didn't need to be an astronaut or an aeronautical engineer to be a member of North Putnam's Rocket Club.

These interested and eager students were not satisfied to limit their activities to researching information about rocketry. These boys sent for kits and built their own rockets and missiles.

The boys owned thirty to thirty-five rockets that they purchased with their own money. They used a solid propellant (a powdered zinc and sulfur).

The club owned one large rocket--a Saturn. One rocket even had its own camera which took aerial photographs.

The Rocket Club sometimes met after school and Saturdays to launch their rockets and missiles. Since the altitude of some of these rockets reached from 600 to 2500 feet, needless to say, some were lost in the atmosphere.

The North Putnam band this year was made up of one hundred eight marching Cougars who played at football games, convos, concerts, and band contests. They always presented a good show.

The band marched.

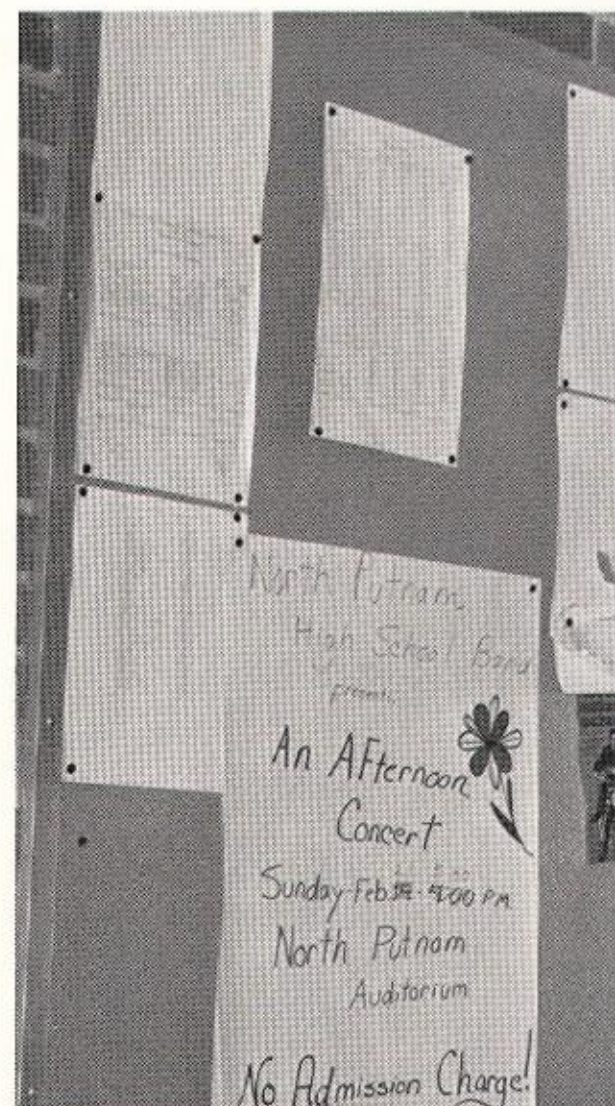

North Putnam's band was active this year in bringing several touring musical groups to the school.

An Indiana State University orchestra group demonstrated for band students various types of music, including the minuet and modern rock.

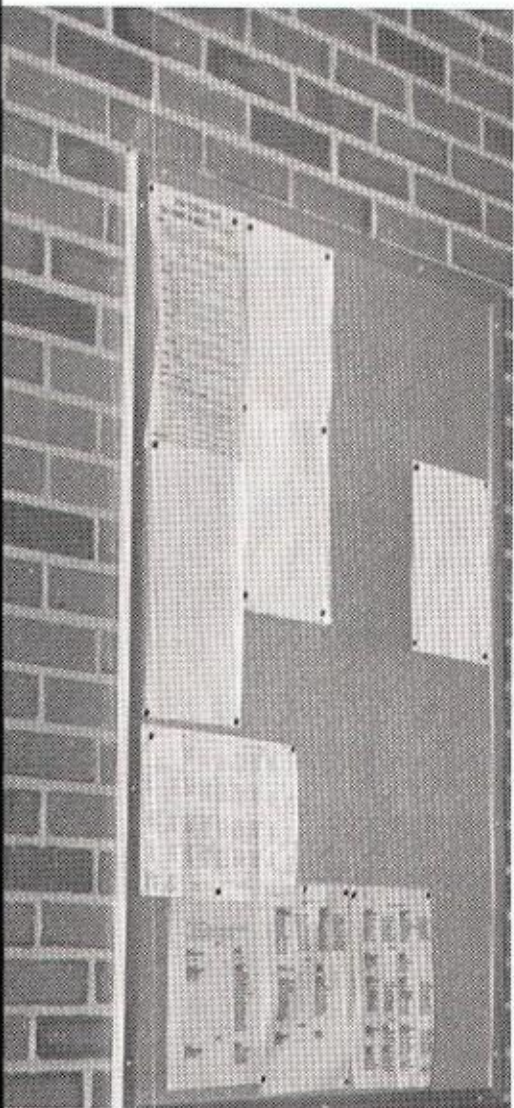

The Evansville All-City Band and Orchestra was enjoyed at a public concert and at a student convo. During the Evansville band's one night stay, North Putnam students hospitably opened their homes to the Evansville students.

A variety show was also sponsored this year by the North Putnam band. Local talent, such as folk singers and dance bands, participated in this musical show.

Mr. John Wilson and Mr. David Gjesvold deserved thanks for their efforts.

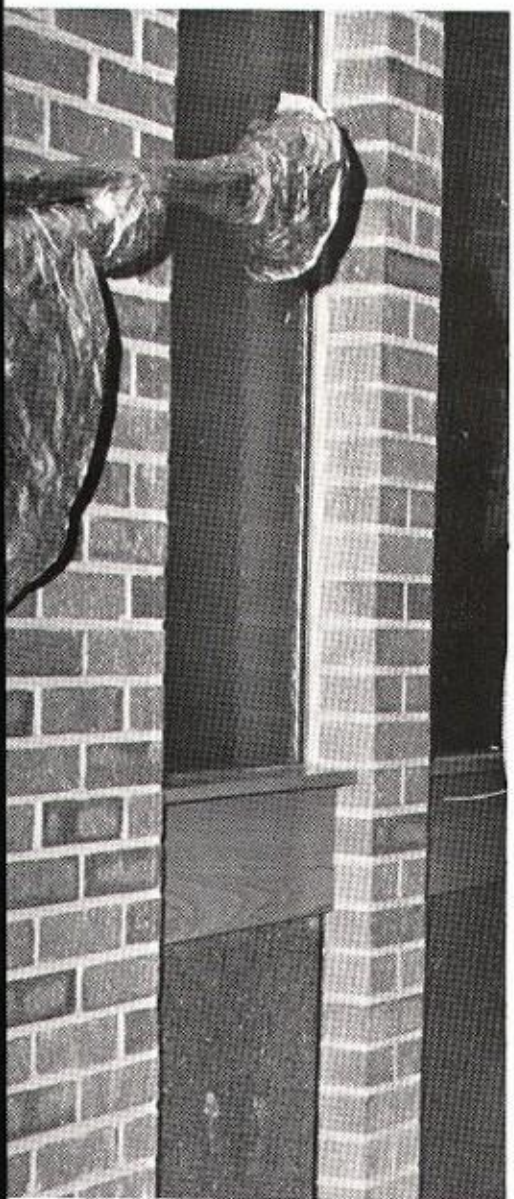

"Hark, the Herald Angels Sing" around Christmas.

The North Putnam majorettes were (SEATED) Pam Allen, Judy Fordice, Jeanna Clodfelter. (STANDING) Rachel Webb, Linda Everman, Cindy Goff, Tracy Etcheson, Linda Craft.

Dennis Robbins was drum major and Judy Fordice was majorette captain.

Emily Kromer, music student teacher, played the marimba at the variety show.

(Top) Members of the Stage Band were P. Barton, D. Ardelean, M. Clodfelter, D. Robbins, J. Smith, B. Smith, D. White, K. Wilson, R. Zenor, C. Hostetter, B. Sutherlin, K. Miller, P. Everman, D. Frazee, K. Carrington, and G. Miller. Pep Band participants were (l. to r., ROW 1) Mr. Wilson, J. Hill, D. Ardelean, M. Clodfelter, D. Siner, P. Allen. (ROW 2) J. Smith, D. White, D. Robbins, P. Barton, B. Sample. (ROW 3) B. Smith, G. Evans, G. Miller, R. Cope, T. Carr. (ROW 4) K. Carrington, K. Miller, P. McBride, M. McGuire, D. Frazee. (ROW 5) D. Lawler, R. Zenor, D. Danberry, S. Evans, D. Wilson, and G. Nichols.

Music student David Frazee practiced his song.

Music groups swing in time.

The Pep Band, Stage Band, and Swing Choir participated in many extracurricular events. The Pep Band, directed by Mr. Wilson, kept very busy being "super boosters" of North Putnam's Cougar basketball team. They also fired up spirit at student pep sessions.

The Stage Band, led by Mr. Gjesvold, played for student dances. It also participated in the state stage band contest at Ben Davis High School. North Putnam's Stage Band won first place.

The Swing Choir, sponsored by Mrs. Zenor, sang for clubs and their activities, school affairs, and other organizations. Practices were held after school.

These three activities took up much time and effort on the part of teachers and students involved. Much practice went into perfecting the "sound" of each group. Undoubtedly the students who took part learned a great deal about music and its niche in modern culture.

The members of the Swing Choir were (SEATED) Jana Porter, sponsor Malinda Zenor, Bev McFarland, Joyce Hill, Roy Zenor, Greg Evans, Dennis Robbins. (STANDING) Mike Reed, May Phillips, Dave Berry, Greg Richard, Steve Goff, Scot Evens, Cindy South, Carol Hostetter, Jeretta Baker, Toni Johnson, and Cindy Goff. This group performed for many community affairs and school-related events.

FFA won many awards.

The Future Farmers of America attended many contests, both district and state. They were involved in the parliamentary procedure, essay, talent, impromptu speaking, public speaking, and freshman creed contests.

Jerry Vaughn and James Rayfield won the Hoosier Farmer degrees. Besides winning the state public speaking contest, Jerry Vaughn placed fifth out of thirty-six in the National Public Speaking Contest. He also received a scholarship last summer to the State FFA Public Speaking Workshop.

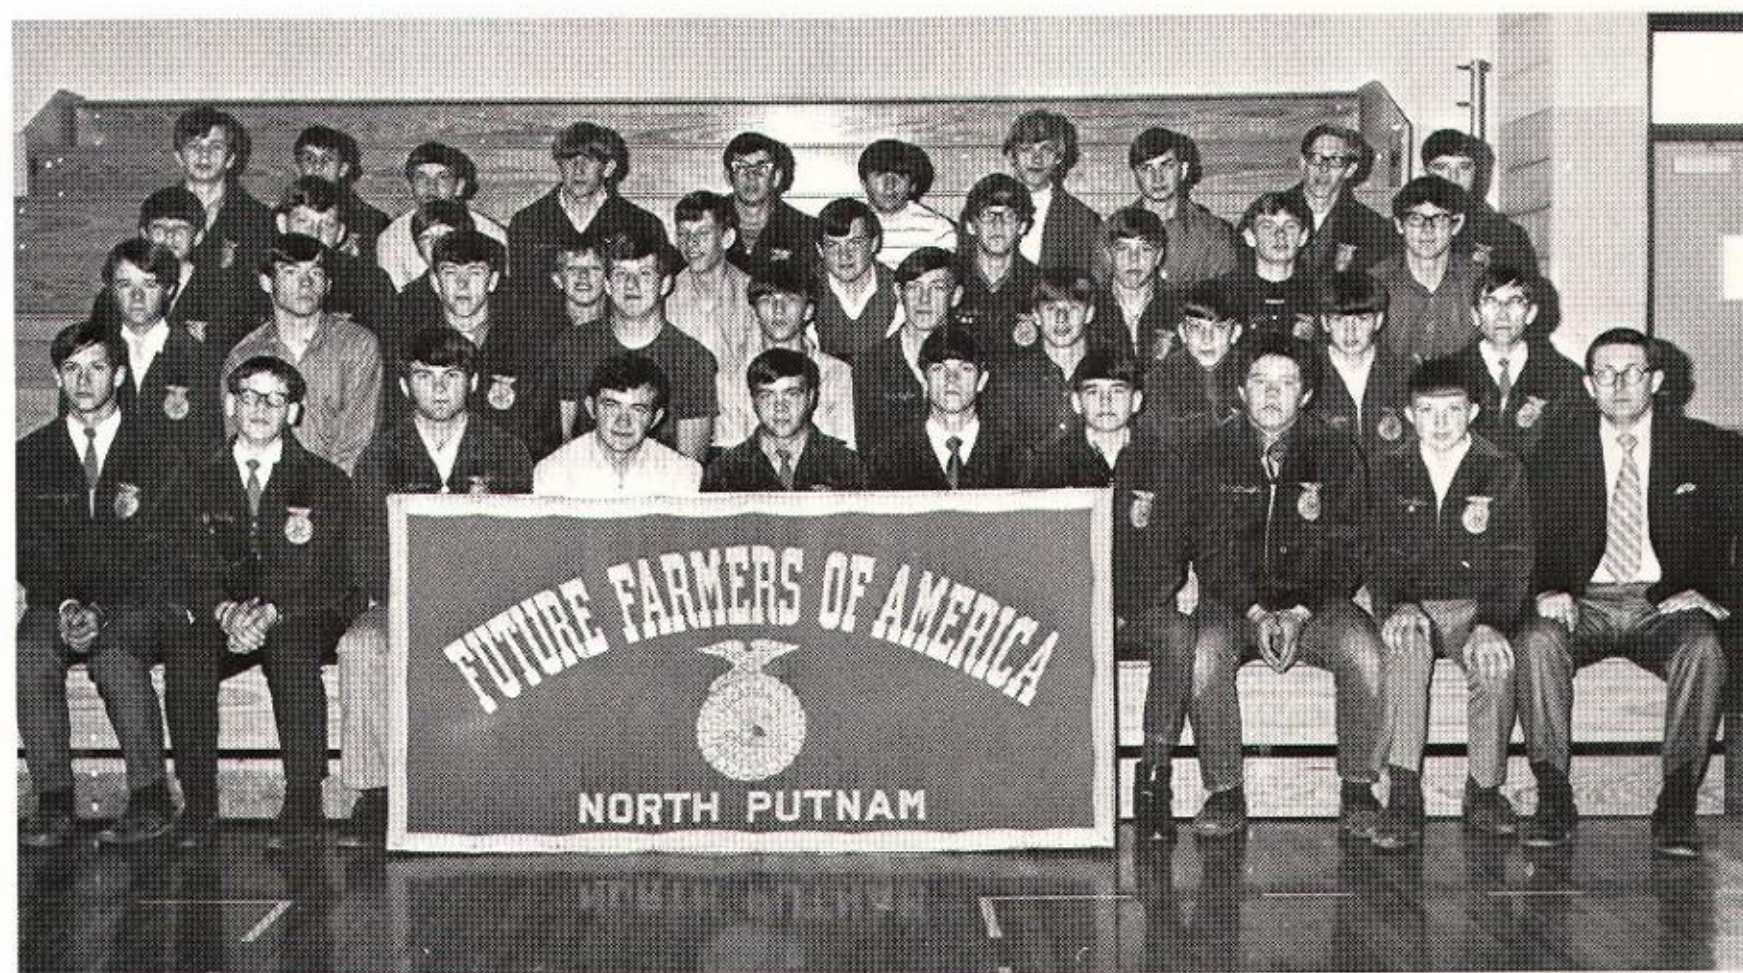

The FFA-FHA spring dance was a combined effort of the Future Farmers of America and the Future Homemakers of America.

The district FFA banquet at which awards were given to winners of district contests was held at Terre Haute.

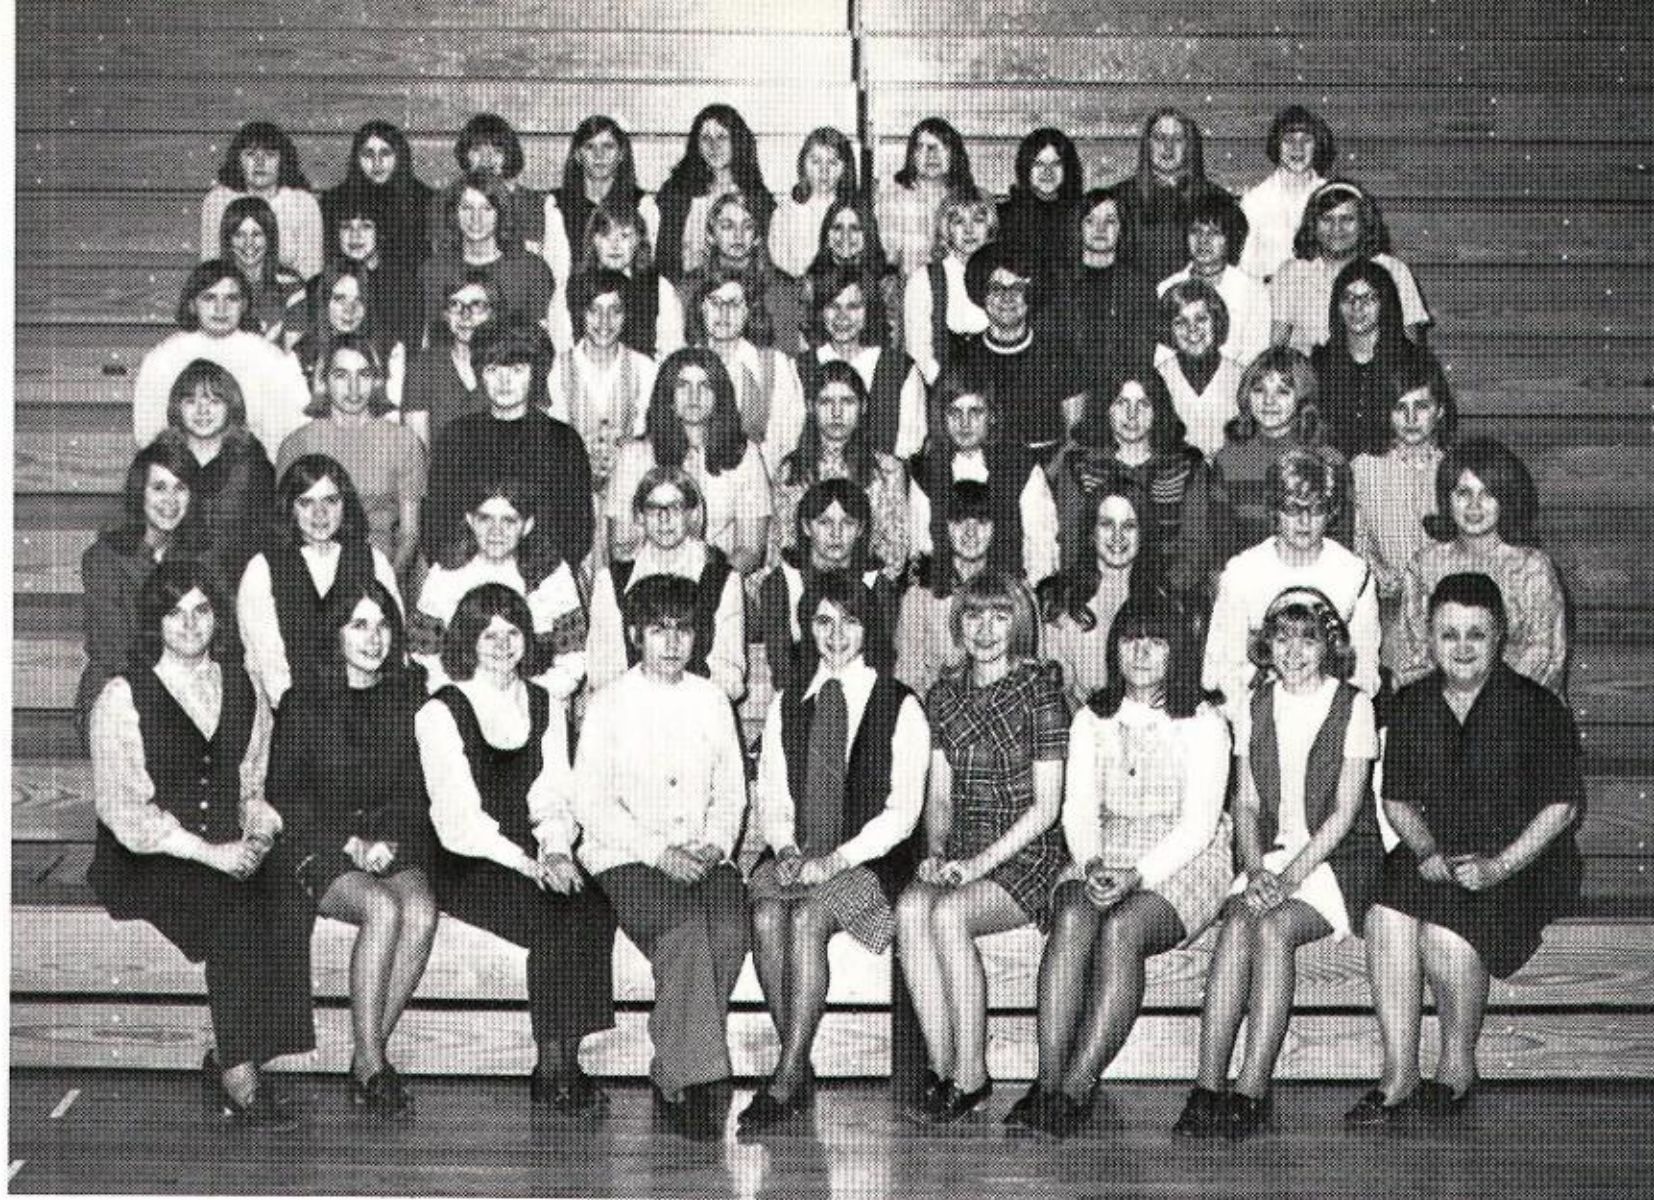

The year's activities were ended at the traditional FFA Father-Son Banquet held at North Putnam.

(Top) Jerry Vaughn won the district Star award. Ron Proctor and Ted McGaughey played cards at the FFA-FHA spring dance at school.

Mrs. McFarland, N. Ader, Mrs. Steward, D. Goode, and B. McFarland presided at the punch table.

FHA was involved in many activities.

The Future Homemakers of America were involved in several new activities this year. They sponsored a Cougar Legs contest during the basketball season. The "prettiest" pair of legs belonging to a Cougar basketball player was chosen, and the winner was Ron Lambermont.

FHA members worked in ball game concessions, and their sponsor, Mrs. Steward, managed the concessions.

In connection with home economics and FHA an ESP fashion show sponsored by Simplicity Patterns entertained junior and senior high girls.

Cathy O'Hair was elected FHA state president.

The climax of FHA activities was the FFA-FHA dance held in the spring at school.

Beverly McFarland and Jerry Vaughn were crowned queen and king of the FFA-FHA spring dance.

The Math Club was Dennis Robbins, Don Watson, Nelson Ford, Jeff Blaydes, Ken Carrington, Kirby Bushong, Rick Adams, Steve Goff, Tracy Etcheson, Anita Perkins, Donetta Ardelean, Chris Stoker, Doug White, Tim Carr, Lora Myers, Pam Allen, Donna Malayer, Carol Davis, Sandy Evans, Kathy Fitzsimmons, Mr. Myers, Lora Keeney, Linda Craft, Deanna Robers, Deanna McGaughey.

Lora Myers and Dave Weber as Mr. and Mrs. Bumble sang a duet in OLIVER.

Problems were fun.

The Math Club, sponsored by Jim Myers, instilled and promoted interest in mathematics beyond the scope of the classroom.

This year several lectures were given on the history of mathematics. Recreational math was delved into as members worked mathematical puzzles and novelty games.

Experiments in probability were conducted during Math Club meetings. This club showed students the practical sides of the world of math and also the entertaining facets of it.

Eighty North Putnam students starred in the spring musical OLIVER. Mike Reed was cast in the lead.

Oliver (Mike Reed) was locked in a coffin to be taught a lesson. Mr. Bumble (Dave Weber) punished him as the Sowerberrys (Claudia Tracy, Bruce Sutherlin, Randy Long, Marsha Solomon) watched.

Thespians acted.

"Dearest Cast,

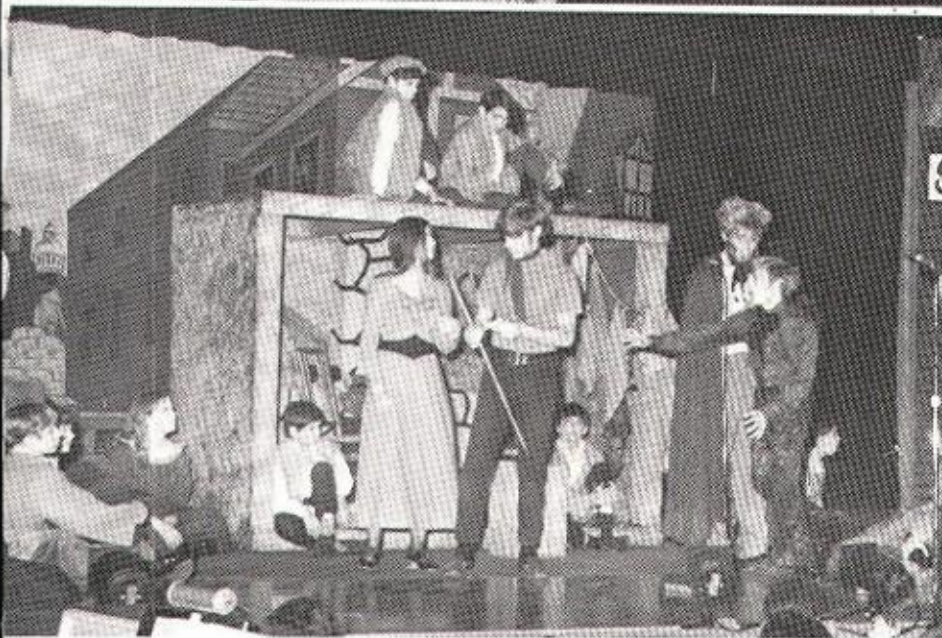

After lying dazed upon my living room floor trying to find one good thing that happened last night at rehearsal, I finally thought of one--the phones work."

Letters from the directors to the cast often seemed discouraging to the students involved in one of North Putnam's plays, but magically they seemed to pull themselves together after reading such a note. They became "alive" and presented the audience a realistic portrayal of Helen Keller's childhood in MIRACLE WORKER for their fall production.

"Stage presence--besides the upstage foot, upstage gesture, and cheating to the audience, the good actor is a member of an ensemble. He contributes to a total effort. In amateur theatre his energy and enthusiasm completely envelope his audience."

Surely the cast of the musical OLIVER worked as a team to present the plight of the orphaned boy Oliver Twist. From workhouse to thieves' den Oliver's tragedy deepened until he was rescued by a wealthy gentleman and one of the thieves' girl friends.

Encores were in order for the North Putnam Thespian troupe this year.

Carol Hostetter and Darrell Chambers robbed Mike Reed as Greg Evans as Fagin watched.

Mr. Bonar sponsored North Putnam's Spanish Club. A trip to Mexico was offered for any of them.

This was a little bit of Spain at N.P.

Spanish Club members Jane Adamson and Janice McCullough won the Simon Bolivar awards this year. Carol Hostetter was the recipient of the Jose de San Martin award. These honors were bestowed upon these students because of high academic achievements.

The most exciting news for some of the Spanish Club members was the bus tour to be taken to Mexico during June. The group was to visit the Floating Gardens, the pyramids, and Mexico City.

Dave Berry, Latin Club member, donned his toga for the Roman Banquet at school.

Junior Classical League members numbered many. These students were active in many club activities.

Mr. Miller, Queen Clodfelter, King Carrington, and Miss Hinman paused before eating.

Darrell Chambers performed the slave ritual.

Lethia Myers, Mrs. Hostetter, and Mrs. Clodfelter were served by slave Shelley Green.

JCL were Roman?

The Junior Classical League of North Putnam was in charge of nominations for state officers at the state convention. Sandy Evens was chairman this year, and Lora Myers will take that job in 1971-72.

The JCL also had a Christmas party as well as their traditional Roman Banquet, slaves and all.

The Latin I award went to Kim Wilson. Latin II awards were presented to Lora Myers and Charles Simpson, and the Latin III award recipient was Douglas White.

We pepped things up!

THE PEP BLOCK

The pep block this year was literally beside itself, that is there were two pep blocks--the girls' block and the boys' block.

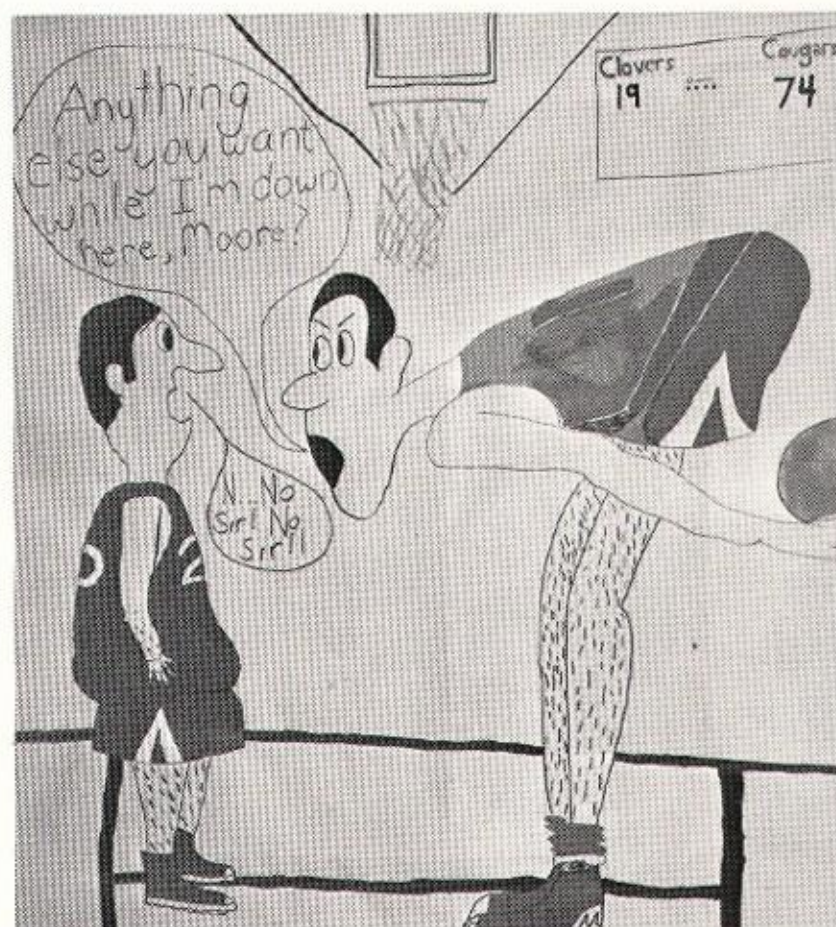

Although the boys' pep block was not created until late in the season, Ron Proctor and Mike Alderson, the block organizers, did a fantastic job of putting the block in order for the Cloverdale game and for the tourney.

The girls' block did a great cheering job throughout the season. They backed the varsity Cougars to many victories in the 1970-1971 season.

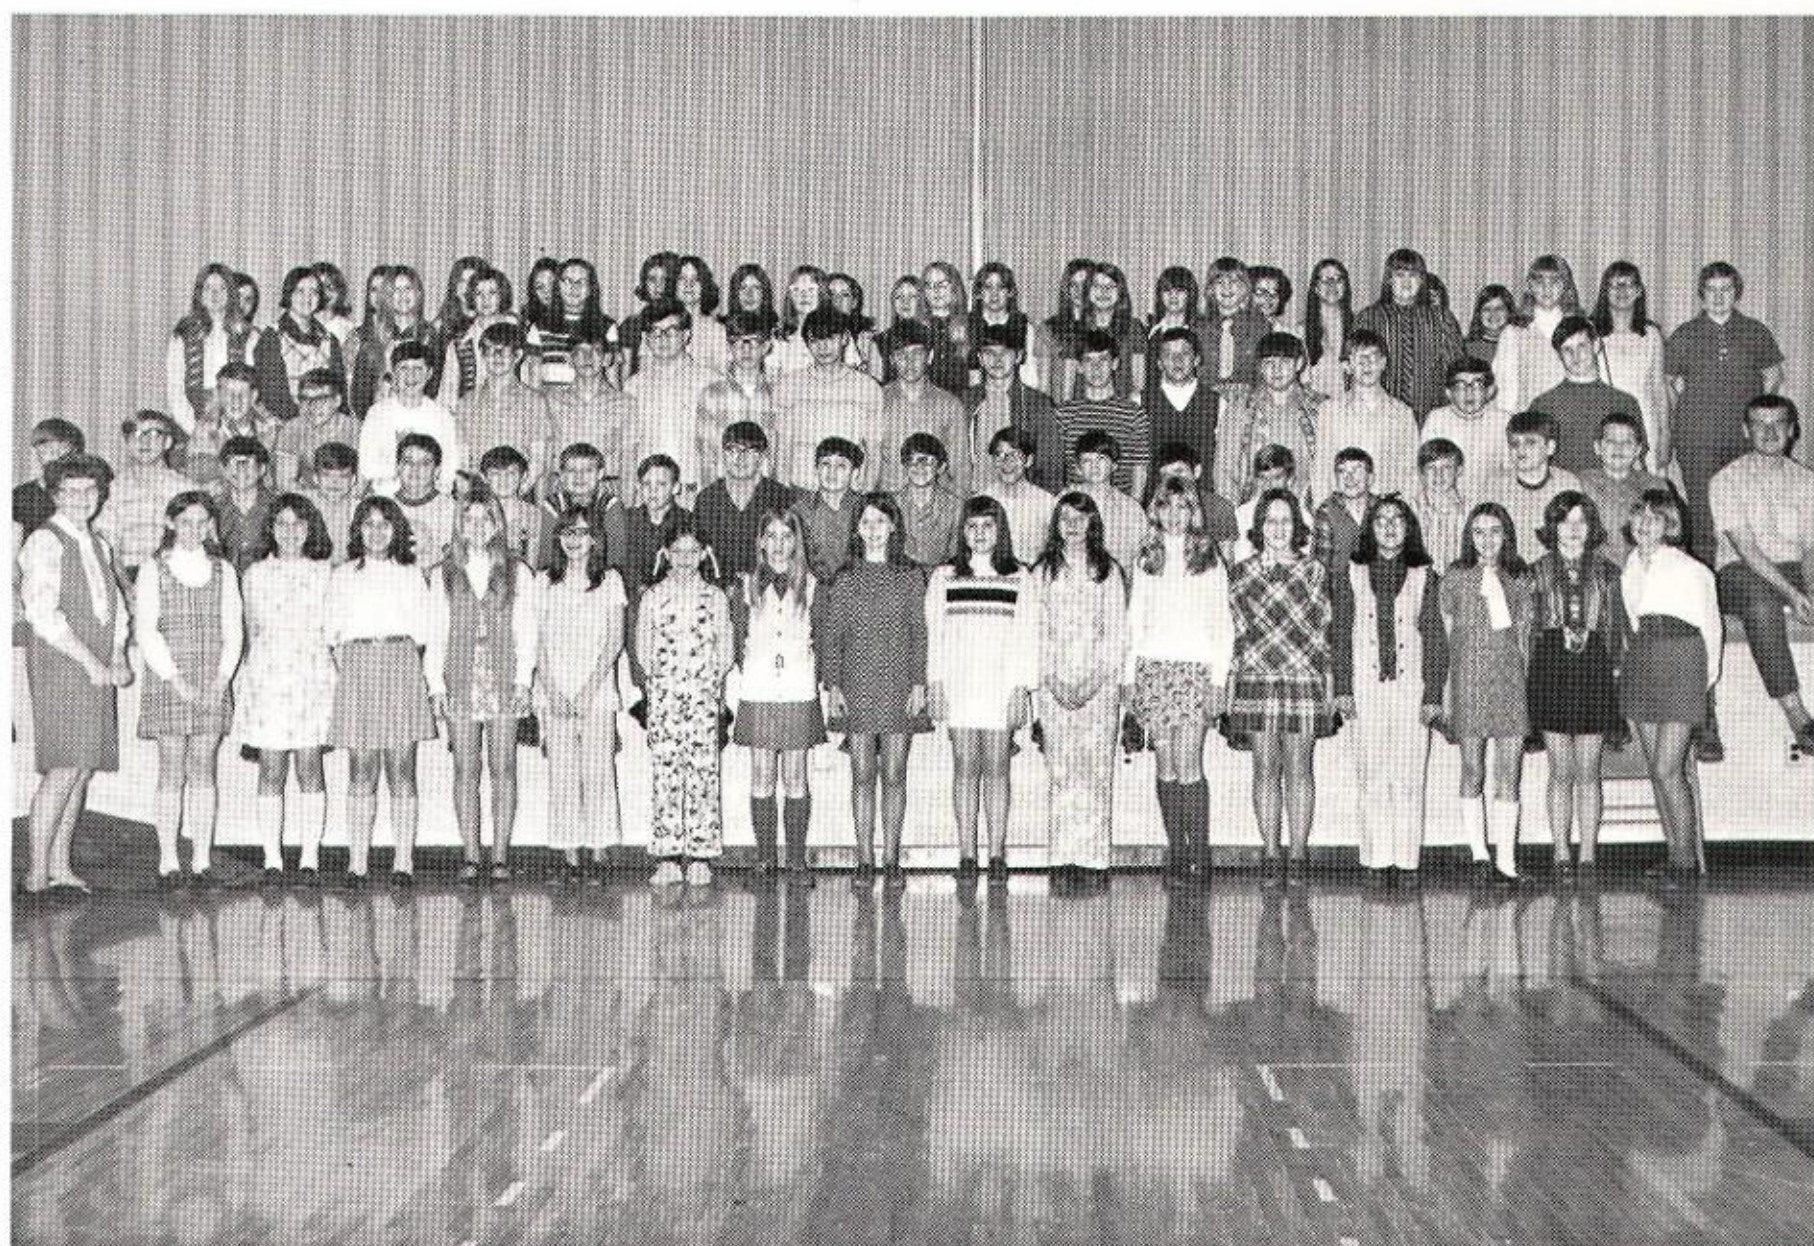

The girls' new uniforms this year were blue with orange trim while the boy's uniforms were tie-dyed orange and blue.

Pep Club members yelled their hearts out on the way to a Cougar victory at sectional time.

Class posters sparked enthusiasm and school spirit during the basketball season, especially during the sectional and regional.

Approximately eighty junior high students composed the Junior Historical Club at North Putnam.

History opened up new worlds.

History was often learned first-hand by the Junior and Senior Historical Societies. The Junior Historical Society visited Vincennes and New Harmony. The George Rogers Clark Memorial was seen and the experiment in communal living at New Harmony was investigated.

Claudia Tracy, a member of the Senior Historical Society, was elected to a state office.

The project for the Junior Historical Society state convention was entitled "Our Astronauts." Pupils constructed facsimiles of rockets, researched the kind of foods eaten in space, and delved into all phases of space travel. They won third place for their exhibit at the state historical convention at Indianapolis.

The members of the Senior History Club were (FRONT ROW, l. to r.) Bill Wise, Gene Pingleton. (ROW 2) President Roy Zenor, Treasurer, Bill Berry, Vice President, Trudi Boswell, Secretary Rusa Rooker, Gary Morlan, Randy Burton, Diane Miller, sponsor Mrs. VanVactor. (ROW 3) Jim Robertson, Don Moorehouse, Mark French, Jim Lambermont, Joy Rayfield, Carolyn Davis, and Becky Cox.

This year Mrs. Zenor taught only in the elementary schools, so the direction of the chorus and glee club was turned over to Mr. Wilson and Mr. Gjesvold.

These two groups were the vocal part of the Christmas convocation held for the students. They sang traditional and religious Christmas music.

Every Tuesday and Thursday vocal chords would be limbered up as that high note was about to be reached.

Please sing louder!

Members of the Glee Club were (ROW 1) Mary Haulk, Martha Porter, Darlene Smiley, Debbie Shillings, Dorothy Dean, Paula Miller, Kathy Crosby, Sherri Stoker, Angie Thompson, Pam Clampitt, Pam Allen, Martha Plunkett, Beth Sample. The members of the Chorus were (ROW 1) J. Baker, S. Brookshire, C. South, M. Bridges, N. Robinson, M. Osburn, D. James, B. McFarland. (ROW 2) P. Brackney, J. Roth, J. Hill, V. Dockery, S. Knapp, D. Donna Gibson and Debbie Boswell talked about boys and dates before class.

Duane Kiger, Cynthia and Sondra Jones watched a game.

We checkmated our opponents.

Sponsored by Mr. Bonar, the North Putnam boys enjoyed the gentleman's "brain" game--chess. The students spent much of their free time after school learning the rules of chess and the art of strategy.

The Chess Club scheduled several meets. They defeated Greencastle.

Again this year the team entered the state chess tournament at Indianapolis.

Karen Steele made a lay-up shot for North Putnam in the Greencastle basketball game.

GAA was active.

Girls' Athletic Association kept physically fit this year. The girls were so involved in GAA activities that everyone kept trim and slim. During the fall Karen Steele, Debbie App, and sponsor Mrs. Cox learned a great deal about physical education at a leadership camp at North Webster, Indiana.

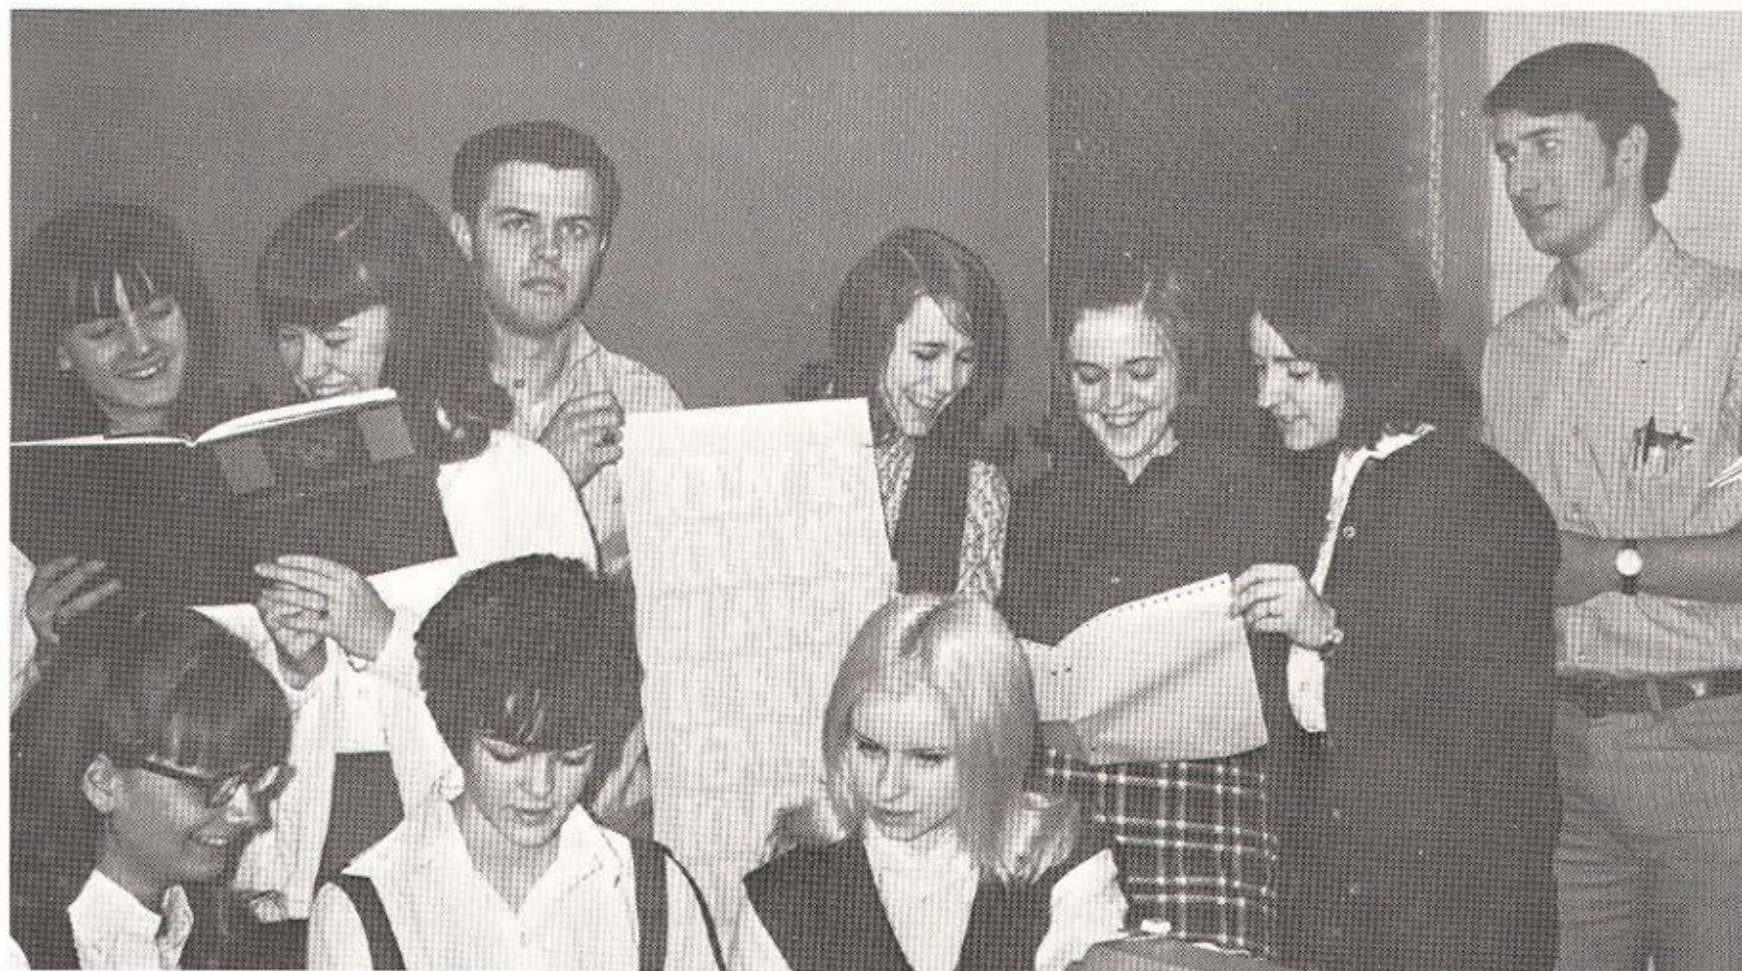

Badminton and tennis were early activities. Our GAA participated in a badminton tourney at Lafayette Jeff. A volleyball playday was held at Greencastle.

GAA basketball played a heavier schedule this year. Splash time at poolside was enjoyed by GAA members although junior and senior life-saving courses were taken by many students.

A gymnastics team was initiated this year. A great many bowling scores were improved by GAA girls. A girls' track team got off to a good start as Cindy South won first in the district and regional contests and second and fourth places were won by her at the state level.

wiler, Wilma Kamplain, Beverly McFarland, Kim Jones, and (not shown) photographer Bob Miller composed the annual staff.

Last year's Showcase served as a guide for this year's annual staff at N.P.

Members of the Journalism Club were (l. to r.) Gail Walsh, Carolyn Davis, Rita Proctor, Patty Sims, and Teri Shonkwiler. They did the newspaper.

Turn in all layouts and copy!

"Through rain, sleet, hail, or snow through the mail our yearbook HAD to go!"

Through frustration, anguish, and hectic confusion, deadlines had to be met, so the yearbook copy would be sent on time to the Hannibal, Missouri, plant to be printed.

This year we initiated the use of graphic effects and color in Showcase. Collages, drawings, and crossword puzzles attempted to modernize the image of North Putnam's annual.

COUGAR EXPRESS, the student newspaper, suffered a bit this year, because there was no journalism class. Students were on their own to get the paper out.

Hopefully during summer vacation presses would be cleaned, and minds would think of new ideas to improve efforts next year.

GAA NEWS

Since the last issue of the paper the GAA have participated in many activities.

On Nov. 14, six girls and Mrs. Cox traveled to Lafayette to participate in a badminton tourney. Due to lack of experience the girls didn't do the best, but they did learn a lot.

The following Saturday 12 girls went to Greencastle to play in a volleyball playday. There were two teams, a Varsity and B-team. The varsity team won all of their games except the last one where they lost by only 2 points.

Morning practices for basketball are now going full blast and the girls are learning a lot from their coaches Mrs. Cox and Steve Max Gladwiler.

Kenny Carrington was caught by our roving camera.

We enjoyed the world of books.

Almanacs, atlases, encyclopedias, dictionaries, periodicals, novels, and the card catalogue were tools used by North Putnam students to aid them in their schoolwork and to open their minds up to the world of literature.

Student librarians assisted students in finding needed materials and in monitoring the students in the library. These student librarians learned how it was to be on the teacher's side of the desk.

Cassette tape players and some new filmstrips were welcome additions to the audiovisual area of the library. Teachers used the recorders for spelling tests, rehearsing speeches, and for giving tests. The library was an extension of academic life through the world of books.

Student librarians were (l. to r.) V. Dockery, J. Fordice, L. Craft, P. Neel, D. Phipps, J. Summers, S. Greene, V. Roe, C. Miller, L. Norman, L. Burdine, J. Cox, R. Dozier, J. Nichols. Mrs. Hanna was librarian.

Sophomores Vicki Schrader and Debbie Grassick spent time in the library doing research work for subjects offered at North Putnam. Atlases and encyclopedias were useful items.

Librarians R. Dozier and L. Burdine were kept busy.

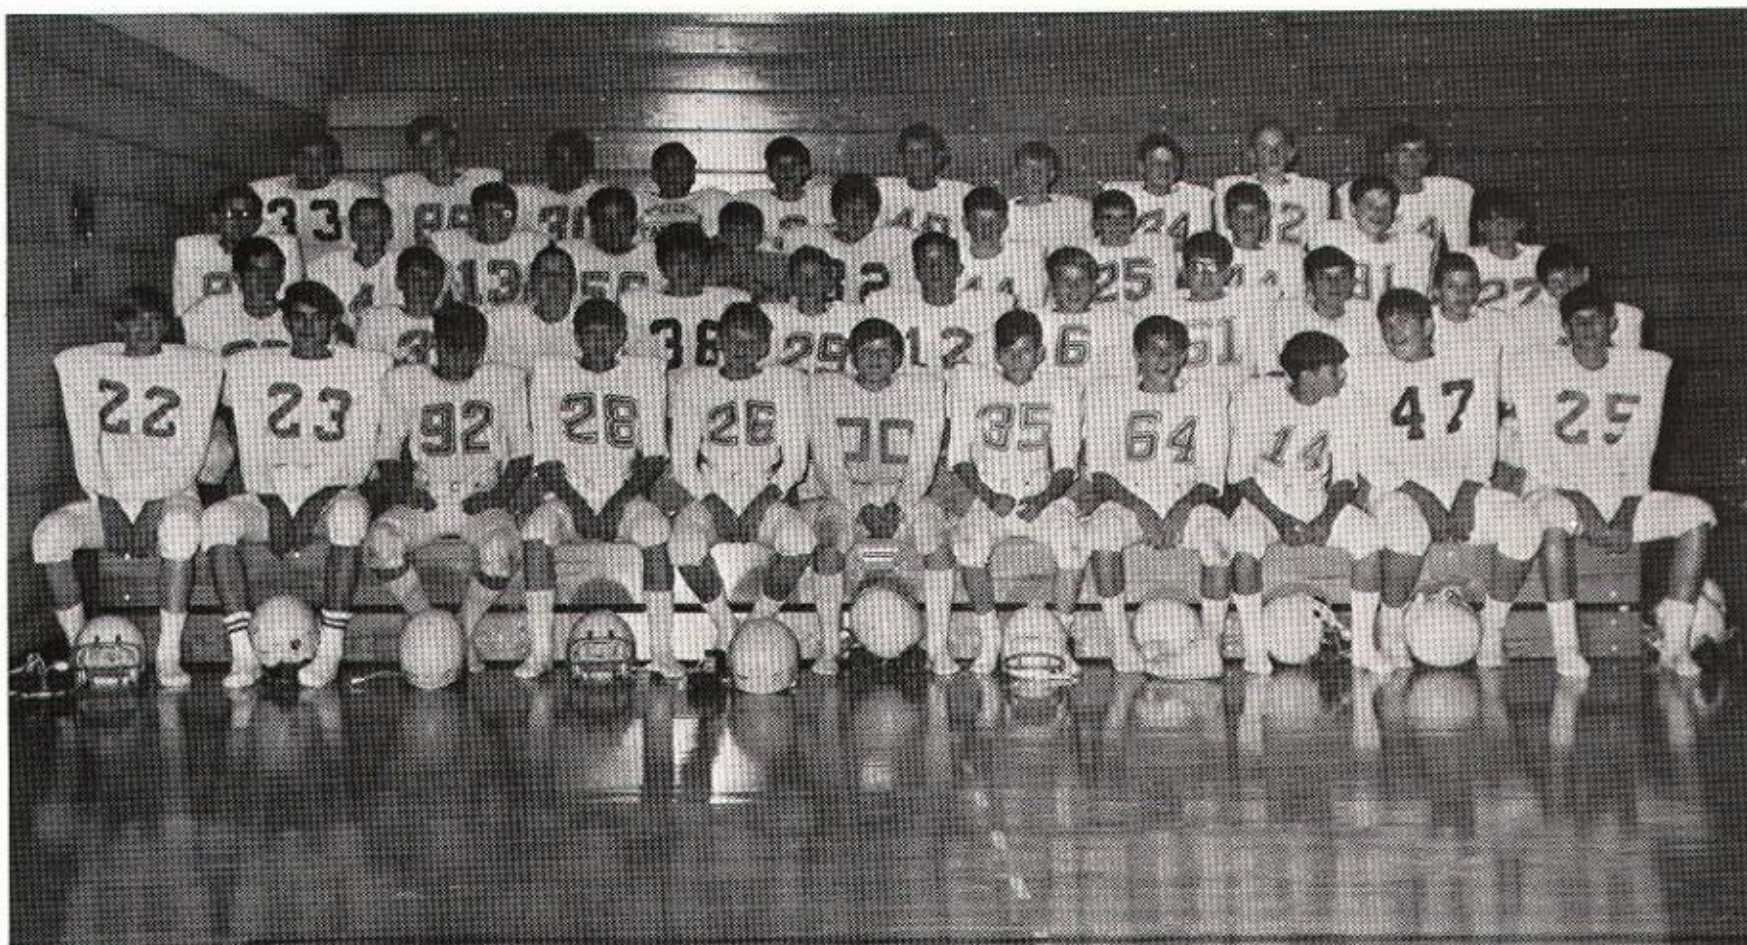

Students found the library to be an attractive and practical place to do research. Many fiction and nonfiction books were checked out.

We stole the ball,

The seventh and eighth grade basketball teams under the supervision and instructions of Mr. Gibson and Mr. Shahan battled valorously against their opponents during the 1970 season.

Although their season did not include a majority of victories, the teams always managed to display a high degree of sportsmanship, no matter what the odds.

We intercepted it.

The junior high team also acquired many valuable hours of practice and advice from their coaches. This shall prove their worth in the future as the junior high becomes the varsity. Diligent practice always comes out ahead in the making of star basketball players.

Golf team participants consisted of (ROW 1) Mike Green, Rex Call, Rod Zimmerman, Harold Roe, Ernie O'Hair. (ROW 2) Bill Berry, Rick Proctor, Rod Sharp, Jeff Summers, Randy Sharp, Coach Tallman.

Golf team hit the links.

Golfing this year was not only for senior high school students but junior high students also.

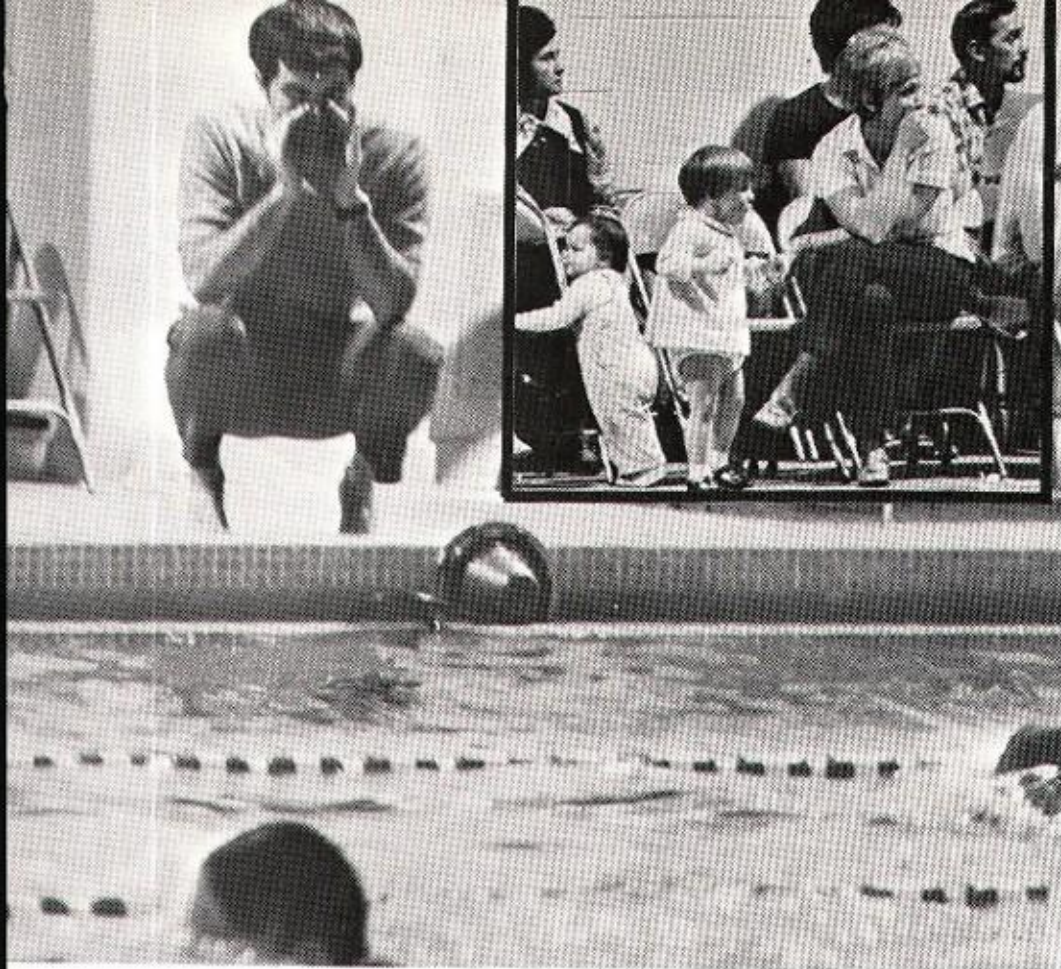

Much of the golfing was done at Windy Hill Golf Course at Greencastle.

The varsity team won over South Putnam and Cascade. The reserve team beat Cloverdale and Cascade. The varsity squad placed sixth in the conference meet at Spencer, and for the first time the team will play in the sectional.

Mr. Tallman coached the golf team. Approximately twelve golf meets were held this year.

Jim Nichols pulled the curtains shut during play rehearsals at North Putnam.

Coach Thomas spurred the team on as his wife and children watched.

Junior high students enjoyed recreational swimming every week at North Putnam.

We swam one length.

Although this was the first year for a North Putnam swim team, the squad played a varsity schedule.

The team defeated South Putnam in their first meet of the season. They also played Greencastle, Crawfordsville, and holiday relays were at Greencastle.

Recreational swimming was enjoyed by grade school, junior high, and senior high students. Several class parties also included swimming as their activity.

Junior and senior lifeguards were turned out by swimming instructor Darlene Cox. Faculty members also passed life-saving tests.

Zoners—Aminals— Pacers—River Rats— Intramural teams?

Boys' intramural sports were held again this year. Basketball, of course, was the featured sport. There were ninety high school participants, and this year junior high boys could also become active in the intramural program. Thirty junior high students played intramural basketball. Intramural sports gave boys who played on a high school basketball team to enjoy this Hoosier sport.

The Zoners team won first place in high school intramurals. The Aminals conquered second place. Other bizarre names appeared as team titles, such as the River Rats and the Pacers.

This was the second year for North Putnam to have such a program, but surely not its last. Even though the uniforms were not as flashy nor were there attractive cheerleaders to arouse crowd spirit, there was still enthusiasm from the participants themselves and their parents. The intramural program spelled fun.

The winning intramural team was (l. to r.) Ron Porter, Mark Keyt, David Miller, Ed Shuck, Greg Richard, Ted McGaughey, Marley Price, and Jay Unger.

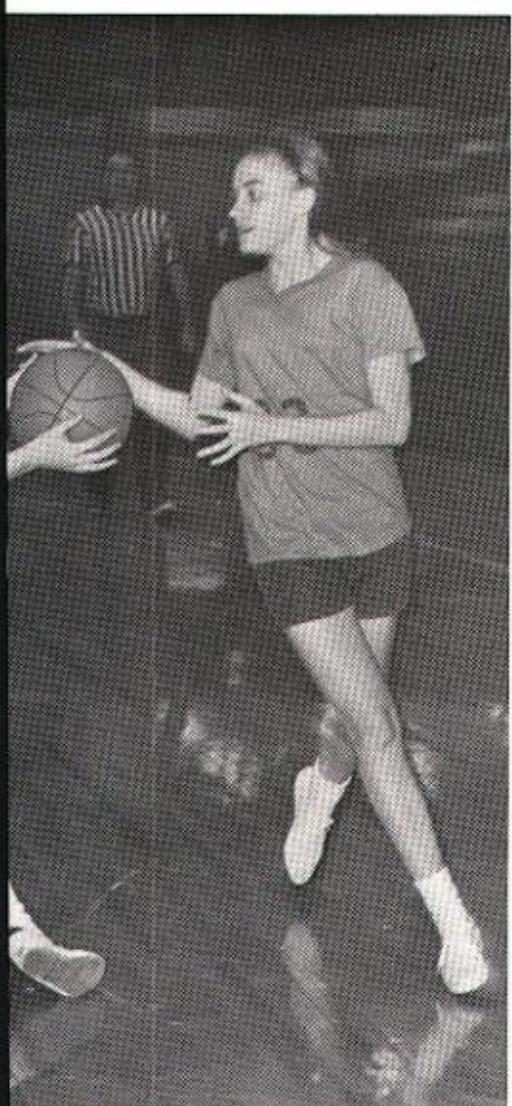

Donetta Ardelean passed off to Darlene Price against the Greencastle basketball team.

Sophomore Becky Cox attempted a lay-up shot against Greencastle.

The girls' basketball team consisted of B. Lanham, M. Clodfelter, D. Aredelean, A. Perkins, J. Summers, student coach S. M. Clodfelter, B. Cox, D. Siner, K. Steele, S. Knapp, C. South, D. Price, Mrs. Cox, J. Clodfelter, B. Hedge, K. Adams, C. Phillip, J. Summers, M. Prince, S. Green, A. Boriff, D. Phipps, J. Steele, T. Etcheson, K. Proctor, R. Rooker.

Girls' team scored many victories!

7th grade cheerleaders were (l. to r.) Jeanetta Noll, Julie Frazier, Dee Loft, and Penny Allen.

Varsity cheerleaders and Cougar fans were caught in a tense moment during a sectional game.

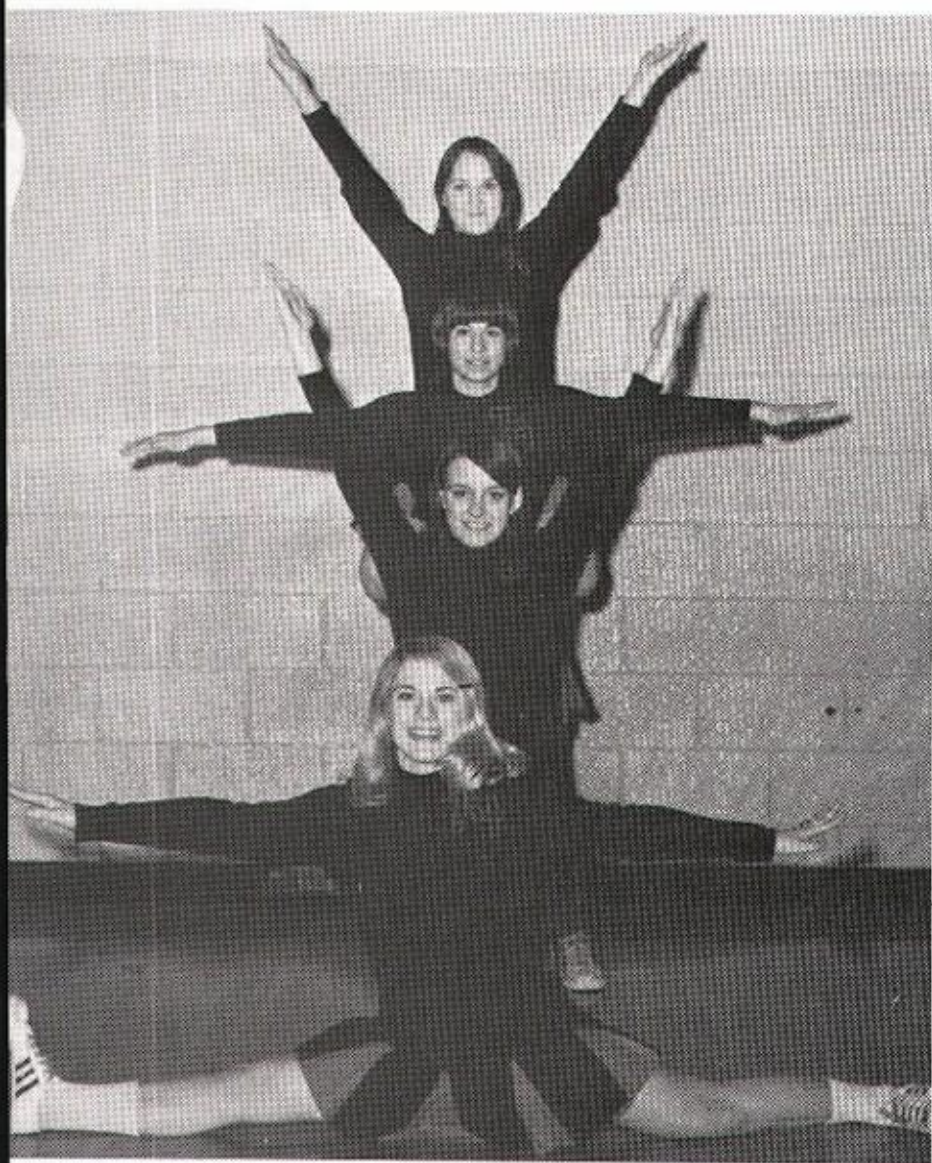

Varsity cheerleaders were (KNEELING) Jana Porter, Michelle Bridges, Cindy South. (STANDING) Cindy Ades, Brenda McBride, and Chris Stoker. These gals stoked up Cougar fans.

Lisa Porter, Suzanne McGaughey, Sherri Duncan, and Sandy Redifer led cheers for the eighth grade team.

Freshman cheerleaders were (Bottom to Top) Treva Mattingly, Paula Stewart, Jeanna Clodfelter, and Cathy Miles.

We were the super boosters!

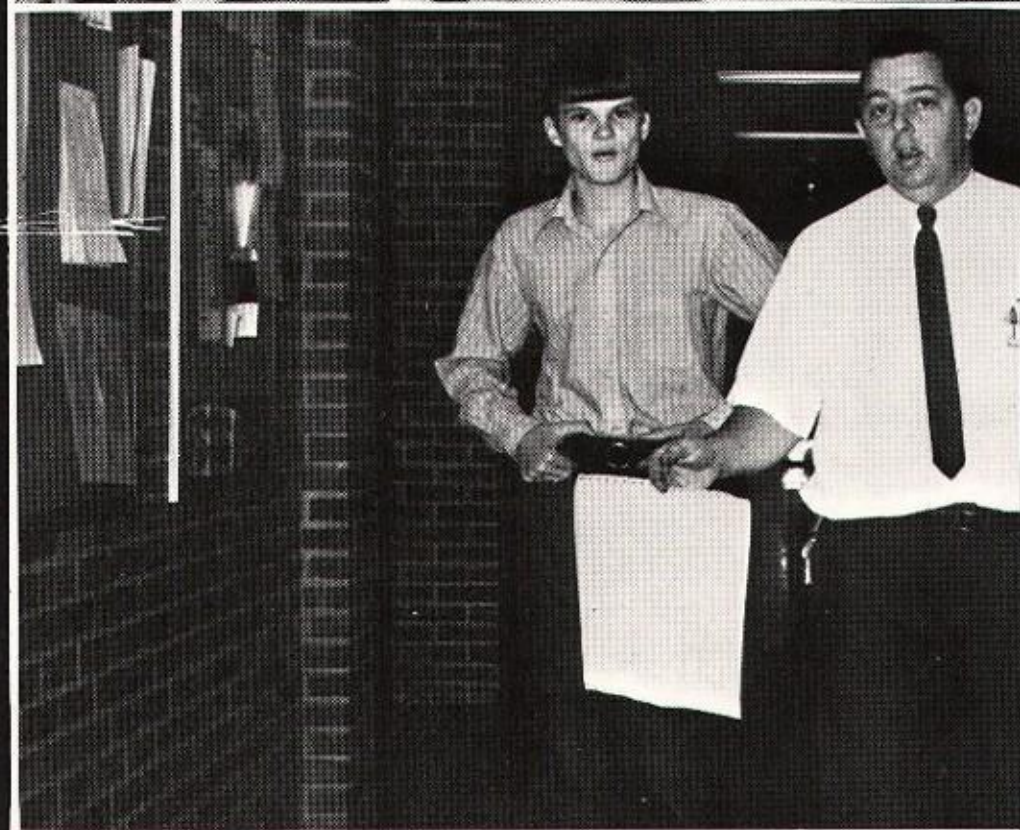

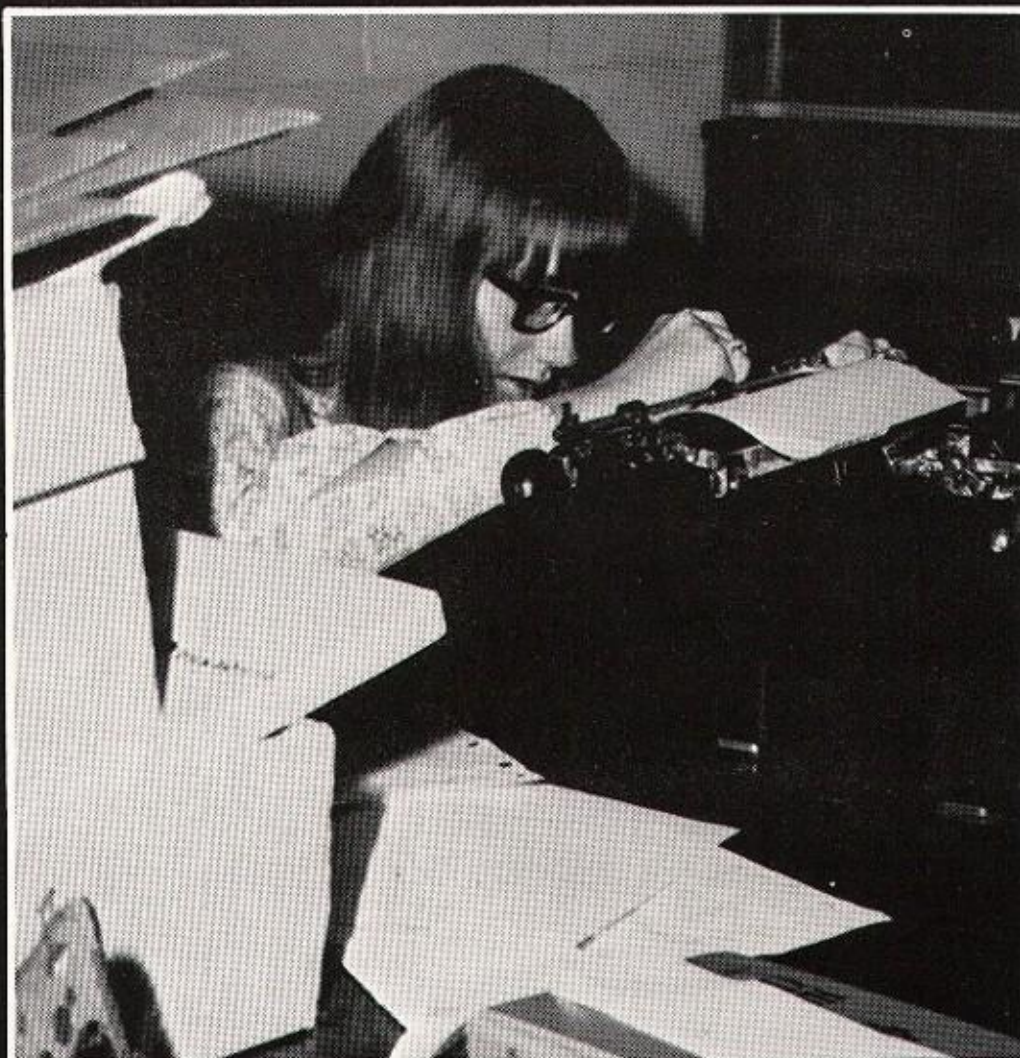

The NPHS cheerleaders were very active this year. Besides spending time after school for practicing cheers, the yell leaders also had Pep Club meetings to attend after school hours. Special efforts were used by the pep block at Christmas time as flashlights were used for special numbers.

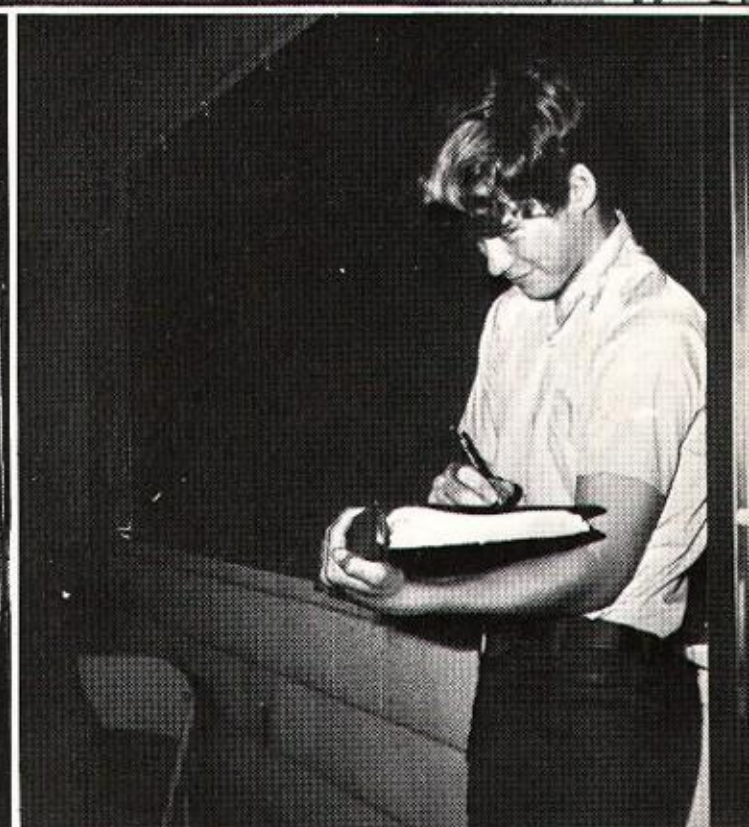

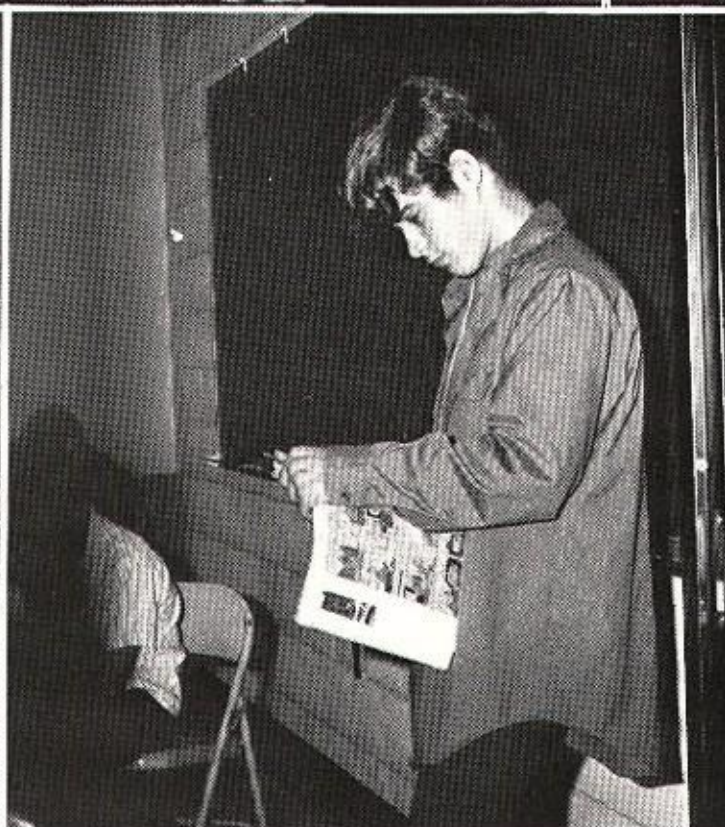

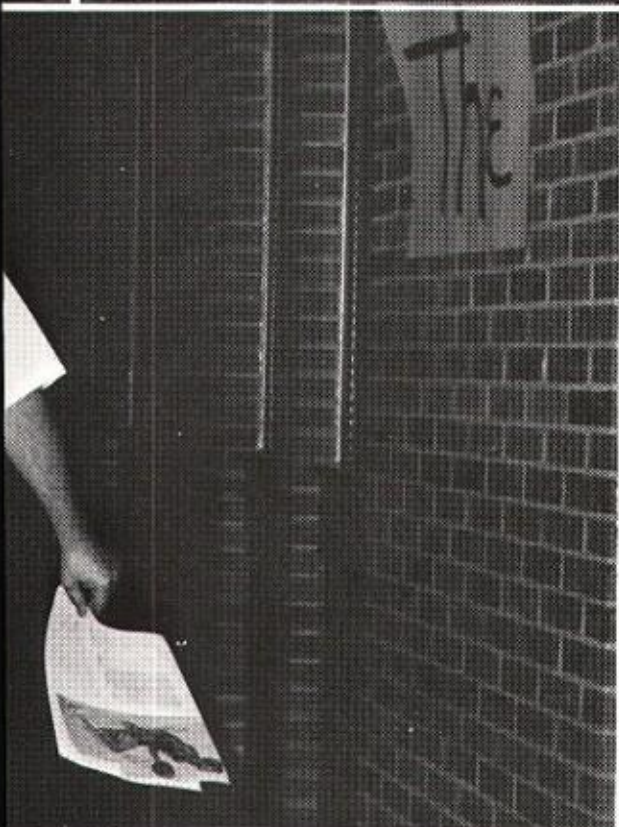

With five squads of cheerleaders in junior and senior high many, many letters were needed to ornament the sweaters of the girls. Miss Daseler, cheerleader sponsor, kindly made all of the letters and other designs needed.

To earn money for the Pep Club to purchase shirts alike, students sold Cougar license plates.

The cheerleaders took part in many exciting hours of basketball as they boosted the Cougars to first place at the Holiday Tourney and the Putnam County sectional.

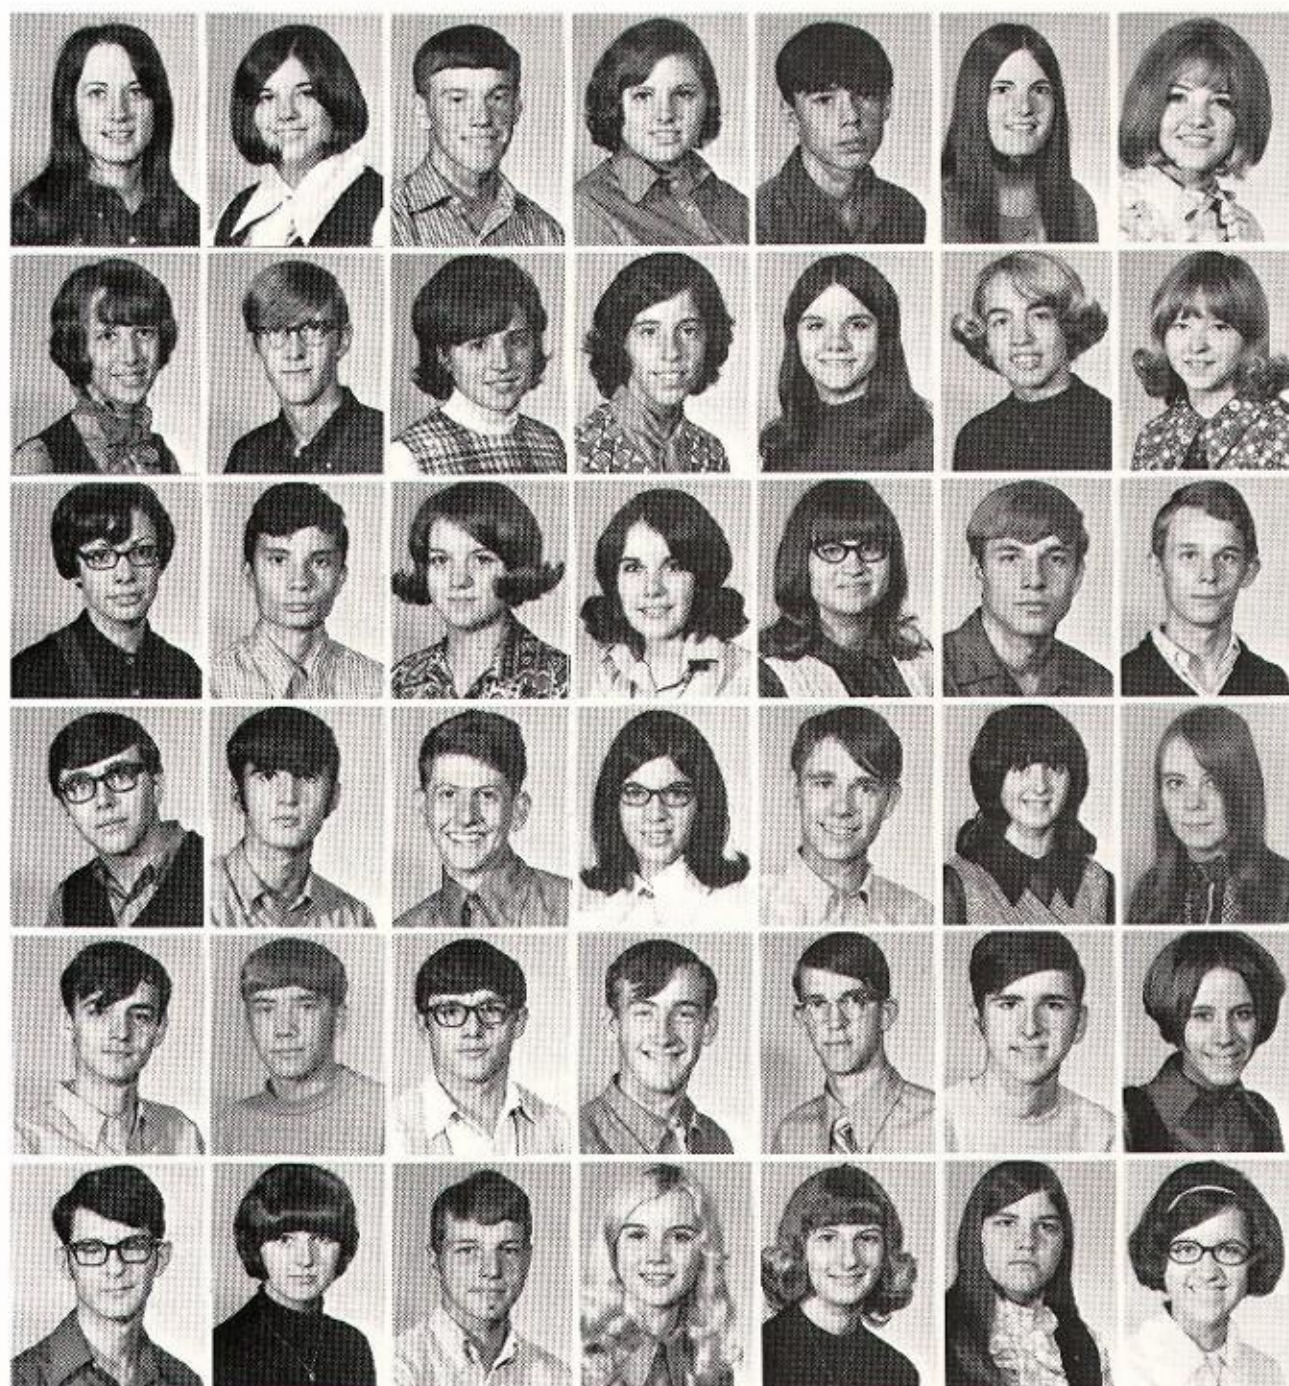

There are only a few steps until the end.

Almost there— one year to go!

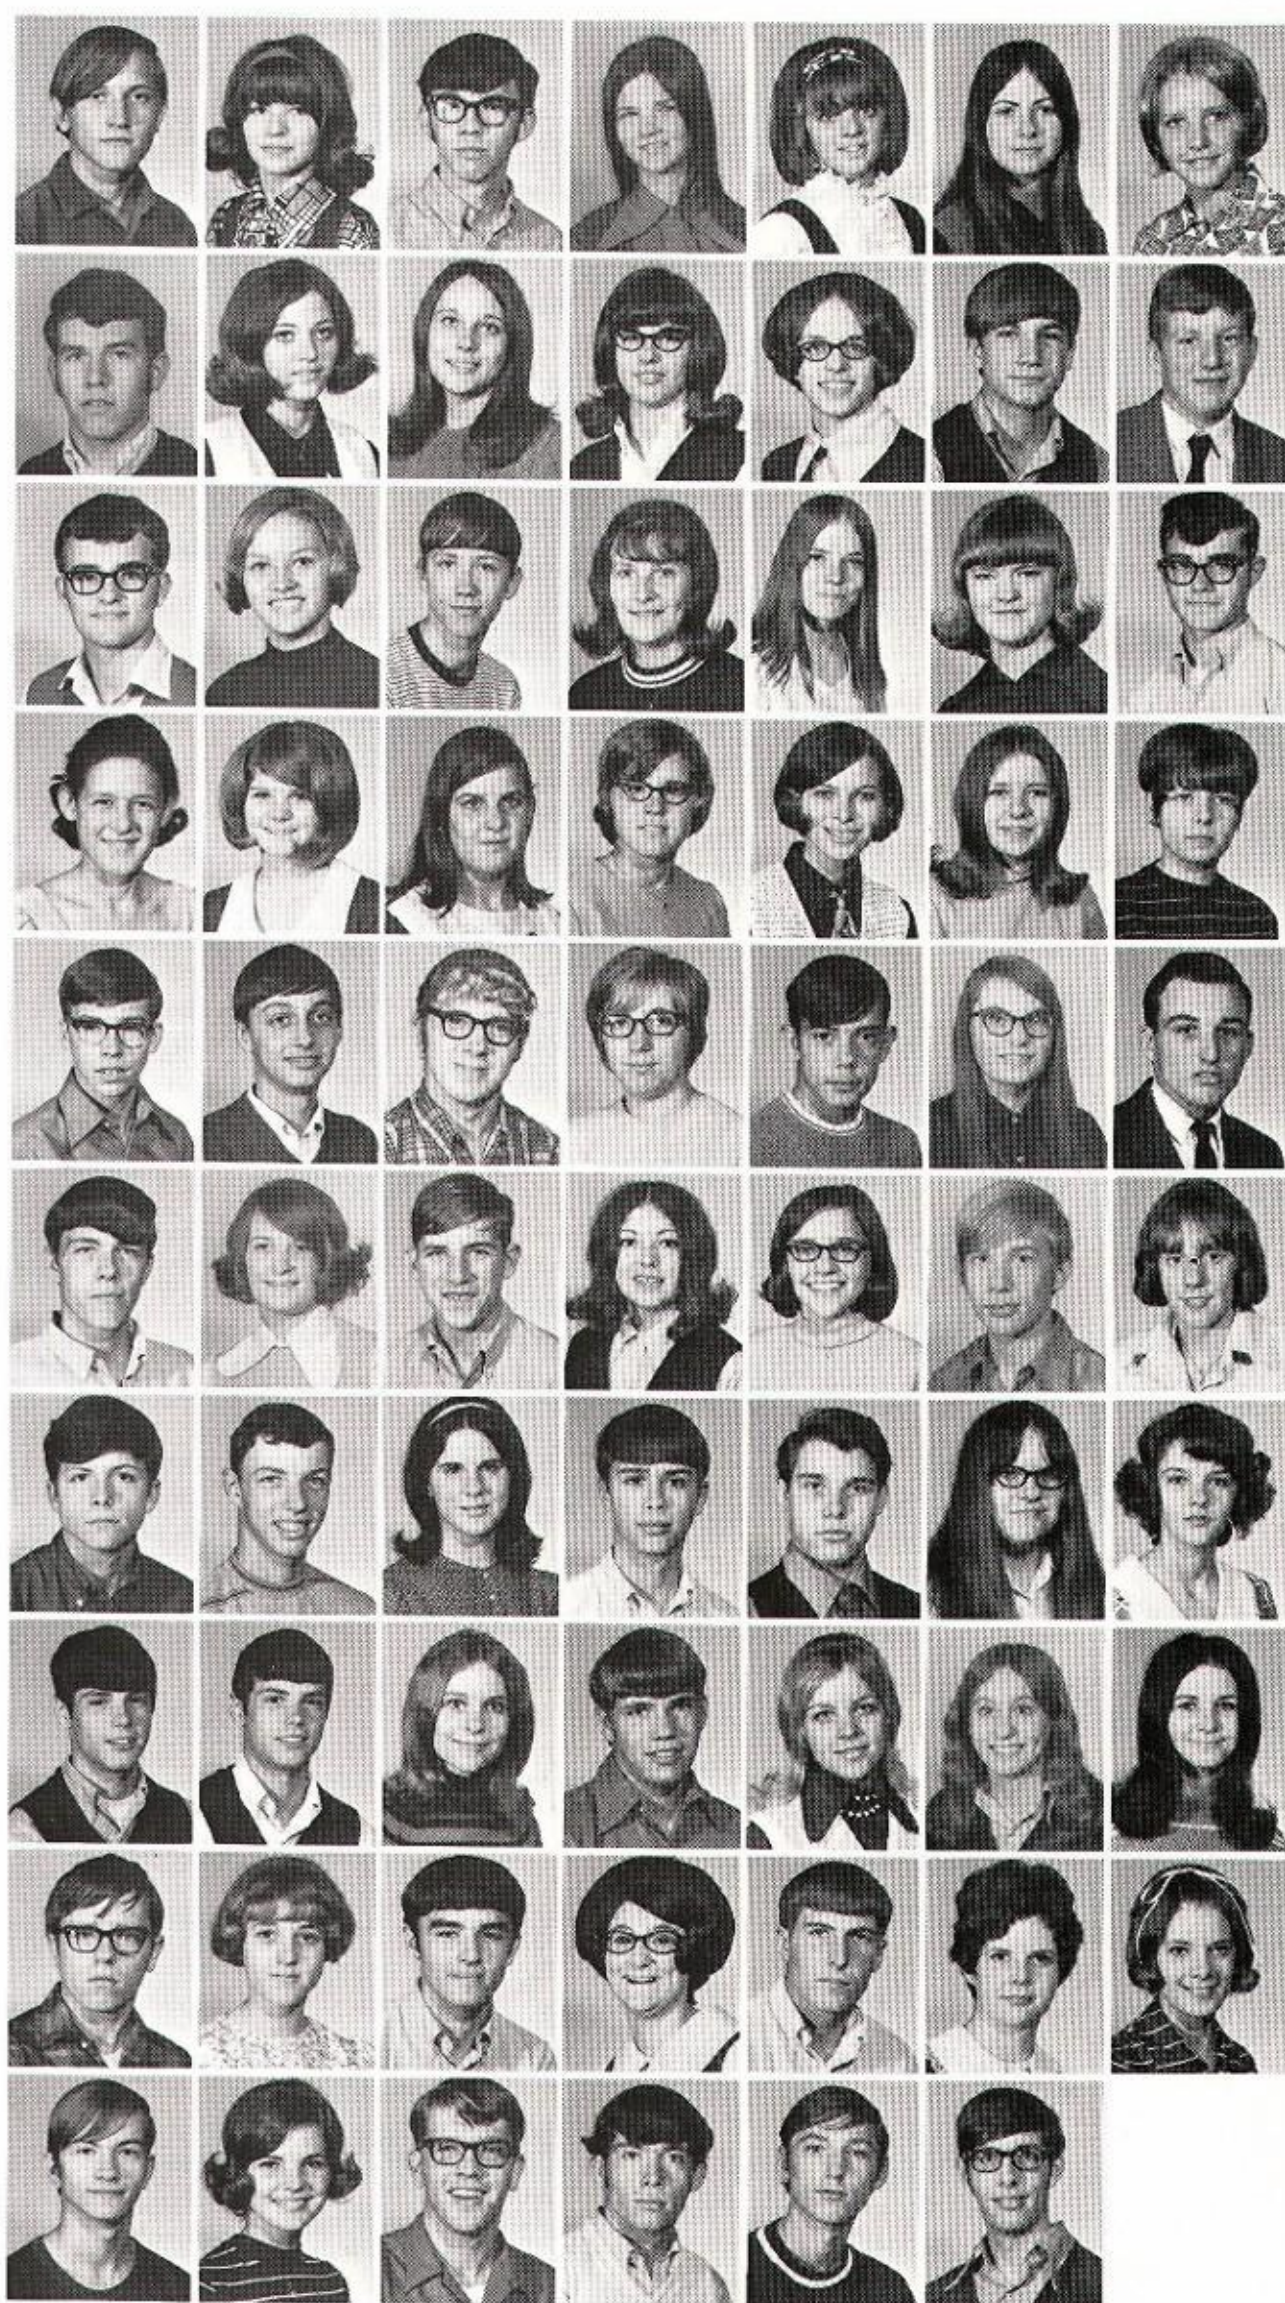

Juniors had plenty to do! The planning of the prom took up much of their time during the second semester. The prom was held at DePauw University.

Some money-making projects the juniors were involved with were the coat check at ballgames and concessions at football and basketball games.

A huge chunk of time was spent in researching materials in the library for term papers, in adding spirit to the cheer block at Cougar games, and in selecting favorite courses for next year.

The 1971 juniors were often so caught up in this year's events to think much about the end of their high school days drawing near. Just one more year!

Brian Smith and Jan Ford seemed to have enjoyed themselves at the Christmas Ball.

Juniors Toni Johnson and David Lawler showed some class spirit when they gathered wood for the bon fire which was held before the first home football game.

There were only two years left.

The sophomores of N.P.H.S. were easily recognized by many activities in which they participated.

Their lives ranged from congruent triangles to broken dates and even to miserly Silas Marner.

Ballgames were also a great part of the sophomores' activities. These students were well known for their high spirits.

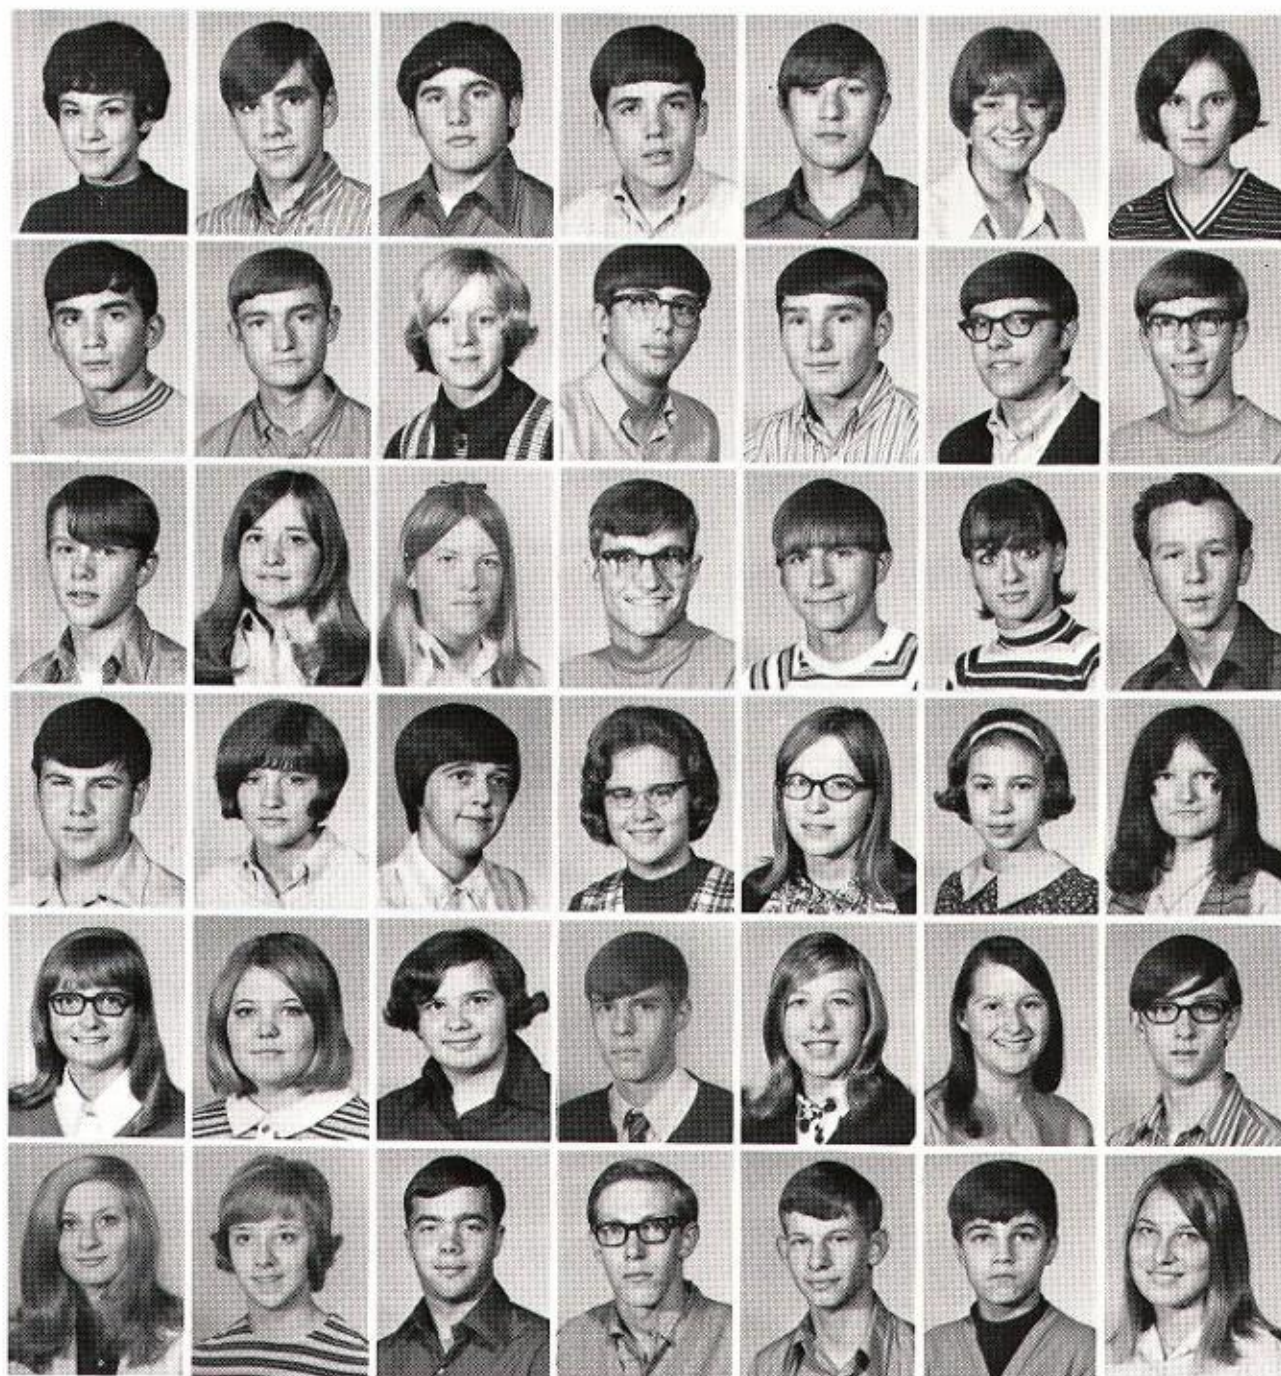

Sophomores took great pride in their involvement in all clubs and sports.

Their jubilation overflowed as classmate Sherri Stoker reigned as homecoming queen.

This sophisticated group of youngsters made quite a splash as they raced through another year. To some, they were industrious, intelligent, talented, and cooperative pupils, to others, they were a highly temperamental group. The thoughts of "senior year" entered their minds.

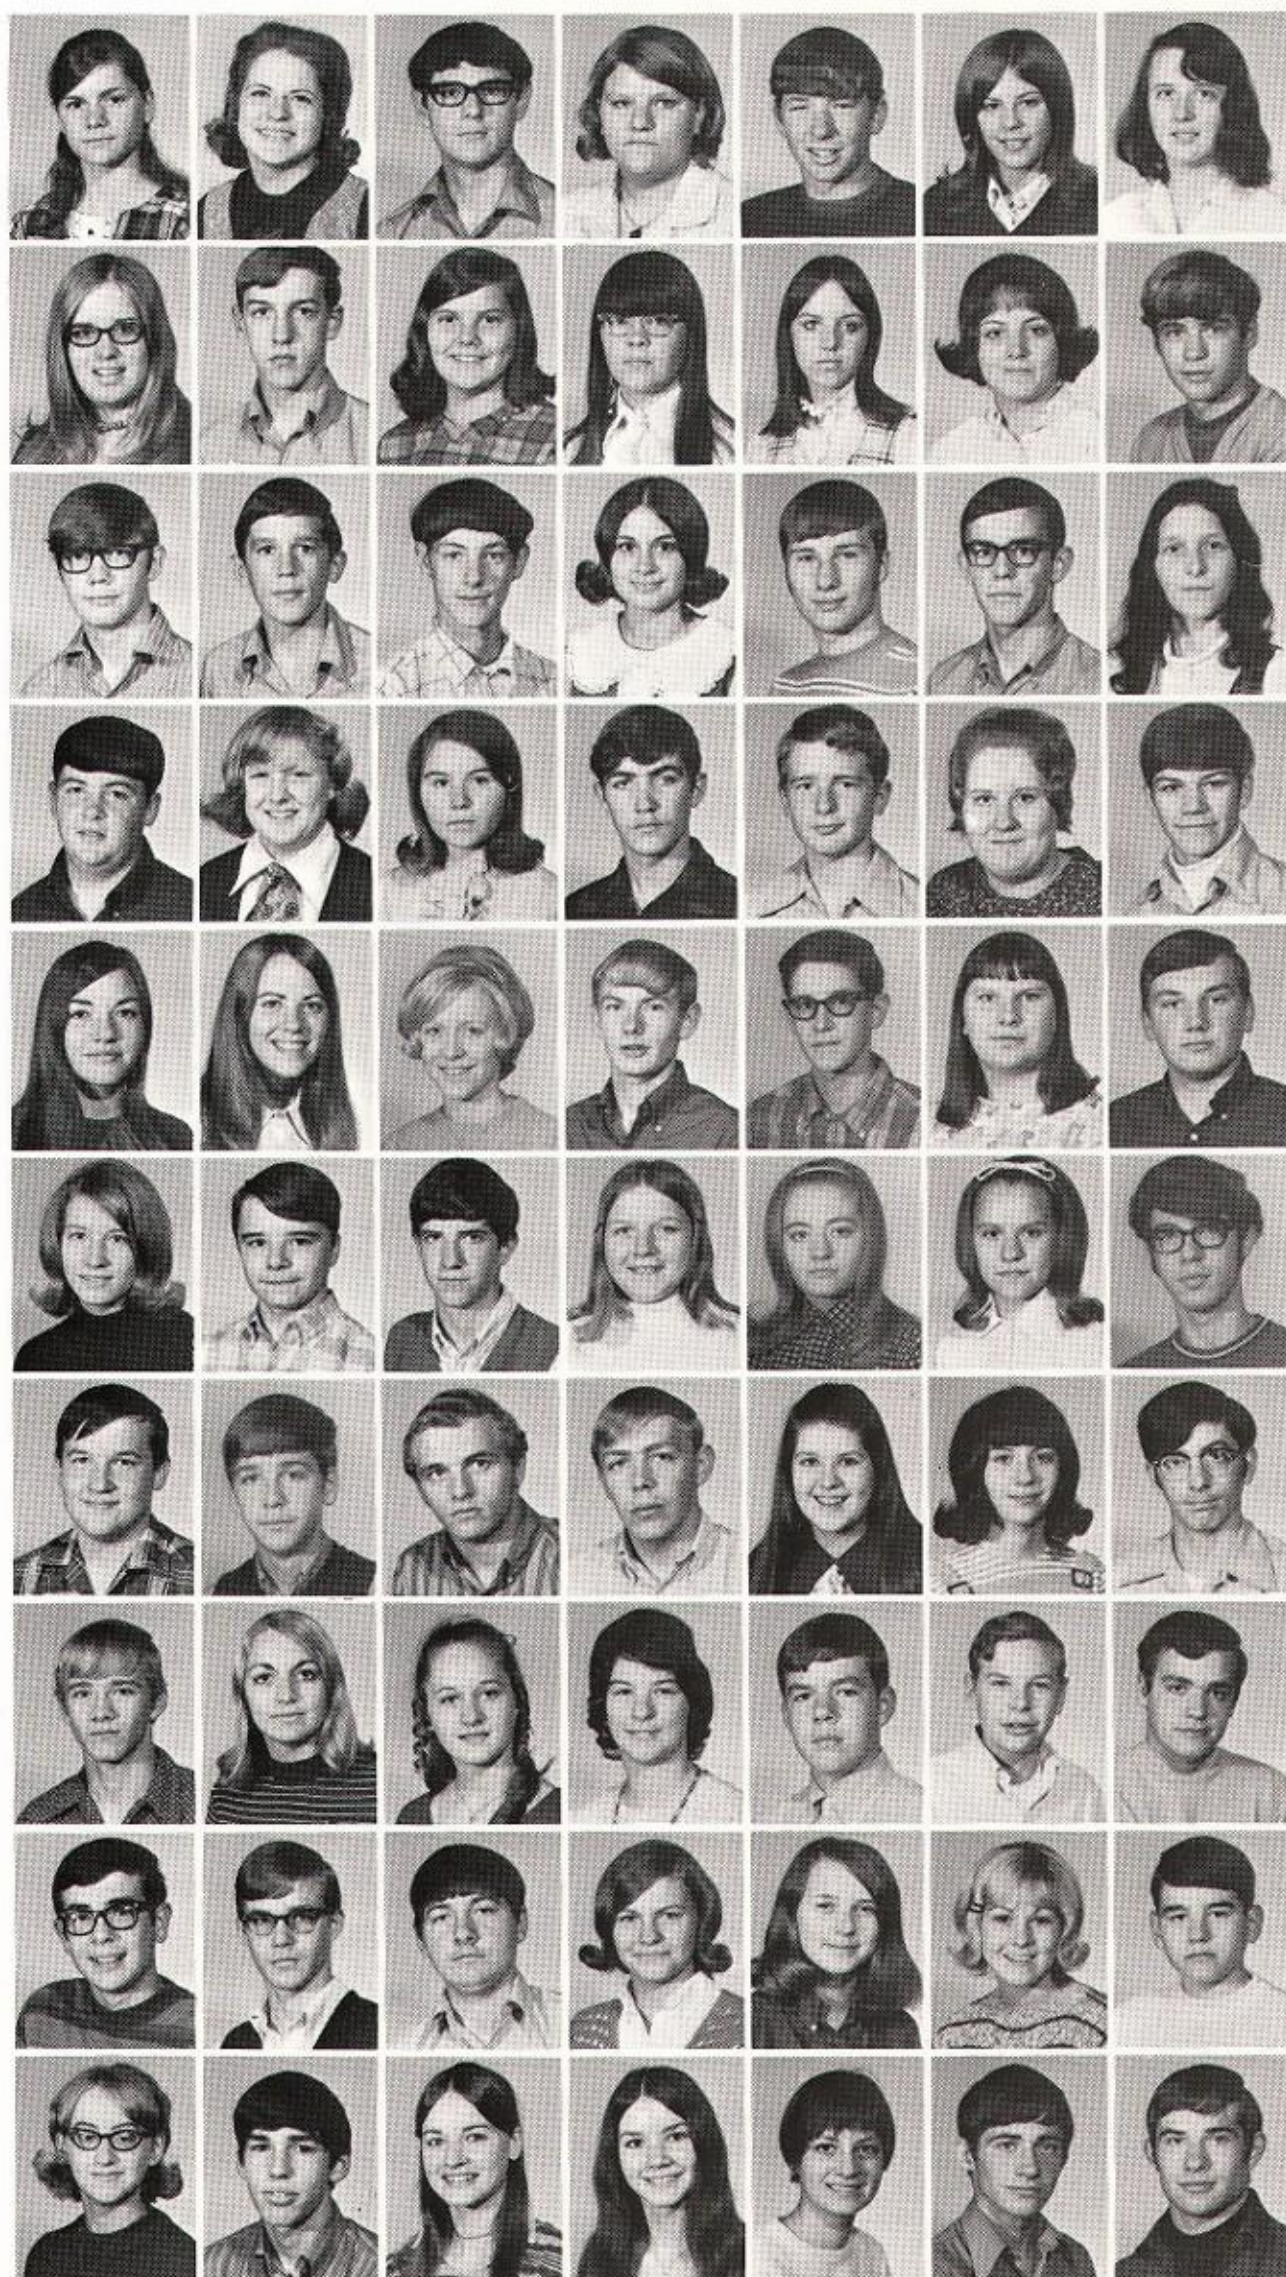

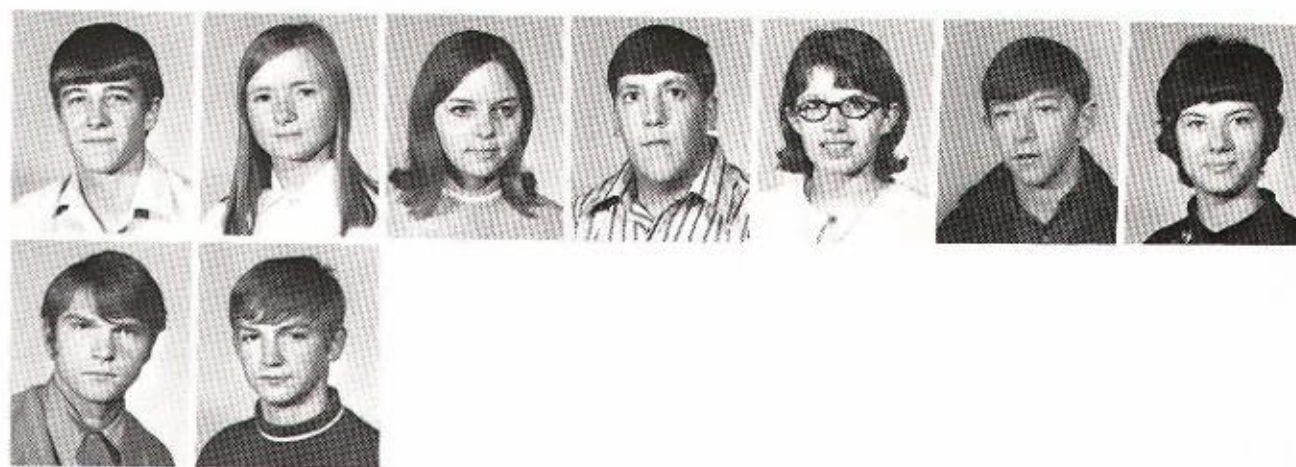

"B" team cheerleaders Sherri Stoker, Rusa Rooker and Jeri Summers showed school spirit.

Tracy Etcheson, Pam Allen, Charlie Riggle, Danny Rogers.

Sophomore Ralph Thornburg took time out from his schedule to chat with a worker in the bookstore.

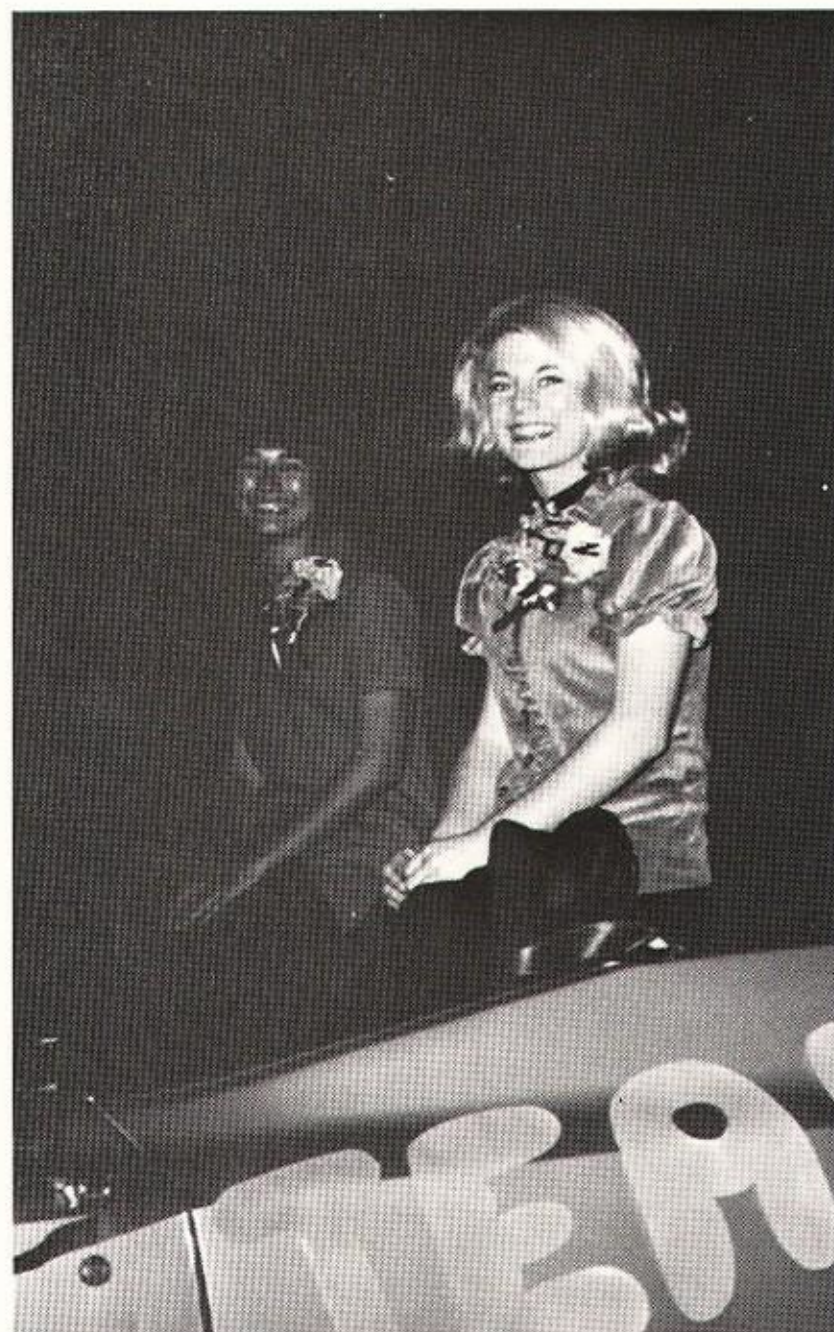

Class officers for the freshmen were: Philip Reed, Richard Roe, Dough Perry, Cathy Miles, Loretta Miles, Janet Roe, Sondra Jones, and Barbara Miller.

The freshmen officers worked hard with their class in establishing name for their first year in high school.

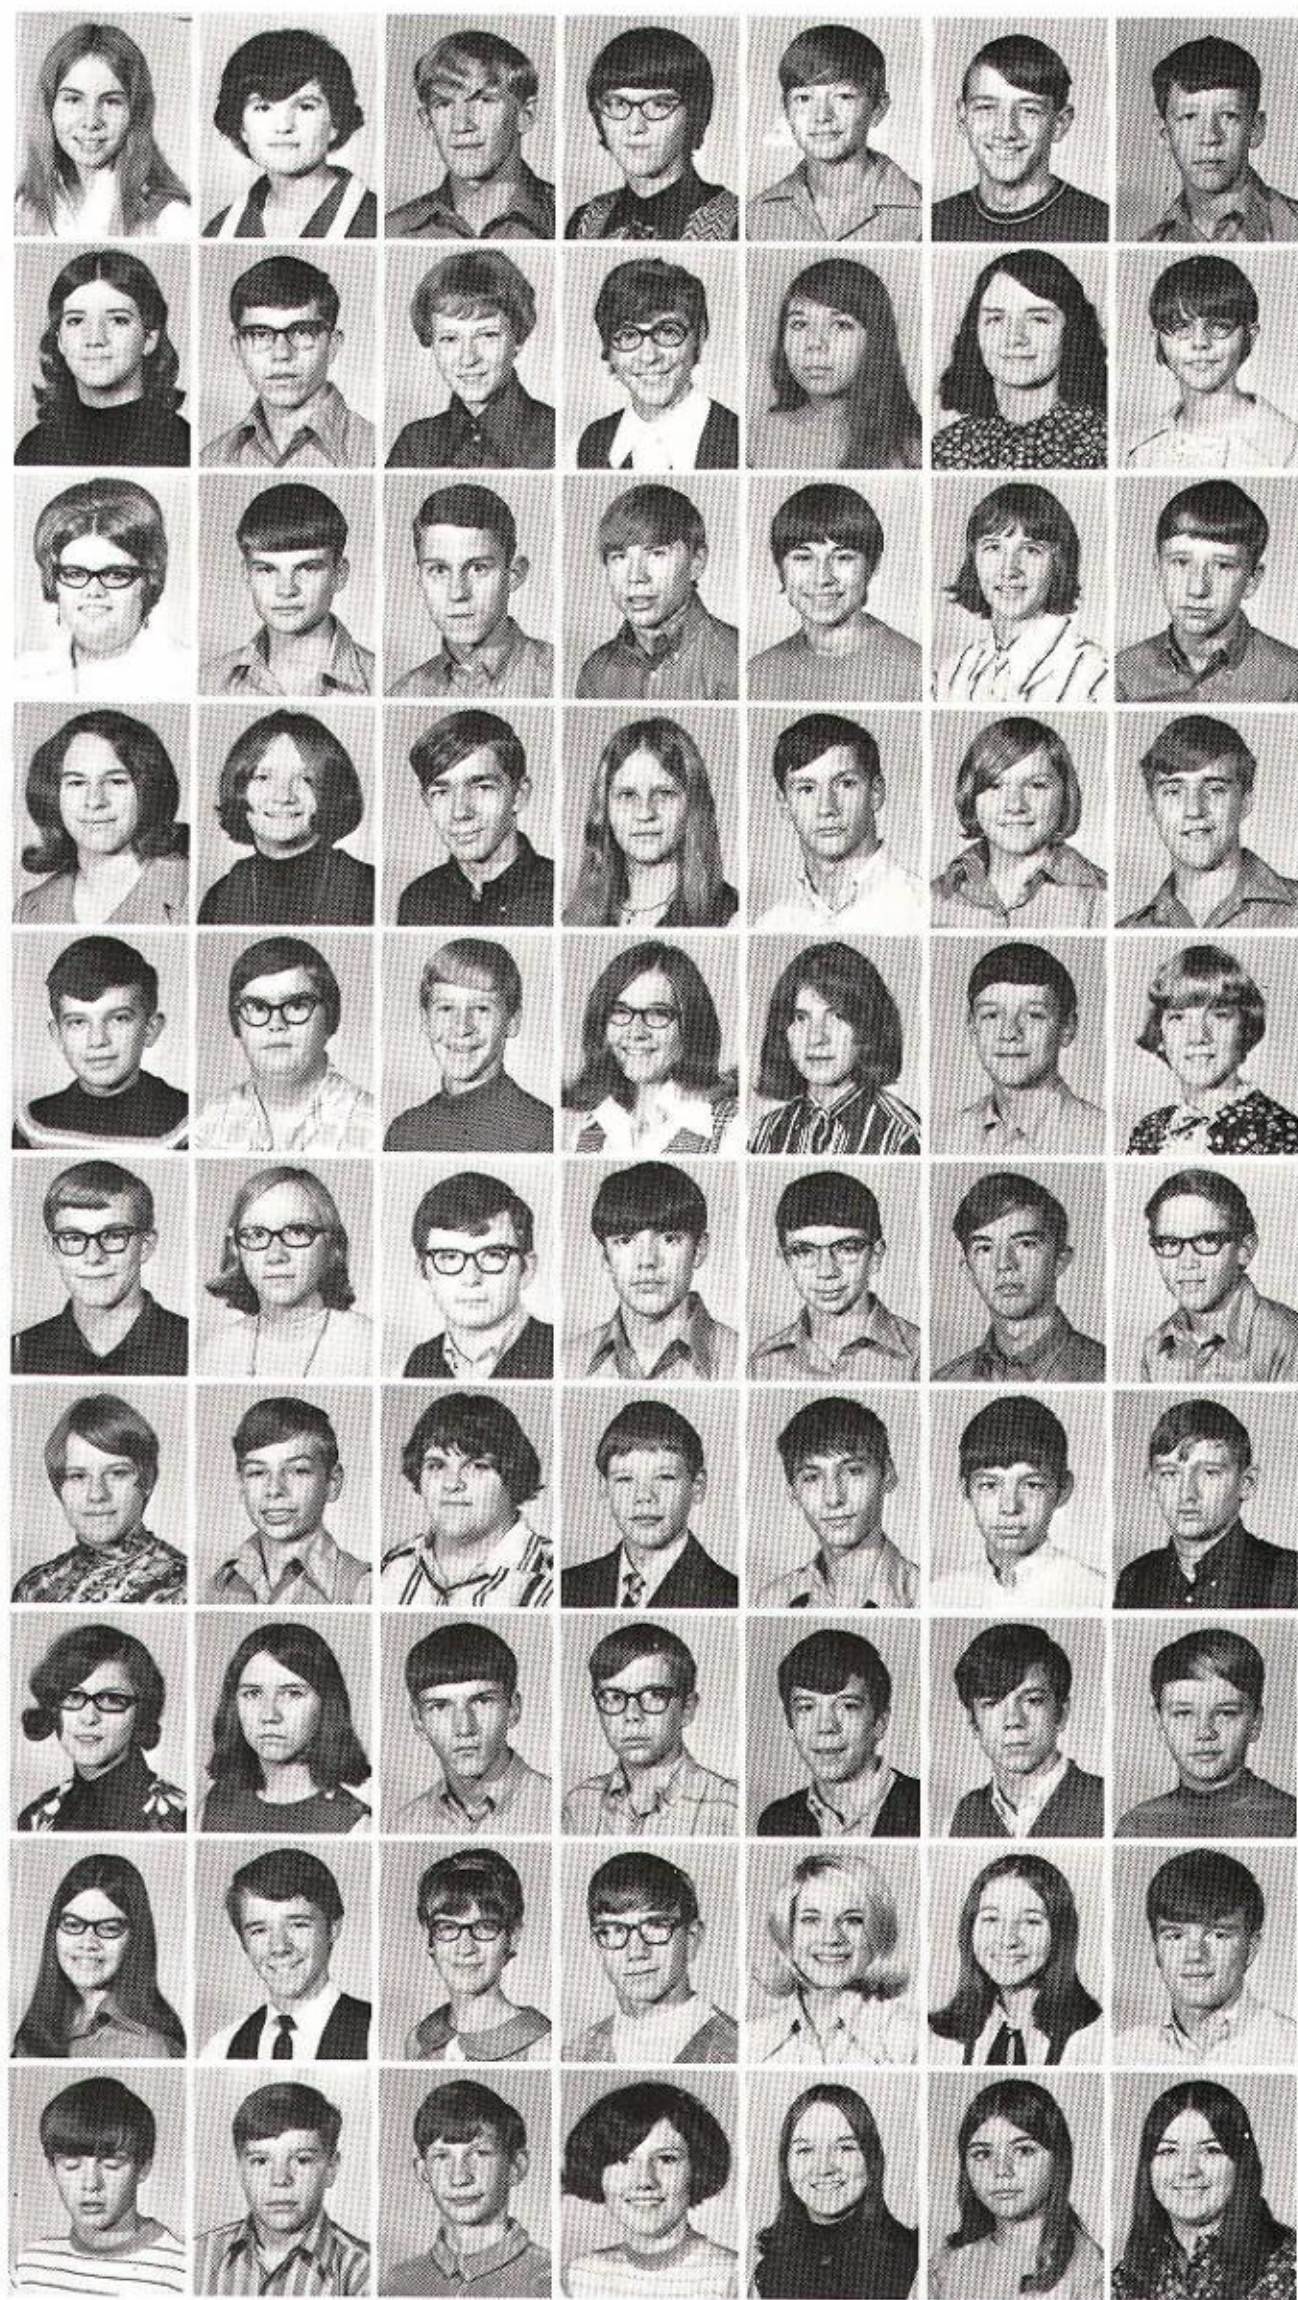

This is a recipe for a freshman.

1/2 cup spirit
2 teaspoons talent
3 tablespoons pride
1/8 tablespoon courtesy
4 cups noise
2 teaspoons anticipation

Combine 1/2 cup of spirit and 4 cups of noise in a large container. Add 3 tablespoons of pride, 1/8 tablespoon of courtesy, and 2 teaspoons of talent. Toss in 2 teaspoons of anticipation for good measure. Mix thoroughly over the intense heat of a burning text until bubbling and over-flowing. Then deposit in an energized human body. This is what a freshman at North Putnam consisted of. They were those promptly impetuous people who were so vital in adding to North Putnam that extra dash of the spice of life.

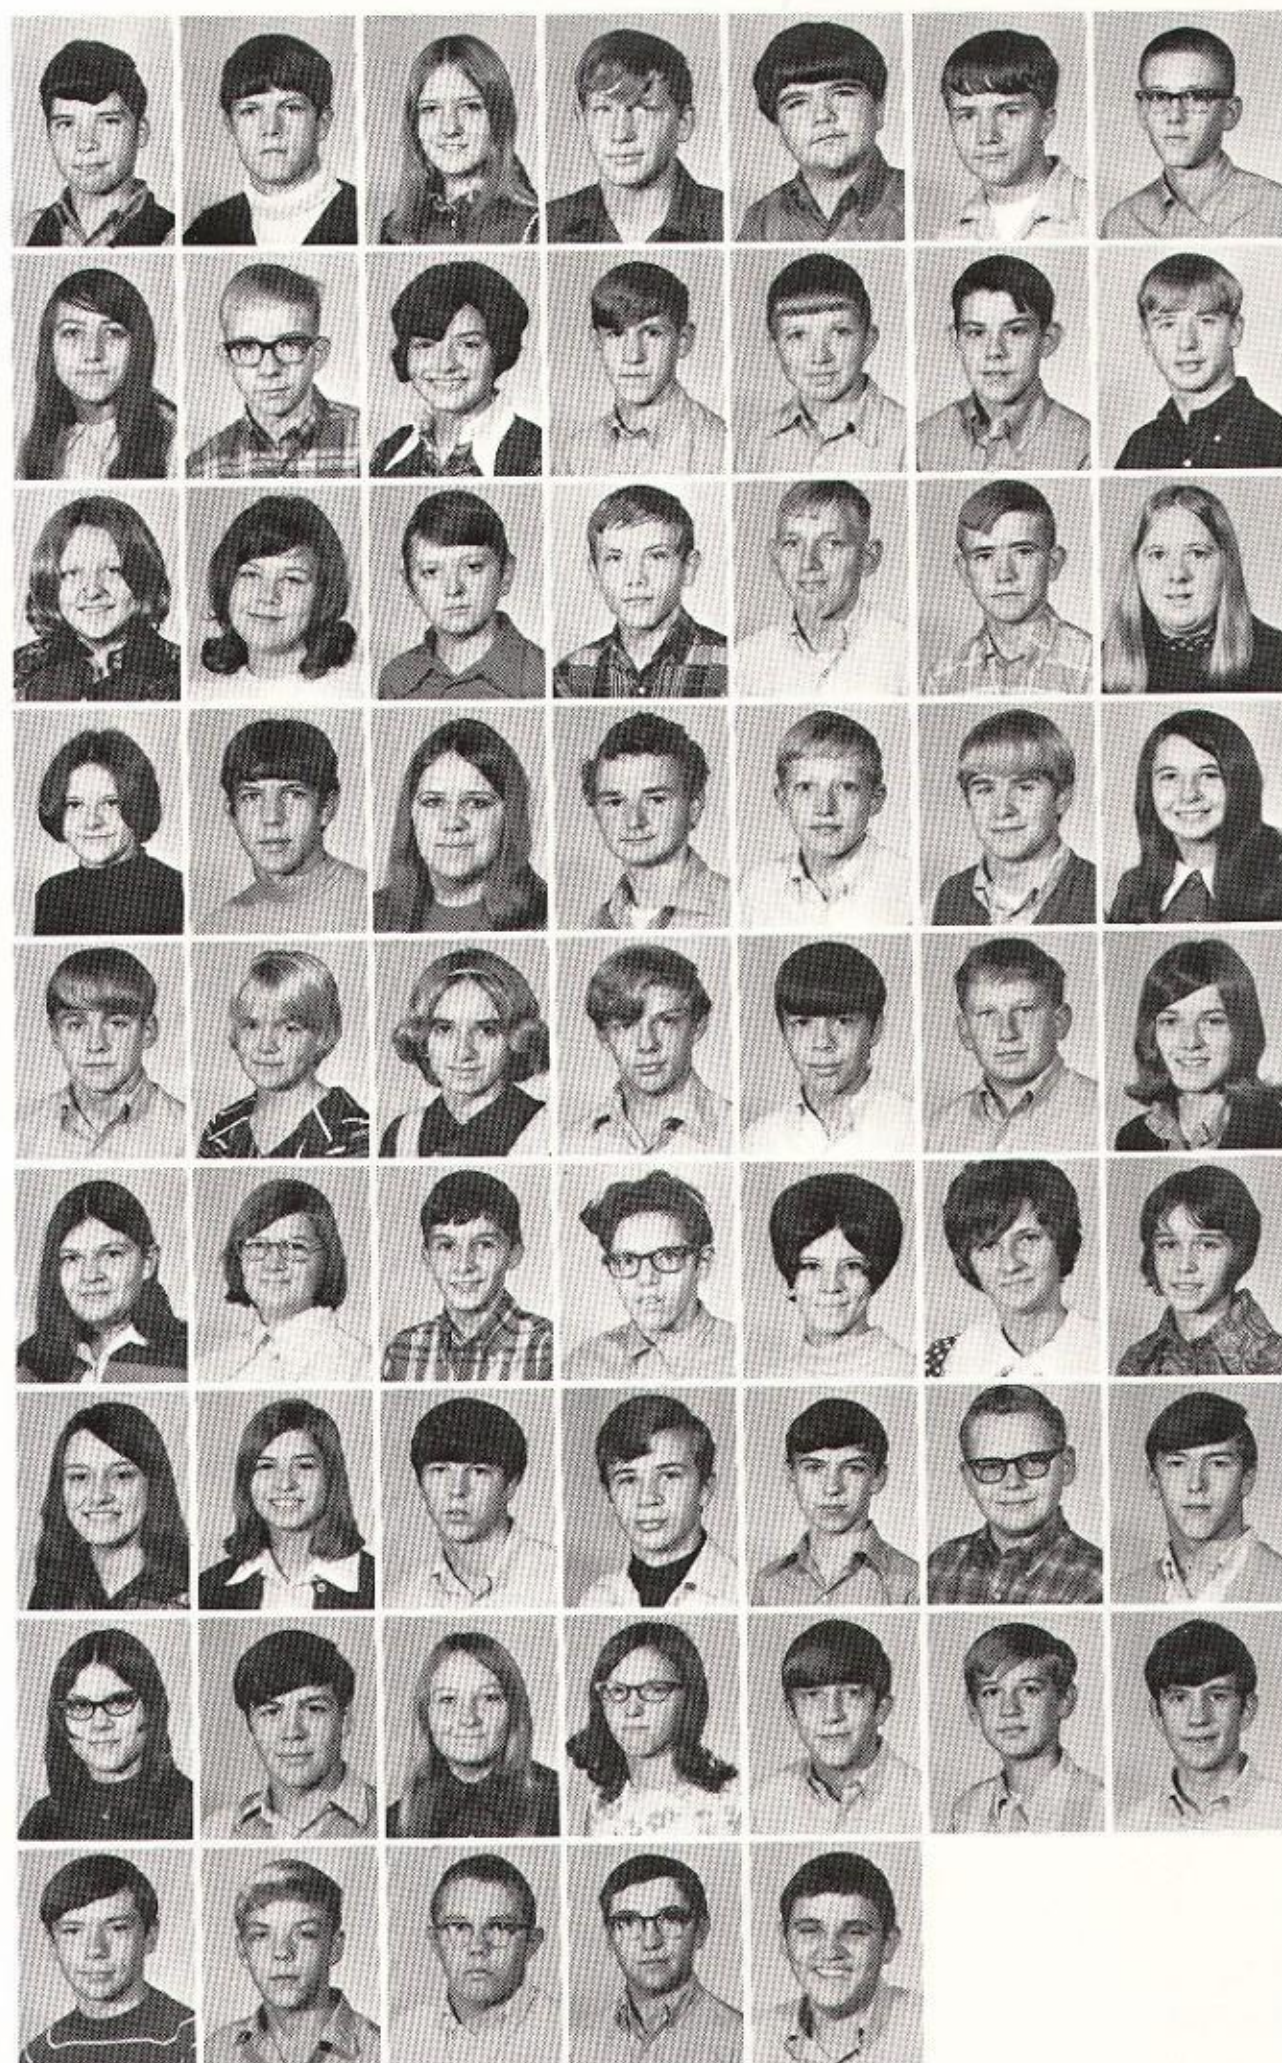

Freshman homecoming candidates, Treya Mattingly and Jeanna Clodfelter smiled happily as they were driven around the football field.

They were at the end of Jr. High.

The eighth grade suffered between the limbo of seventh grade and freshmen. The west corridor was flooded by the eighth graders trying to get into their lockers for books, since this class had the distinction of being the largest class at North Putnam.

They were rambunctious, energetic, and eager. They no longer were at the bottom rung of the student membership, but it would be next fall before they would be totally integrated into the full activities of high school at North Putnam.

We were the seventh graders.

"Being a seventh grader feels like being a first grader at North Putnam. Everybody is grades higher than I am."

"When I came to the North Putnam High School, I thought it was a big, nice, clean school."

"My first impression of North Putnam was that I didn't know where I was supposed to go."

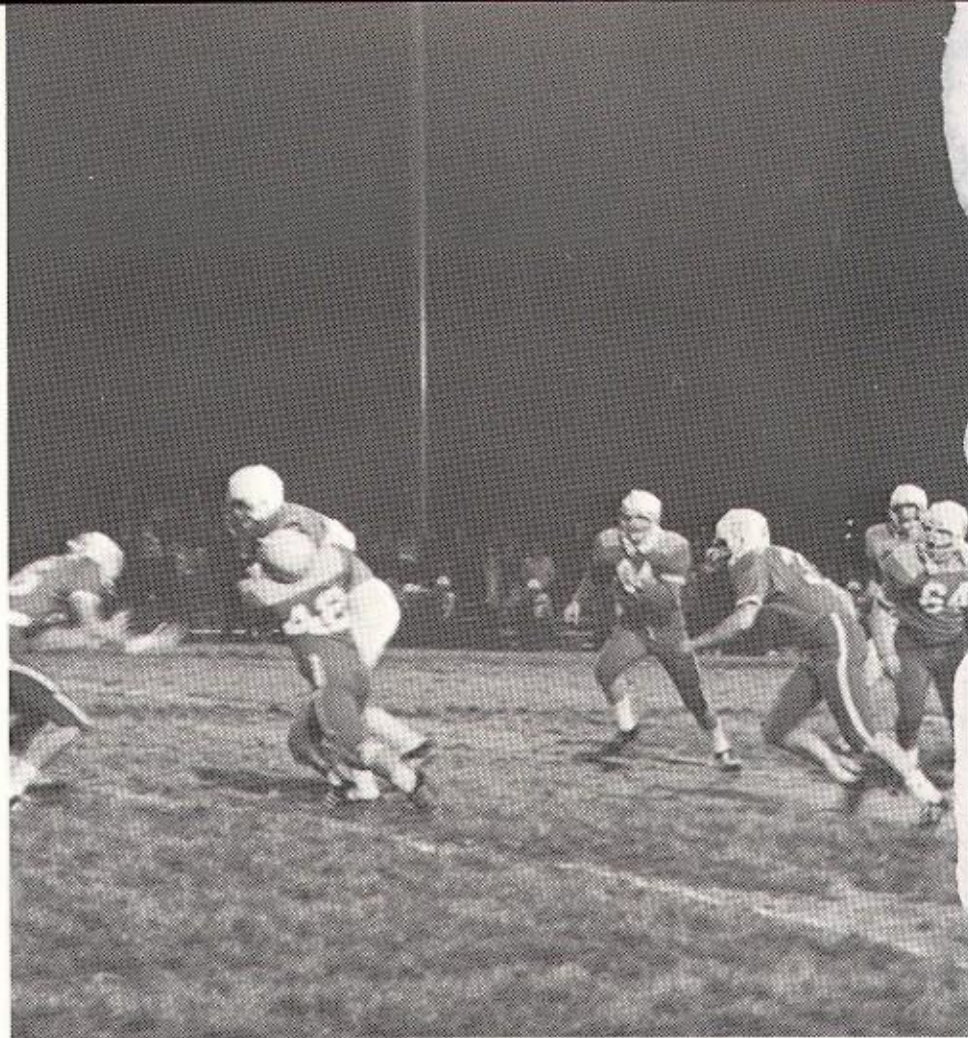

"The lockers were too little."

When you're a seventh grader, you're on the way to being a senior.

"I thought North Putnam was a much bigger school and had better things to offer."

North Putnam was a big school with harder work and more responsibilities for the seventh grade class.

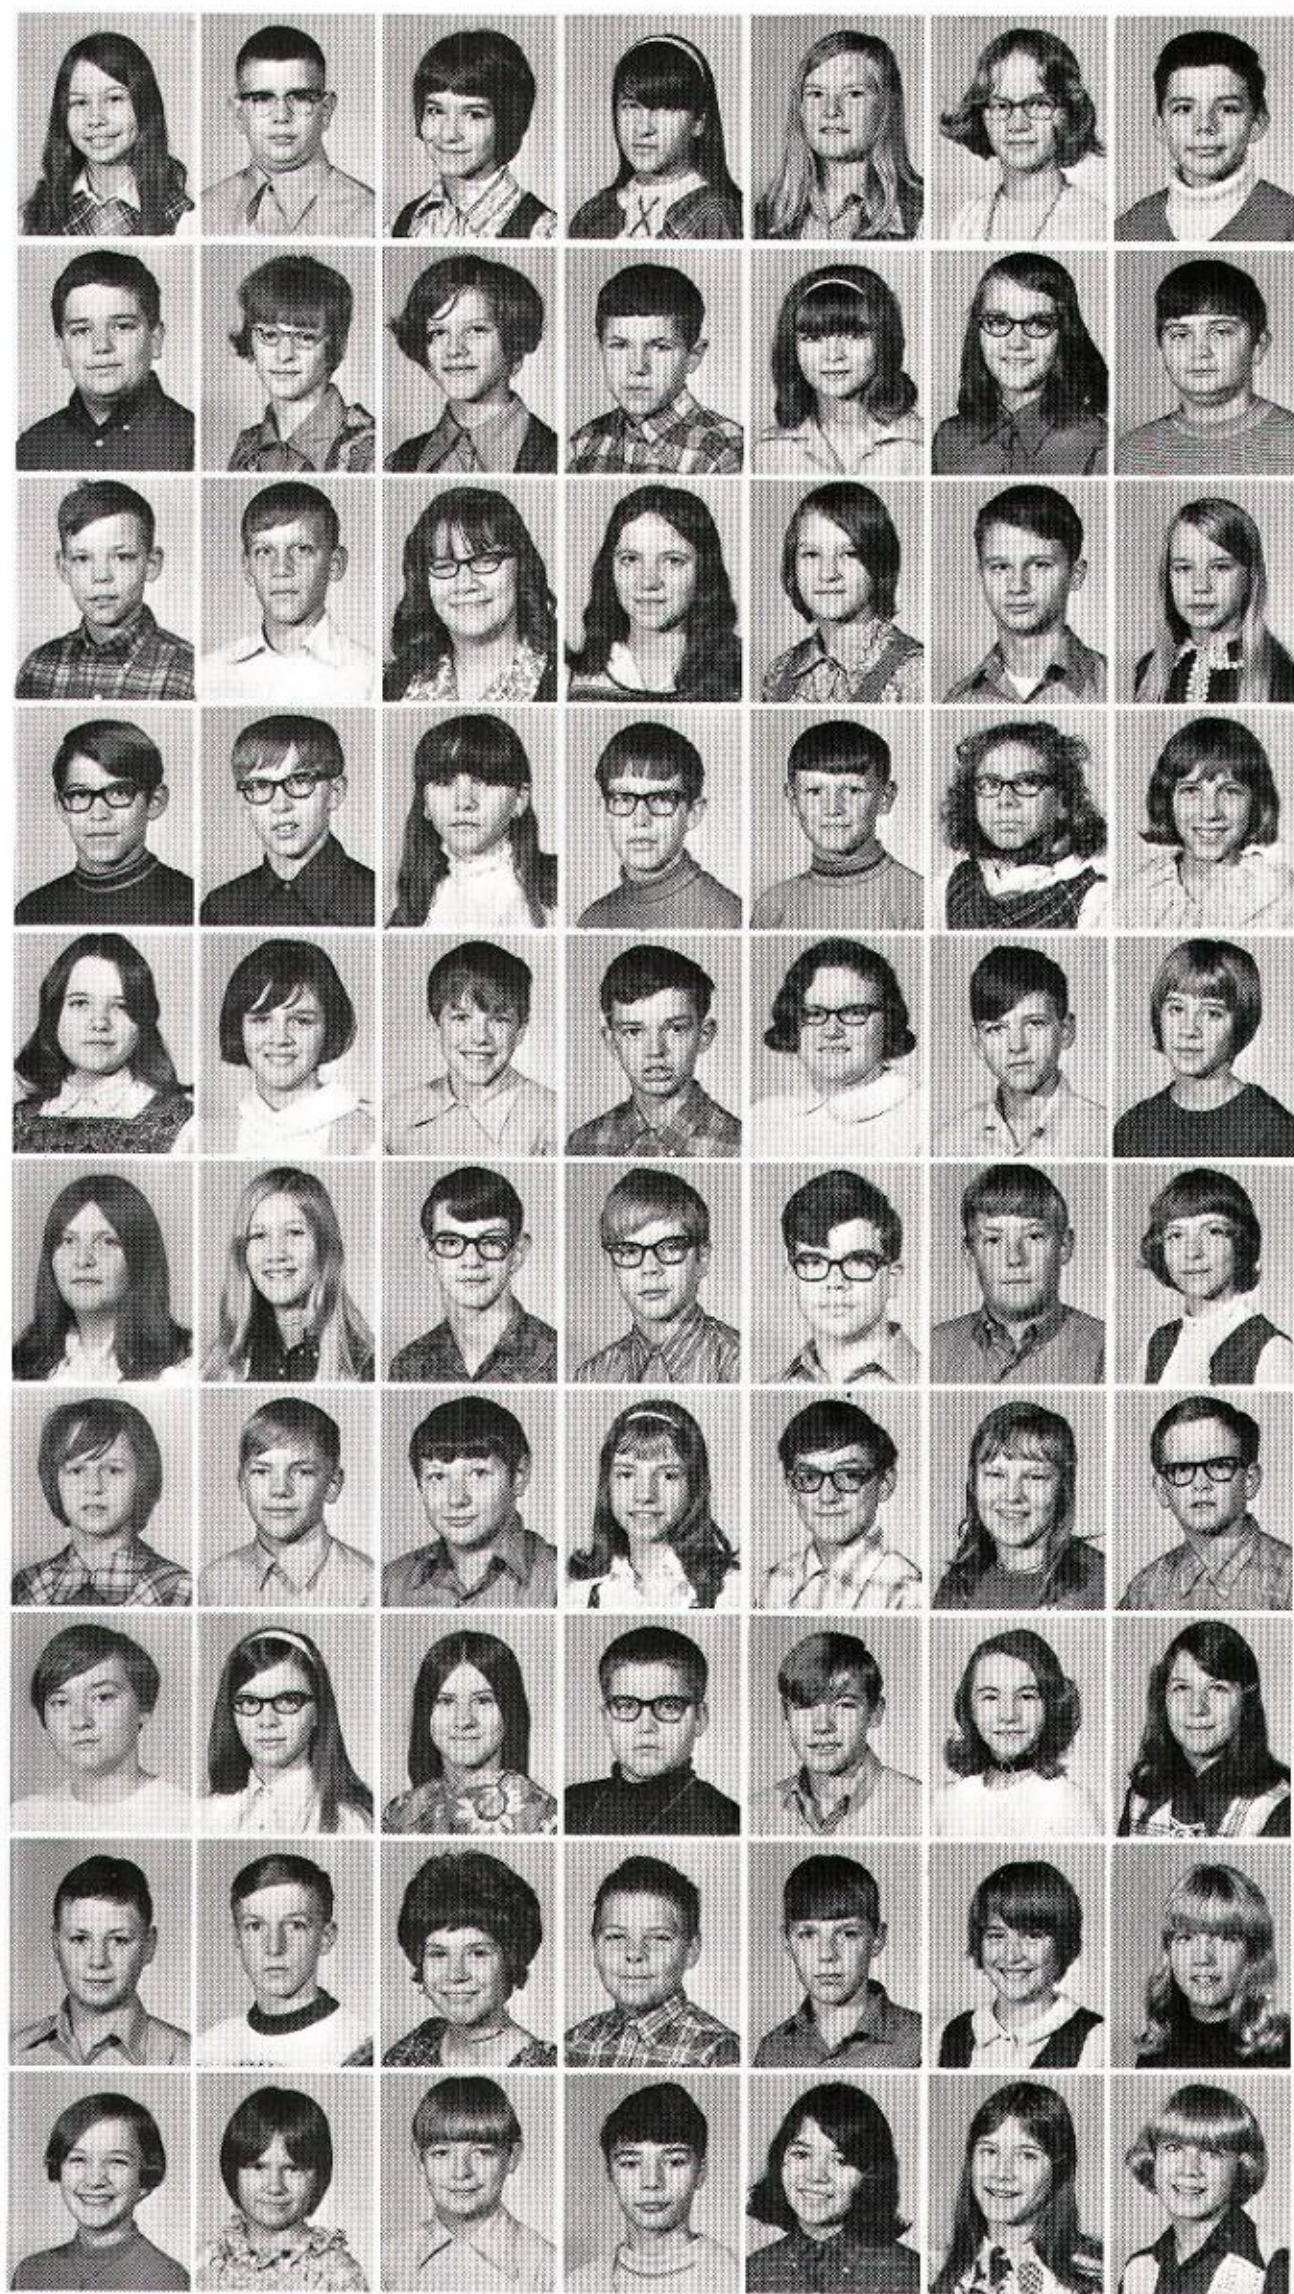

It meant getting up earlier, getting to class on time, working a difficult locker combination, having a short lunch hour, and concentrating on becoming an eighth grader.

There were many fans who attended last year's football games, among them were many seventh graders.

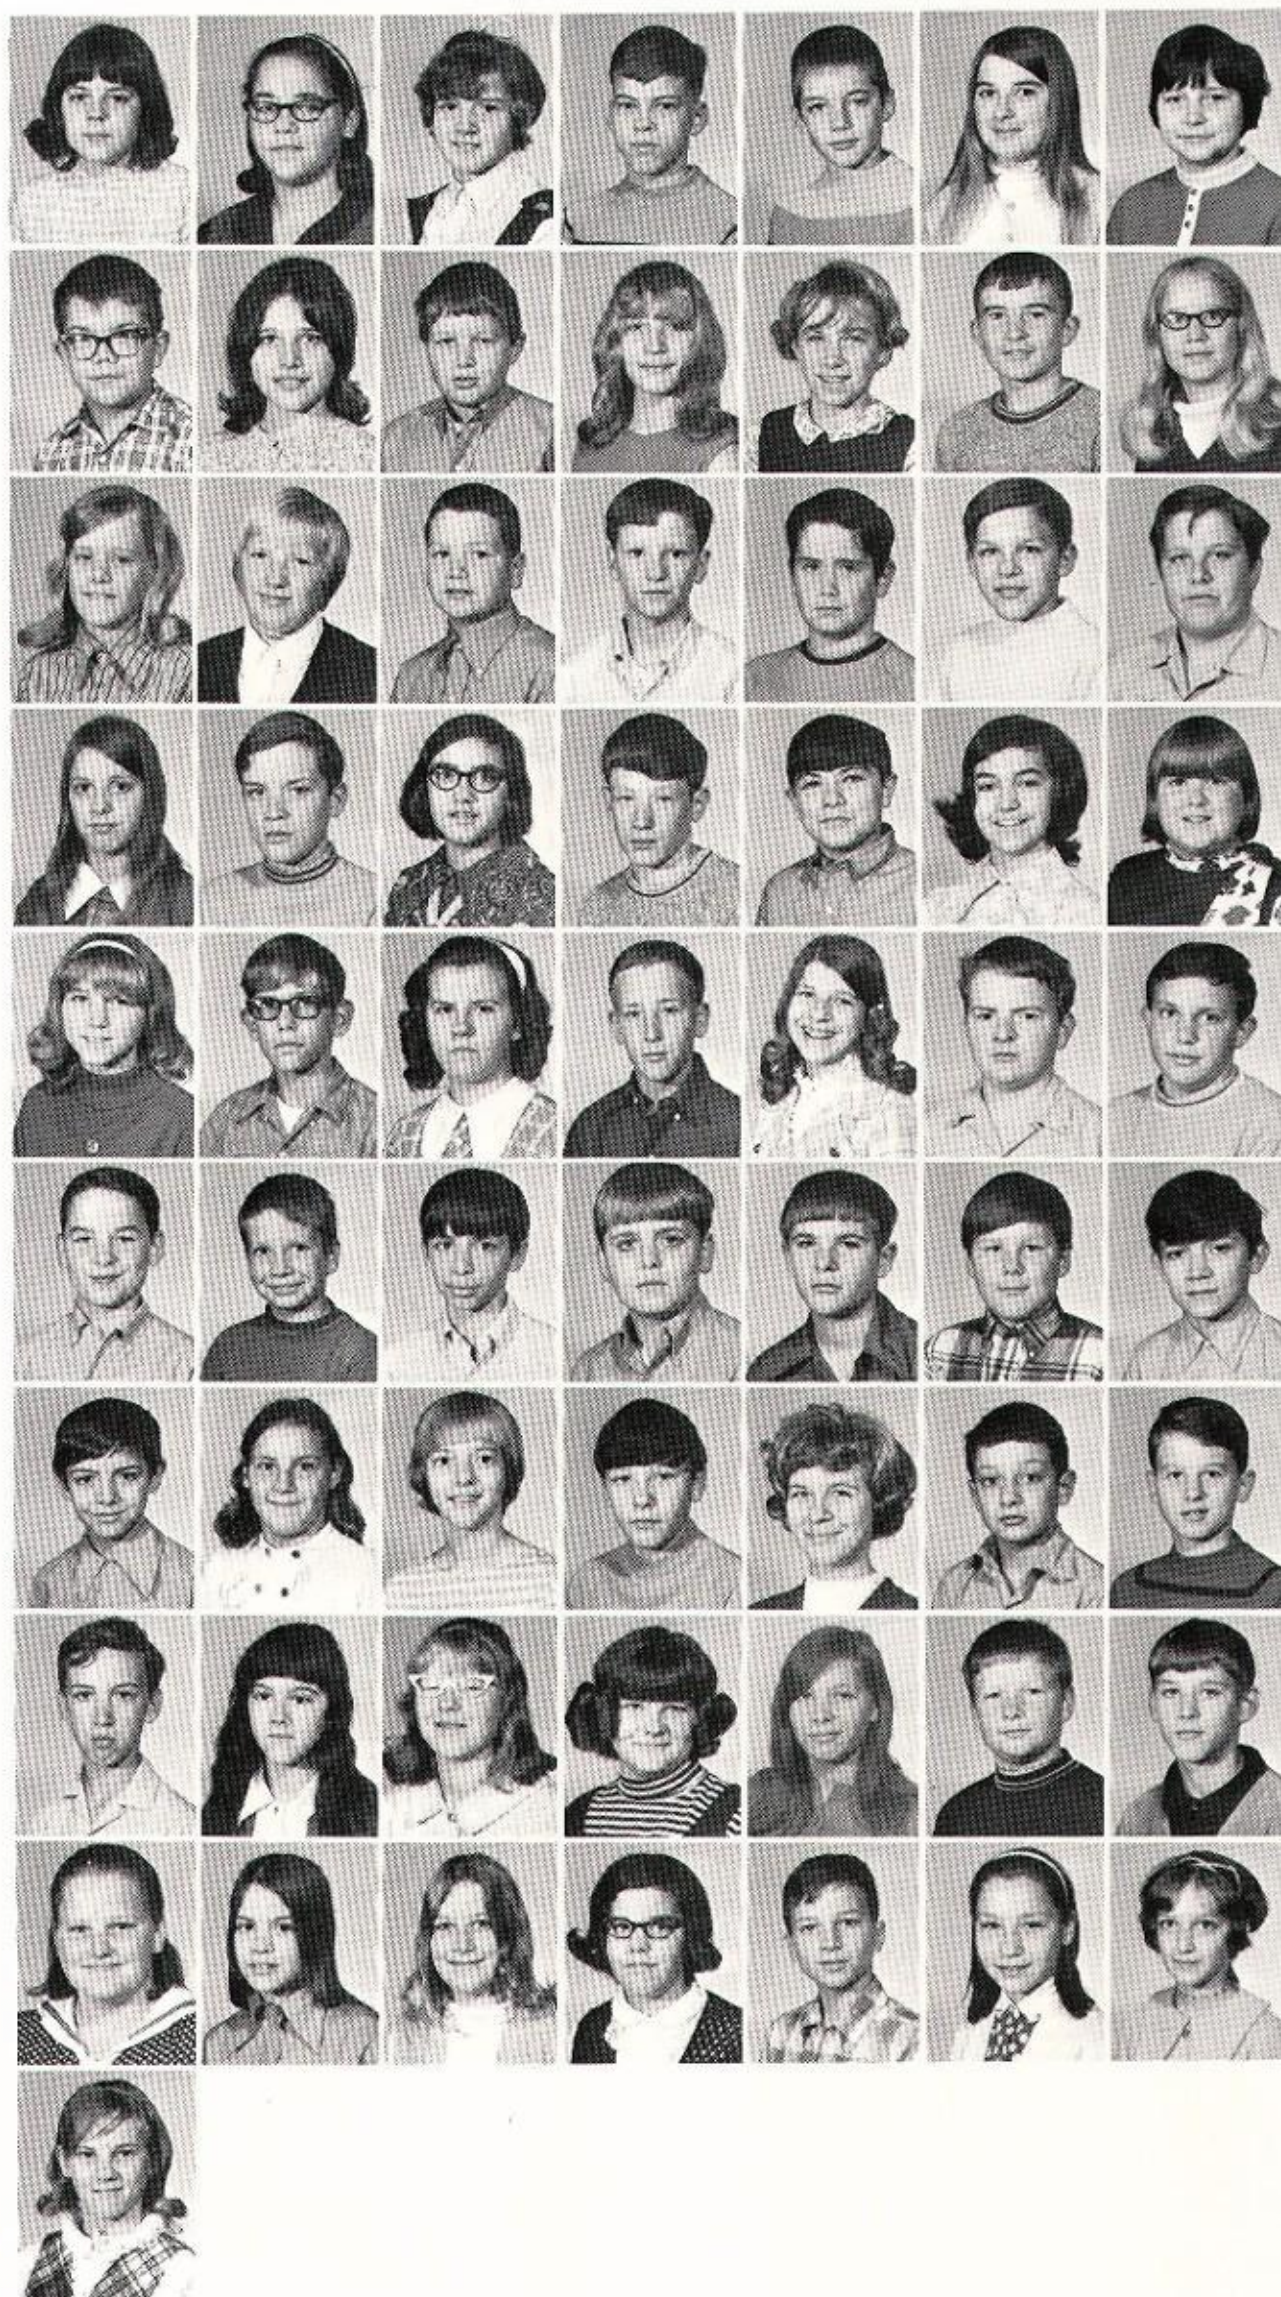

The seventh graders were helped through their first year at North Put by their class officers who were: (STANDING) Mike Bullerdick, Drenda Mattingly, and Neil Miles. (KNEELING) Julie Frazier, Paula Wisener, and Penny Allen.

Eighth grade class officer, Kim Burdette showed his school spirit when he helped the janitors by taking off tape and posters from the walls.

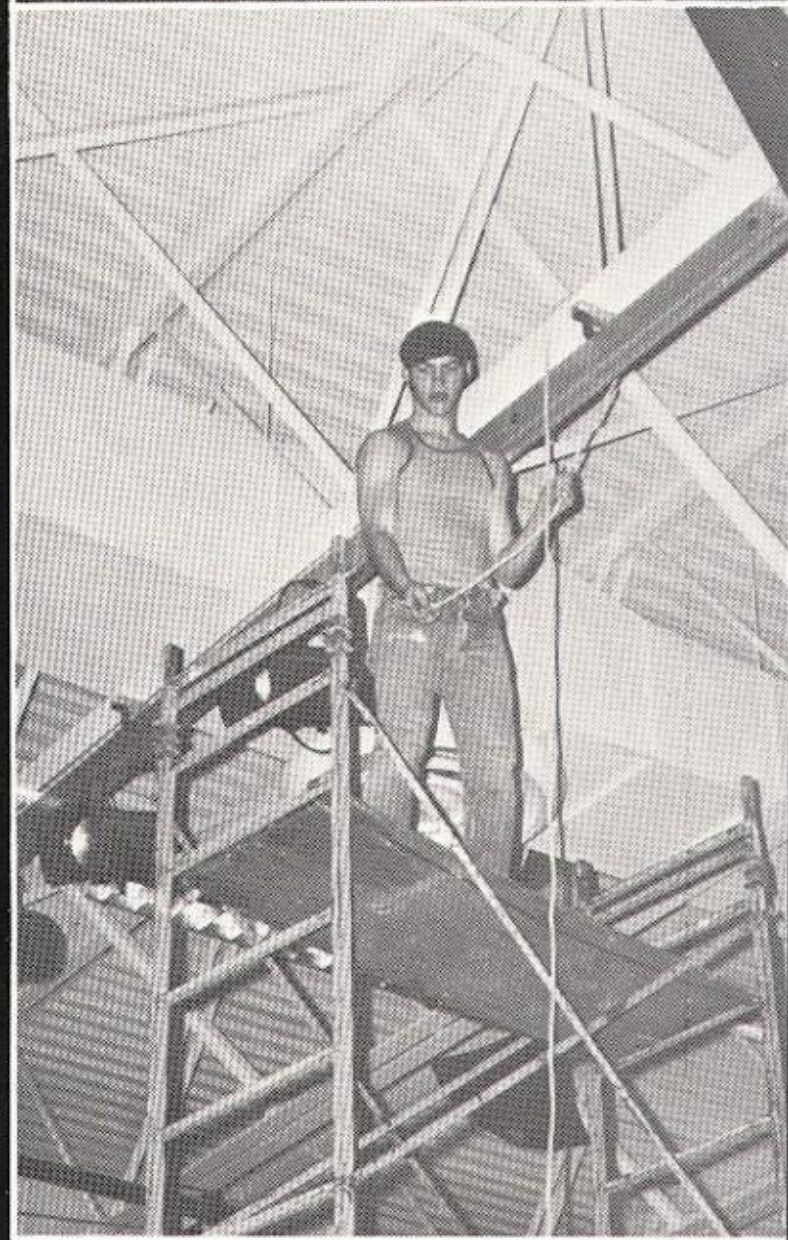

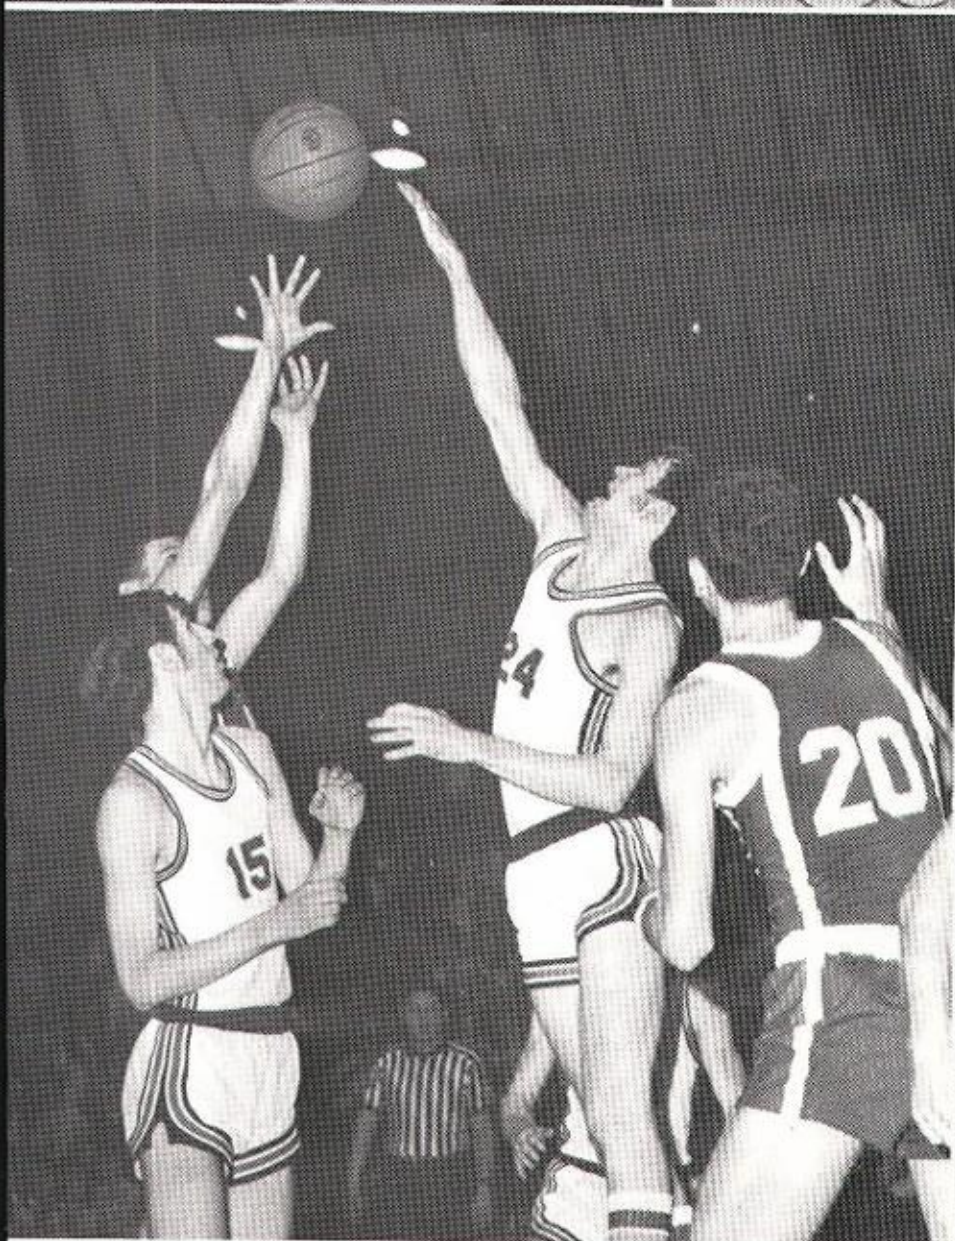

Gary Hood, David Hansell, and Terry Anderson talked over some new ideas for their next art design while Gail Woodall worked on her present project.

Mr. Legs, Ron Lambermont, found retreat in the rebounder when it came for ladies' choice.

We are beginning.

We closed the year with awards.

Athletic banquets, fashion shows, art displays, award convo, and prom topped off with graduation exercises summed up the 1970-71 North Putnam year.

The prom was held at the Student Union Building at DePauw University. Oriental Gardens was the theme for decorations. A gigantic dragon hung from the ceiling over the dance floor. The Elwood Stage Band played for the dance. The school sponsored a post-prom skating party and a breakfast for faculty students.

Numerous awards were received by North Putnam students at the awards convocation. Cindy Ades received the D.A.R. good citizenship award. State scholarships were presented to Jane Adamson, Donetta Ardelean, Ken Carrington, Greg Evans, Steve Goff, Patty Knapp, Marley Price, Patty Scott, and Michael Shillings.

May 23 was baccalaureate and commencement for the seniors. Now began their journey into life outside the academic classrooms.

Marge Stack from Simplicity Patterns aided Mrs. Steward in presenting a spring fashion show.

Patty Ferguson and Fred Lieske took time out from the dance floor to enjoy their own company.

Simplicity Patterns presented an ESP fashion show for the girls of North Putnam.

Queen Betty Duncan and King Max Phillips led the opening dance at North Putnam's prom.

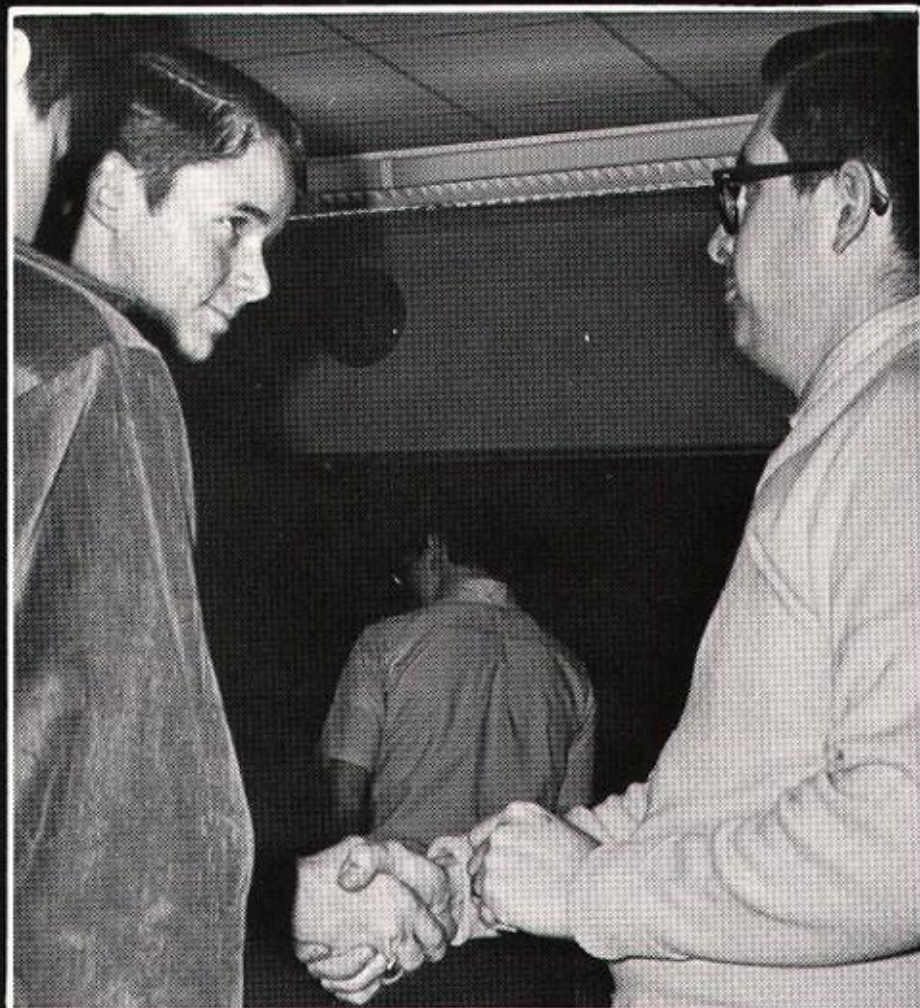

Farewell, 1970-71.

May 28, 1971, we all said good-bye to North Putnam Jr.-Sr. High School. Most of us will be back next fall, but some were leaving North Putnam for the last time. Even though some persons were leaving, the educating of future students would continue.

The memory of North Putnam will never fade from those who laughed, wept, and studied in its classrooms. Good-bye, 1970-71.

We have many people to thank this year for aiding in the publication of SHOWCASE '70-71. Mr. Bill Blanck, our American Yearbook representative; Miss Linda Daseler, our art consultant; Mr. Stout, donor of some terrific action shots; the BANNER-GRAPHIC, donor of several team and action shots; Williams Colorcraft Studio, the photography studio who developed and printed our pictures. They all deserve a hand!

Agriculture teacher Mr. Doremire congratulated student James Michael Majors at an FFA meeting.
